SHIP BILL HEADED FOR SHOALS

OPPONENTS SAY SUBSIDY BOUND FOR ROUGH SEA

Senate Voyage Will Be Made Through Many Storms That May Prevent Its Reaching Port If They Fail to Hurl It On Rocks.

SAFELY LAUNCHED BY WASHINGTON SENATOR

Democrats Charge Increased Tariff and Distribution of Government Favors Will Follow Enactment of Measure Into Law.

(International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—The ship subsidy bill was headed tonight on a rough voyage in the senate with administration spokesmen determined to guide it past the legislature breakers and parliamentary rocks with which its opponents plan to prevent it reaching port, even if they fail to wreck it.

The administration won a victory today when Senator Jones, republican, of Washington, chairman of the senate commerce committee ,reported the bill favorably to the senate. Tonight he denounced as a "mass of contradictions" the minority report presented by Senator Fletcher of Florida, ranking democratic committee member.

Increased tariff and distribution of government favors among privileged interests would result from the passage of the bill, democrats charged in launching their onslaught upon the bill.

"If we are to be a nation worthy of our opportunities and advantages we must have an American merchant marine," said Senator Jones in reply, "and in order to have an American merchant marine we must be alive to our needs and our opportunities as our commercial rivals and no class of our people will gain a greater proportionate benefit from an adequate merchant marine than the farmers of the country."

Jones Makes Prediction.

Jones predicted as debate on the bill proceeded its advantage to the farmers would be clearly demonstrated as the opposition of senaern agricultural states developed. Jones admitted he was not hopeful that the senate would act finally on the bill before the new year, but he said he was ready to fight hard to force a vote on it before the end of the session, despite the announced intention of its opponents to tie up bills as to block its passage.

As reported from the senate commerce committee by a vote of 11 to 5,—Senator Ransdel of Louis-

FREE TO MARRY FILM COMEDIAN

Pola Negri, Actress, Shows Divorce Decree Issued By Polish Court.

(United Press.)

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Dec. 9.—Pola Negri, beautiful movie actress, is free to marry Charlie Chaplin or anyone else she wishes.

The star, in an interview, hotly denied reports from Berlin that she had not obtained a divorce from Count Eugene Demska, her first husband.

She produced the divorce decree —written in Polish—for the interviewer to read, to substantiate her statements. She was willing to submit it to an interpreter, but the document, loaded down with seals and signatures, looked official and legal enough to convince the most exacting.

The actress also produced sworn statements made at the time she signed her present contract, stating she was divorced.

The rumor that she had not been gratened a divorce was printed in a Berlin paper following reports that the Polish star was to marry the American comedy star.

Two Windy City Men In Jail On Serious Charge

GENEVA, Ill., Dec. 9.—Two Chicago business men were under arrest here tonight, charged with abducting and mistreating three girl runaways from the state training school.

The men, held by local police, Conrad Wisbrock and Hugh Murphy, are charged with picking up the girls on a road near the training school, shortly after they had escaped.

The girls were placed in a taxicab, dined and feted and driven to West Chicago, where they were assaulted, it is alleged.

Arrest of the Chicago men, and return of the girls to the training school here, gave new life to reports that twenty-two other girls had recently escaped after beating up the matron with stove pokers.

Officials at the school would not comment on these reports.

"MOTHER"

When you plan for Christmas, and think of what you will send Mother, think again. Go and see her; Mother wants to see you and not presents. She wants her boy or girl to come home. She wants her memory to run back to the time when you crawled around on the floor, then learned to walk and talk. She even remembers the first word you said.

Think how nice it will be to go home and see her. Let her see you and the joy it will bring to her can not be expressed in words.

Then see her prepare that favorite dish of yours, and how you will enjoy it by having Mother sit on the opposite side of the table while you eat. Mother's love is as great today as it was when you was a baby.

She may be here for only a few years more, and the remembrance of that visit with Mother on Christmas day, Nineteen Twenty Two, will gladden life's pathway as long as you live. Try it.

SAYS KILLING AN ACCIDENT

Musician Tells Police Omaha Woman Received Fatal Shot When She Struck Him With Her Own Revolver—Tragedy Follows Party.

OMAHA, Dec. 9.—Mike La Porte, known as "Prince Adamo," Italian musician arrested late Saturday in connection with the shooting to death of Mrs. Alice Rhinehart, 25, in her apartment declared that she was killed by a shot fired from her own revolver after she had struck him in the eye with the butt of the weapon.

"I'm sorry she is dead because I loved her," he said.

He told police he had been on a party with the girl and two other friends. They had bought drinks at several places, he claimed.

At one place Mrs. Rhinehart had asked him to sing her favorite song, "Leave Me With a Smile," he said. He did so and when she asked him to sing it again he refused and she seized his guitar and broke it over his hea.

Later the party went to the apartment house and when he was alone with the girl she pulled the gun from a drawer and accused him of flirting.

"I denied it," he said, "but she said 'I'll kill you' and struck me with the gun and a shot sounded. I ran away and roamed the streets for several hours. I then went to the home of a friend, where I was arrested."

Police said a formal charge of murder will be filed against La Porte on Monday.

The Rhinehart woman was formerly of Nebraska City, police said. Her first husband was Verl Lisbey of Nebraska City.

AN INJUNCTION AGAINST VAMPS

Love Thief Restairned From Having Anything To Do With Married Man.

(United Press.)

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—An injunction against vamping, the first in history, was issued here today.

A legal restraining order enjoining Miss Hazel Campbell, alleged vampire, from having anything further to do with Joseph Toso, chauffeur and father, was issued by Judge Timothy Hurley in superior court.

The vamp writ was issued on complaint of Mrs. Anna Toso, who alleges Miss Campbell alienated her husband's affections.

The historic injunction is first of a series of restraining orders which Judge Hurley declared he would issue in all cases where a designing lover sought to pilfer the affections of a married person.

"The injunctions will be aimed at men and women alike," Judge Hurley said.

Cleopatra, if she lived today, would be an outlaw, according to Judge Hurley's interpretation of the marriage laws.

"Women who steal the affections of a married man are violating a law, and illegal practices of that sort should be just as amenable to the inunction process as are other violations of law," he declared.

Judge Hurley, in handing down his decision, said that "humanity in general could be benefitted from the injunction process in cases of this sort.

"It will solve the divorce evil," he said. "Many cases of domestic trouble could be patched up with a restraining order forbidding the guilty third party from further tampering with affections which are not legally his."

WOMEN BATTLE IN COURT ROOM OVER MAN'S CHARACTER

Governor Russell's Wife Says Husband Faithful and Secretary Betrayed Confidence.

Miss Birkhead Paints Mississippi Executive As Wolf In Sheep's Clothing.

(United Press.)

OXFORD, Mass., Dec. 9.—Two women battled in the crowded federal court room here today over the character of Lee M. Russell, governor of Mississippi.

Mrs. Russell, the first lady of the state, testifying in the sensational $100,000 seduction suit brought by Miss Frances Birkhead against the governor, upheld the faithfulness and trustworthiness of her husband. She bitterly attacked the character of the girl bringing the suit, and declared she had betrayed the confidence and friendship which had been shown toward her in the executive's home.

Miss Birkhead painted the friendly acts by the governor as those of a wolf in sheeps clothing, and held to her story of an alleged love intrigue with the governor during severe examniation.

Dramatic moments followed in rapid succession as Mrs. Russell told of befriending the girl now asking $100,000 from the governor on charges of seduction. The friendship was repaid by deceit and intrigue, she charged, while Miss Birkhead relaeed her version of her age-old story of a wolf in sheeps clothing. Through it all, Gov. Russell, the storm center, sat attentive but unmoved.

Satisfy Sensation Seekers.

The conflict between the two women—one claiming her life had been wrecked by the wiles of a man in high position, and the other, a middleaged person of dignity, wounded by unfavorable publicity and the taint on her home—thrilled a crowd of sensation seekers who packed into the federal court here.

Mrs. Russell was taken over the whole course of the case by attorneys. She quietly told how she and her husband befriended Miss Birkhear following an alleged seduction by Dr. Henry Bosworth, superintendent of the state tuberculosis hospital, taking her into their home and giving her employment as Russell's secretary, to "help her lead a straight life." Rallying to the side of the executive, she told her version of the abused friendship and her qualms since the suit had been filed.

The "first lady" sobbed and cried before the gaping court room throng as the opposing counse sought to force confession of improperieties of Gov. Russell.

"It was impossible," the quiet little woman replied to a question whether it was true that the state

"Henry and Me" Case Dismissed By Kansas Judge

EMPORIA, Kas., Dec. 9.—The "Henry and Me" case involving alleged violations of Gov. Henry J. Allen's industrial court law blew up here this afternoon, when Judge Harris dismissed the case against William Allen White at the request of the county attorney who was acting on orders of the attorney general of Kansas.

The action of the court means that the test of the legality of the law which White sought to have made in the present case will not be made. The dismissal was over the vigorous objections of White who demanded that he be prosecuted and who had made a number of personal appeals to Governor Allen, a strong friend of White, that the prosecution be allowed to proceed to a decision in order that a test of the validity of the law might be made in the supreme court.

Russia Tired Of Being Out In Cold

LAUSANNE, Dec. 9.—The Russians are understood to have decided to sign the proctocol of peace in the Near East, now expected to be ready before the new year.

Russia is tired of being "out in the cold" and wants to come into line despite her opposition to many of the proctocol's probable clauses.

The point is raised here whether the protocol with Russia's signature would not constitute de jure recognition by the other countries but this is not necessarily implied, it is said.

Prison Doors Swing Open—Burch Is Free

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 9.—Arthur C. Burch, Chicago clubman, tonight was free for the first time since he was arrested for his alleged connection with the murder of J. Belton Kennedy.

Burch stood four trials, three on a charge of murder and the fourth on a charge of insanity. All four disagreed, the last one being unable to reach a verdict this afternoon as to whether or not Burch was sane. As a result he was released.

Although Burch's father, the Rev. W. A. Burch, brought the insanity charge against his son, the younger Burch accompanied his father and mother to their home in Pasadena tonight.

MAKES A MOVE FOR RULING ON LANGUAGE LAW

Assistant Attorney General Wheeler Files Motion in the United States Supreme Court to Combine Two Cases For Early Hearing.

MAY NOT BE TRIED BEFORE HOLIDAYS

State Says Purpose of Measure to Promote National Unity — Suits Appealed to Highest Tribunal By German Language Interests.

In an effort to get the two language cases from Nebraska, appealed by German language interests to the United States supreme court, presented to that tribunal before it decides the similar cases from Iowa and Ohio, which have already been submitted to it, Assistant Attorney General Wheeler has filed a motion to consolidate them and advance them for hearing at the same time.

Attorneys on the opposing side have indicated that they are agreeable to having the Nebraska matters hurried along. The motion will be presented to the court in writing on December 18, but probably there will be no oral argument.

Wheeler's tenure of office under the present administration will be out on January 4, unless the new incumbent, Attorney General-elect, O. S. Spillman, regests him to stay until the language cases are disposed of. It is doubtful whether the high bench at Washington would be willing to set them down for hearing before that date, owing to the Christmas holiday season.

The first case from Nebraska is Robert Meyer's appeal from a $25 fine, imposed in Hamilton county, for violating the old Siman law by teaching German in a parochial school to children in the lower

STEADY INCREASE IN RETAIL BUYING

Week's Trade Review Shows Marked Gain In Business Throughout Nation.

Period Without Fresh Labor Troubles and Industrial Situation Is Good.

(International News Service.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—A steady increase in buying in the retail trade was reported throughout the week, but the period of dullness is anticipated following the first of the year There have been no fresh labor troubles and conditions in most of the industrial districts are good.

Despite good reports recovery continues slow in the northwestern states and bankers fear it will be another year pre-war normalcy is re-established there. The south continues to make strides towards prosperity. There was continued heavy buying of cotton by trade interests throughout the week, but the future price of cotton largely depends upon conditions in Europe.

If Europe can settle her dissensions and get down to work the foreign demand for cotton may bring the price to the long talked of 30-cent per pound level. The new bonds issued to the American investing public this week totalled over $35,000,000.

Bradstreets reported 462 business failures during the week against 409 the previous week. Most of them were in the middle west.

The average price of twenty representative industrial issues on the New York stock exchange was 97.68 against 95.73 last week and 79.60 this week last year. The average price of twenty representative rail issues was 84.56 compared with 85.56 the week before and 74.35 this week in 1921.

Bank Clearings Increase.

Bank clearings of the whole country this week were estimated at $7,263,763,762, against $6,818,255,581 last week and $7,772,680,366 this week last year.

The rate on money for call loans in New York this week ranged from 5 to 4 per cent. Money for three months loans secured by gilt edged collateral was plentiful at 5 per cent.

The amount of the cotton crop brought into sight this week totalled 276,040 bales against 301,814 bales the week before and 262,868 bales this week last year. There was a big increase in the amount purchased by northern spinners. The visible supply of all grades of American cotton increased from 3,764,544 bales last week to 3,945,898 bales this week.

Hope is running high in the industrial districts over President Harding's demand this week that congress enact measures to assist the farmers. It is aimed to place about $60,000,000 in western banks and by etxending rural credits farmers can hold on to their grain longer and await more favorable prices. The visible supply of American wheat decreased 1,733,000 bushels this week. The Canadian visible supply decreased nearly 12,000,000 bushels. Corn was weak, the visible supply increasing 415,000 bushels.

SAYS STATE IS RESPONSIBLE FOR CHILD'S WELFARE

Children and Families Suffer While Protectors Are In Prison.

Secretary Antles Asks That Authorities Be Notified Of Such Cases.

Assistance and co-operation of the general public in directing attention of state and county officials to cases where the dependents of persons confined in the state's penal institutions and its insane hospitals are suffering want and privation are asked by State Public Welfare Secretary Antles, on behalf of the child welfare bureau.

Mr. Antles tells of a recent case where a man was convicted of murder. He had a wife and six children, the oldest twelve. The mother believed her husband innocent and refused to accept help from the county or state. The children were scorned on the streets and in school. Matters grew so bad it was reported to the welfare department and taken into juvenile court.

"When the state takes away the natural protector and home maker of a child, by all rules of right it should, as far as possible, give that child the best opportunity possible so it will have somewhat of an equal chance against the child reared in a normal home," Mr. Antles says.

In recent survey of state institution and insane hospitals made by the department, 449 fathers and mothers of families were found—"449 broken homes and 1,591 children effected and handicapped by the necessary action of the courts." An effort is being made by the child welfare bureau to investigate each family personally.

"We earnestly solicit the co-operation of all persons who may know of families thus effected, and request that such matters be reported to the juvenile judge of each county and to the child welfare bureau in Lincoln, so that we may assist when necessary," says Mr. Antles in closing his appeal.

Clemenceau Feels He "Put Over" What Visit Made For

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 9.—Georges Clemenceau, "The Tiger of France," left here tonight for an over-Sunday rest in the highlands, convinced that he "has got over" with the American people.

The Tiger took occasion in his address today before the Philadelphia Forum to drive home the fact that he believes his visit to Washington was ot in vain. He is convinced Europe may now look to President Harding for assistance in the unravelling of her tangled affairs.

This was the one point upon which the Tiger had until today remained uncertain. He came to America, he declared, to accomplish three things:

First, the refutation of the charge that France is militaristic.

Second, to convince the American people that France means to pay her honest debts if given a fair opportunity.

Third, to persuade the United States her own interests as well as those of the world demand that she intervene in European affairs.

"Sins of Hollywood" In Coast Court Soon

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Dec. 9.—The "Sins of Hollywood" will soon be threshed out in court in what is expected to be one of the most sensational cases involving the motion picture industry or its stars.

Ed Roberts, former representative of the producers, and later author of the book "The Sins of Hollywood" was arrested today by federal officers after the grand jury had voted an indictment charging him with improper use of the mails in sending out the book. He was released on bail.

The book has been a thorn in the side of the big film producers ever since its publication. It was brought to the attention of Will Hays during his tour of Hollywood last summer by Dr. Gustav A. Breigleb, Los Angeles' "blue law pastor." Hays paid no attention to it.

The book is composed of a series of short stories.

Hays Not Sponsor For Movie Morals

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—Will H. Hays may be the czar of the movies but is not sponsor for the morals of the movie folk.

Hays, here to put pedagogical films "on the map," denied any knowledge of reports that certain movie magnets were cancelling contracts with stars involved in movie scandals.

"My job is to see that the finished product is clean and artistic. I have never been involved with the morals of the movie actors collectively or individually," he declared.

Hays leaves tomorrow for Hollywood to give the movie community there a Christmas present. He plans to make Hollywood the movie mecca of the world.

VIRTUALLY AN EXILE.

GRIDIRON CLUB HOLDS BANQUET

Washington News Writers Poke Fun at Everybody From President Harding Down to Several of the New Congressional "Babies."

THIRD PARTY COMES IN FOR SHARP DIG

Borah, Lafollette and "Hi" Johnson Witches Concocting Brew That Explodes When Ford Shies "Green Backs" Into Kettle.

(United Press.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—President Harding and other high officials of the government got their annual "roasting" from Washington newspaper men at the annual dinner of the famous Gridiron club here tonight.

Among the guests, besides the president, were Vice President Coolidge, all the members of the cabinet, the British and French ambassadors, several justices of the supreme court, a score of senators, senators-elect and representatives, prominent newspaper owners and editors and distinguished men from all over the country.

G. O. P. Upset Good for Jokes.

The republican upsets in the recent election and the talk of a third party movement formed the basis for most of the jokes and stunts pulled at the dinner. The fun started as soon as the guests began to assemble, for they encountered immediately a burlesque on the numerous picketings that have been common lately around the white house. Several members of the club, dressed in wascisti costume of black shirts and black hats, stood in the doorways holding a-lott large banners: One of them had words in large leters, "Mr. President, are you with us or against us? The hour has come.'

A "third party" skit was the feature of the entertainment. Around a large kettle, three scribe performers dressed as witches and representing Borah, LaFollete and "Hi" Johnson, proceeded to concoct a devil's brew. All the witches agreed that the brew (third party) should not only have a kick but should be composed of kicks. Thereafter they began to disagree violently.

Borah Considers Flopping.

Borah wondered whether it was beter to stay within the republican party and knock the administration from within. Lafollette advised that that the witches should not put all their eggs in one basket and pointed

CONCEDE DEFEAT BY TIGER WOMAN

Prisoners Knew of Flight Several Hours Before Escape Was Discovered.

(International News Service.)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 9.—The escape of Clara Phillips, hammer murderess, from the county jail here Monday night was known to prisoner in tank No. 6 at the jail several hours before prison attaches had discovered her absence.

This was intimated tonight when it was learned Carl Pfeiffer, before being taken to San Quentin to serve a sentence for highway robbery, told Sheriff William I. Treager the word 'Clara has gone' was whispered in the tank long before the alarm of her escape was given.

Convinced that Mrs. Phillips is still in concealment somewhere in Los Angeles, Deputy sheriffs tonight made an intensive search of dens where members of the underblind pigs, hangouts and other world are prone to congregate hoping to pick up the trail of the missing woman.

Chief Deputy District Attorney Asa Keyes co-operated with Under Sheriff Biscailuse in re-questioning jail attaches and persons who are known oo have visited Mrs. Phillips while she was in jail in hopes of 'reconstructing" the case and taking a fresh start.

Armour L. Phillips, husband of the "Tiger Woman," caused deputy sheriffs to question Harry Karst, youthful admirer of Mrs. Phillips, and whom it was charged at her trial passed a night with her at Camp Baldy.

Phillips said Karst had made numerous "wise cracks" about Mrs. Phillips' escape. Karst was questioned the day Mrs. Phillips sawed her way fro mher cell, but released.

Find No Trace Of Missing Aviators

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Dec. 9.—Nothing has been heard from the party of seven planes which left here this morning to search for Colonel Francis G. Marshall and Lieut. Charles E. Webber, aviators who are lost in the desert between Yuma and Phoenix, Ariz.

The seven planes were planning to fly low over the route of the two missing aviators in hope of locating the wreckage. Army planes have also been dispatched from El Paso to aid in the search.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 9.—The weather outlook for the week beginning Monday follows:

Upper Mississippi and Lower Missouri Valleys: Temperature below normal; local snows at beginning of week and again near its close.

For Nebraska: Fair Sunday with rising temperature; Monday probably unsettled, rising temperature in extreme east portion.

RECONSTRUCTION IN FULL SWING

Astoria, Oregon, People Grapple With Problems Facing Them After Fire.

ASTORIA, Ore., Dec. 9. — Under the leadership of Major William S. Gilbert, "the fighting parson," the commission of ten is taking a vigorous hold on its task of re-organizing and governing the city, now a hollow square surrounding a huge area of smoking ruins which once were the business district of the city.

The larger committee of fifty appointed by the mayor Friday decided at its first meeting that it was too unwieldy for quick decisive action in the affairs of the stricken town. The smaller committee was named and vested with supreme authority in all municipal affairs, Sub-commissions will be designated to take charge of the usual departments of city administration, as well as the special departments such as labor, supplies, business reconstruction and fuel, are created in the emergency to function for the duration of the critical period of re-construction.

Some doubt was expressed regarding the wisdom of putting the police department under the special commission, but Major Gilbert, with the solid backing of the commission, announced that all departments without exception would be subject to the same central authority.

Fordney to Bring Out Bonus Bill The Coming Week

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—The long drawn out fight to enact a federal bonus for America's 4,000,000 world war veterans will be reopened in congress next week, it was announced officially tonight, by the American Legion.

The bonus bill, which President Harding vetoed several months ago, will be re-introduced in the house by Joseph W. Fordney, its author and chairman of the ways and means committee. It will include a provision, however, for raising revenues by floating of a bond issue in order to meet the president's objections to the original ill.

Fordney also announced he would reintroduce the bill during the coming week. He added he would make every effort to have the measure enacted before March 4 and that he hoped a way would be found to finance the bill to meet the president's approval.

Fordney said he would confer with the president on the subject within a few days.

Mussolini Center Of Interest Among People In London

LONDON, Dec. 9.—A small man with big, snapping black eyes and a high, bald forehead, rushed at top speed through the lobby of the Hotel Claridge this evening, talking rapidly to his companions and pounding one fist into his other hand to emphasize his remarks.

A crowd of admiring Italian residents of London, who stood by holding their hats in their hands and casting glances of respectful hero worship upon the small, voluble man, set up a shout: "Viva Mussolini!" It was Benito Mussolini, premier of the fascisti government at Rome and the most spectacular figure that has flashed across the political horizon since the world war.

Russ Government Will Be Democracy In End, Solon Says

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—When a settled responsible government finally emerges in Russia, it will be a democracy, formed by evolution and James P. Goodrich of Indiana, who has made several trips to Russia as a personal observer for President Harding, declared tonight in an address before the Lecturers' Conference on Public Opinion and World Peace.

Goodrich said the stable Russian government would not be an "autocracy" either of the czar or of the proletariat.

"The imperialists may meet in Paris as often as they like and may elect a successor to the late czar," he added, "but he will never wear the crown. There is no demand whatever for the restoration of the monarchy."

Enemies Out After Scalp Of Klan

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Within a week representatives will be at work in the capital of fourteen states and the District of Columbia lobbying for legislation to hamstring the Ku Klux Klan, it was announced tonight at national headquarters here of the American Unity league.

The states, according to Grady K. Rutledge, executive secretary of the league, are Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Missouri, Kansas, Michigan, Louisiana, New York, New Jersey, Texas and Massachusetts.

EXCITEMENT RUNS WILD FOLLOWING THE KILLING

Scene Of Shooting Is Small Town In Foothills of Kentucky Mountains, and Extra Deputies Are Guarding Jail Against Rioters.

GRAYSON, Ky., Dec. 9.—Excitement ran at fever heat tonight following the slaying late this afternoon of Paul Herren, by Harrison Blanton, less than two hours after Herron had been acquitted in circuit court on a charge of killing William Blanton, father of the youth.

Extra deputies guarded the jail, where young Blanton was placed after his arrest as a precautionary measure to prevent any attempt to mob Blanton. It was expected Blanton would be moved to the Catlettsberg jail for safe keeping during the night.

Herron had been on trial charged with the murder of William Blanton, July 15. After he had been acquitted he was walking about the streets filled with the Saturday afternoon crowds, when Blanton, it is said shot him three times in the back. Herron fell dead. One of the shots grazed a bystander after it had passed through Herron's body. The grand jury, which was in session, immediately returned an indictment charging Blanton with the murder.

Herron was on his way to rejoin his wife and infant son when he was shot down.

Grayson the county seat of Carter county, is located in the foothills of the Kentucky mountains.

WONDERING WHAT HARDING MEANT

Many Believe Veiled Hint In Message Shrewd Thrust At France.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.— President Harding's veiled hint in his message to congress that the four-power Pacific treaty has worked so well that the United States might consider similar pacts in other trouble zones throughout the world, aroused a volume of interest in the capital today.

In the absence of any clarification from the white house as to just what the president meant, some senators expressed the opinion that the president's uterance was a shrewd diplomatic thrust aimed at hastening France's ratification of this same four-power treaty and the other treaties that grew out of the Washington arms conference. They saw in it a gentle reminder to France that the United States might be persuaded to a greater participation in European affairs if the four-power treaty is ratified and works out well. All work on scrapping of ships has been held up because of France's failure to ratify any of the treaties to which she is signatory. They are not operative until all the signers have ratified.

Now M. Clemenceau comes to the United States and says in effect that what France desires is a treaty, similar to the Pacific treaty, applied to Europe. In several addresses M. Clemeanceau has argued that the United States has undertaken to help maintain the peace of the Pacific and the Far East, why not Europe, where American interests are even greater?

Neither republican nor democratic senators interpreted the president's words as containing any possibility of reviving the Franco-British-American protection treaty, brought home from Paris by former President Wilson.

Mussolini Declares Germany Must Pay

LONDON, Dec. 9.—"Germany must pay up" was the agressive argument put forward by France and Italy today at the opening session of the allied premiers conference.

"Germany can pay and if there is no break in the Franco-British-Italian bloc the Germans will come to their senses and meet their obligations," declared Benito Mussolini, the agressive fiscisti premier of Italy at the conclusion of the afternoon meeting.

Headlights Cause Of Fatal Accident; Five People Drown

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Dec. 9.—Five persons were killed and two probably fatally inlured near here tonight when the automobile in which they were riding smashed into a culvert.

The accident was caused by the bright headlights of an approaching auto, it is believed. The victims in the wrecked car were drowned before assistance could reach them.

Appeals to District Court—Following a hearing in Justice Stevens' court Saturday afternoon, John J. Enright, was found guilty of a charge of assault and battery on his wife, Julia, November 21. He appealed the case to the district court. A peace warrant which had been filed against Enright was dismissed on motion of the county attorney.

Signs Wilson's Bonnd—S. S. Swift has signed Wade S. Wilson's bond as security for all costs in the election contest recount which Attorney Wilson, democratic and progressive candidate for county attorney brought in county court here against County Attorney Charles Matson, who was apparently re-elected. Mr. Matson filtd a motion to dismiss the suit because no bond had been filed.

Officers Re-elected—Dr. R. G. Clapp was re-elected president of the Lincoln Physical Education society at the annual meeting held at the Chamber of Commerce, Saturday noon. Miss Mildred Bryant, physical director of the Y. W. C. A. was re-elected secretary. Committe chairman to take care of the various activities of the organization were appointed. Delegates from all organizations in the city interested in physical education were present.

Sues for Injuries—Morris P. Warden brought suit in district court Saturday against the Burlington railroad for $3,000 for injuries received December 3, 1921, when he fell through the floor of a car while unloading coal. He was employed by the Whitebreast Coal & Lumber company at the time and ras been paid $277.50 and medical expenses by the company under the workmen's compensation act. Warden received injuries to his right leg and back, he states.

Vanderlip Files Suit—A. B. Vanderlip has brought suit in district court against Clifford E. Fritzlen for $5,781.97 damages resulting from the purchase of a sodateria and bakery business at 1434 O street. Vanderlip alleges Fritzlen held himself out as the agent for Clair H. Scott, who formerly operated the business. Vanderlip was compelled to discontinue the business because of large sums of money which he was forced to expend to keep Scott's creditors from seizing the equipment and fixtures of the place and Fritzlen took possession, the petition recites.

Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary

A reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Truell, 1205 North Thirty-third street, Saturday, December 2, in honor of their golden wedding anniversary. The home was beautifully decorated with quantities of roses and chrysanthemums. More than fifty friends and relatives called during the afternoon to offer congratulations and best wishes. Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Hansen of Davey, Neb., and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Meyers of Chicago. Many telegrams of congratulation were received from friends and relatives in Massachussetts, New Jersey, Wisconsin and Michigan.

Mr. Truell was born at Lowell, Mass., in 1850, and Mrs. Truell in Pennsylvania in 1853. They were married in Lyndon, Wis., December 2, 1872. In the spring of 1890 they moved to Nebraska and settled on their farm in the northern part of Lancaster county where they resided until four years ago when they moved to their present home in Lincoln. They have two children now living. Dr. Earl R. Truell, 3132 R street, and Miss Irene Truell, who lives with her parents.

Tax Case Comes to a Head—Some time this week, State Tax Commissioner Osborne hopes, the hearing will start before three federal judges in Lincoln on the Burlington railroad's suit to enjoin collection of a part of its 1922 taxes. Osborne and Special Counsel Hugh Lamaster spent four days at Omaha last week trying the Northwestern's 1921 tax suit before Judge Woodrough in federal court. The state presented 150 affidavits, most of which were taken in Cuming county. This case will be argued and submitted within a few days.

Compensation Awards—In the cases of two Lincoln men who were injured in two bakery establishments where they were employed, each has been allowed compensation by State Labor Secretary Kennedy. William Dack, who sustained a rupture while working for the Gooch Milling Co., will receive $15 a week during disability but is to undergo surgical treatment to improve his condition. Richard C. Popp, and employe of the Butternut bakery, bets $50 for 10 per cent loss of the use of the two fingers injured in a bread feeding mouler, besides his regular allowance for temporary disability, and his medical and hospital expenses.

Waives Hearing—George Wertz, Havelock, waived preliminary hearing on a charge of reckless driving in Justice HW. A. Hawes' court Saturday afternoon and was bound over to the district court and released on a bond of $500. The complaint brought by Emmanuel Knipple charges that on November 22, Wertz struck Floyd Severs with his automobile and seriously mained and disfigured Severs. When arraigned November 22, Wertz pleaded not guilty. A car driven by Wertz crashed into a car driven by E. G. Knipple at Twelfth and D streets, about 8 o'clock on the morning of November 22, pushing Knipple's car up on the curb. Knipple and Severs who was riding with him, were slightly injured.

Asks $5,000 Damages—Elizabeth Taun filed a petition in district court Saturday against Henry Bauer for $5,000 damages for injuries received October 8, last, when she fell through a trap door in the floor of the pantry of the house at 405 E street which Bauer owned and which she occupied as a renter. There was no basement to the house and Bauer, without the plantiff's knowledge, had opened the trap door and gone down into the space beneath, leaving the trap door open. It was dark at the time and the woman stepped through the opening, she declares. She was rendered unconscious, broke her leg and as a result of the fall was confined to her bed for four weeks, she alleges. The suit was brought through Attorney Lower and Sheehan, who filed a claim with the petition for $2,000 attorney fees for services to be rendered.

About People

Mrs. F. A. Roehl, 845 South Fifteenth street, entertained twenty guests Saturday at a 1 o'clock luncheon in honor of Mrs. E. R. Hoehl also a guest. The decorations were in Christmas colors.

The high score prizes were awarded to Mrs. J. W. Carothers and Mrs. E. R. Rohl. Low score prizes went to Mrs. George Geisler and Mrs. E. Voorhies.

Lincoln high school graduates of the class of 1920 hel dtheir annual re-union and banquet in the school cafeteria Friday evening, December 8. The banquet was primarily in honor of Verne Lewellen, a member of the class of 1920 and captain-elect of the 1923 Cornhuskers. One hundred members of the class attended. The class president and toastmaster presented Mrs. Miadefer, the cateress with a large bouquet of carnations as an expression of appreciation for her efforts.

Verne Lewellen made a brief talk thanking the members of the class and told of his hopes for the football team he will lead. Thomas Curran was toastmaster. Frances Newens, Sanford Littlefield, Wilda Weaver, Garrett Burt and Leslie Cadwallader responded with toasts. Davis Halbersleben gave several vocal numbers. He was accompanied by Miss Wilda Weaver.

Letters were read from former Principal Pickell, former superintendent, many members of the class who were unable to attend.

LOCAL LEGION TO ELECT OFFICIALS

Lincoln Post No. 3 Will Hold Annual Meeting Monday Night.

Will Select Paid Secretary For the Coming Year.

The annual meeting of the Lincoln post of the American Legion will be held at the club rooms, Sixteenth and O streets, Monday evening. All post officers with the exception of four executive committeemen, who hold over for six months will be elected at this time. For the first time there are a number of members receiving strong backing for the commandership, and a large turnout of the organization's 1,500 members is expected due to the competition.

Officers whose terms will expire January 1 are as follows: B. G. Westover, commander; Claude B. Ivers, Ernest U. Guenzel and Herman R. Heitkotter, Vice commanders; Clarence S. Kittinger, adjutant; Clarence C. Becker, finance officer; Rev. Harold C. Capsey, chaplain; Milton Barratt, Dean Warren A. Seavey, Edgar C. Westervelt and Leroy W. Hagerty, executive committeemen.

Committeemen who will hold over until July 1 are Guy J. Crook, Martin E. Hansen, Charles E. Reeve and Harry Rokahr. Mason Wheeler, recently elected to the executive committee, has resigned due to his ineligibility to serve.
gertvcin TCAd otfB aOandB QQ

The newly elected committee, which includes the post officers, will be expected to select a permanent paid secretary for the post, under a new plan of post organization which will be instituted the first of the year. Up to this time the adjutant has acted as secretary.

At a meeting last week of the executive committee several copies of the "History of the Nebraska American Legion," written by Frank B. O'Connell, were purchased and will be placed in the club rooms, city, state university libraries. Enlarged pictures of the post's past commanders, E. B. Chappell and George W. Fawell, jr., have been hung in the club rooms.

Half of Ribbons To Adams County

(Special to The Star.)

HASTINGS, Neb., Dec. 9.—Adams county poultry raisers captured forty-six out of ninety ribbons at the Clay county poultry show which has just closed. County agents Davis won the grand championship on a white Plymouth Rock cock. There were 800 birds entered in the show. The Adams county poultry show opens next Wednesday morning with prizes offered amounting to about $700.

New Methodist Church at Fremont

FREMONT, Neb., Dec. 9.—The new Methodist church recently completed at Fremont, cost in round numbers $100,000. It is one of the finest churches in Nebraska.

Fremont for many years had lagged in its church improvements and the small size and old-fashioned appearance of its houses of worship had been a subject of much comment. But this year both the Methodists and the Baptists erected fine new pressed brick church buildings at a total combined cost of nearly $170,000, and the enterprising Pathfinder city bids fair for a conspicuous place for the excellence of its church buildings. The coming year in all probability will see the erection of at least one and possibly two more fine churches in Fremont. In view of the location here of Midland college and the Western Theological seminary, both Lutheran institutions, the Lutheran denomination has become particularly strong. Salem Lutheran church congregation has created a building fund and plans have been drawn for another conspicuously fine church building, to stand on a site near the City park.

Trinity Lutheran church, also, will erect a new permanent church structure within the next few months.

Own Your Own Home Now

It is not necessary to wait until you have saved enough to buy a home in Lincoln. If you have saved part, say 35 or 40 per cent is enough, our Prudential Monthly Payment Plan enables you to buy your home now and finish paying for it while you live in it and enjoy it.

Do not deceive yourself into thinking it is cheaper to rent than to own your home. There may not be much difference in the way of dollars and cents—but the home owner derives a satisfaction from living "under his own vine and fig tree" which cannot come to the renter.

Our Prudential loan cannot exceed $8,000 and must be for multiples of $100—not for fractions and odd amounts. It runs 60 months at 6 per cent interest. Each month you are required to pay the interest earned the previous month and 50 cents on each $100 of the loan. Thus the interest payments grow smaller each month but the reduction of principal is constant.

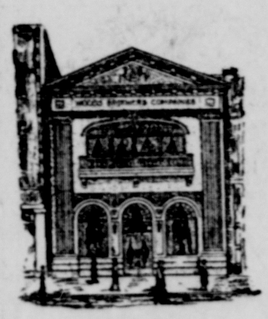

Suppose your loan is for $4,000: Your payment on principal is $20.00 each month, and the first month's interest is also $20.00, but decreases 10 cents per month. Hence, on such a loan you would pay $40.00, then $39.90, then $39.80 and so on for the 60 months, when your last payment would be $34.10, and you would still owe $2,800 on the principal.

At the end of five years you will have paid off 30 per cent of the principal and the 70 per cent unpaid can be renewed on this same plan, or as a straight loan, if you prefer. If you are a worker on salary, wage-earner, or in business or a profession of your own, this is an ideal way of buying a home and using it as you pay for it. Talk with Mr. Carlsen about this.

ARRANGE FIRST SERIES DEBATES

High School Forensic Contests to Get Under Way In February.

For the sixteenth annual contests of the Nebraska high school debating league, which will be on the question of Nebraska adopting the Kansas industrial court system, district directors are arranging schedules of first-series debates which will begin by the first of February. In the East-Central district (Principal C. W. Taylor, Teachers College high school, Lincoln, director) are eight members divided into two groups: 1, Cathedral high school, College View, Eagle, and Lincoln; 2, Ashland, Havelock, University Place and Waverly.

The West-Central district (Supt. B. A. Kennedy, Greeley, director) has seven members—Ansley, Comstock, Arnold, Greeley, Mason City, North Loup and Wolbach.

In the Southwestern district (Supt. J. C. Mitchell, Holdrege director) are ten members—Bertrand, Cambridge, Curtis, Holdrege, McCook, Orleans, Oxford, Ragan, and Republican City.

In the Northeastern district (Supt. Conrad Jacobson, Wayne, director) are fifteen schools.

In the territory of the Western district (Supt. W. J. Braham, North Platte, director) will be at least nine schools—Elmcreek, Gibbon, North Platte, Grant, Venango, Madrid, Big Springs, Paxton, and Ogallala.

The membership in the central, eastern, northwestern, southern and southeastern districts have not been announced.

Bibliography No. 1 and abstracts of authoritative articles on the Kansas industrial court system are being made by members of the University of Nebraska 1922 debate teams against Iowa and South Dakota.

MEET TO DISCUSS CUT IN TAXATION

First Meeting of Nebraska Taxpayers League' Begins Monday.

HASTINGS, Neb., Dec. 9.—Though the movement did not originate here, Adams county people are evincing keen interest in the first state wide meting of the Nebraska tax payers' league, which will be held here next Monday afternoon.

C. G. Lane, president of the exchange national bank, has sent letters to a number of farmers, inviting them to attend the convention. At least three from each township is the representation sought for this county. Several other business men are taking an active part in the preliminary preparations.

It is understood here that leaders of the movement in Aurora have sent in vitations to twenty counties, inviting attendance at the convention. Among other matters to be considered will probably be a request to the legislature for an investigation of state university expenditures.

SHELLEY IS COMMANDER.

(Special to The Star.)

FAIRBURY, Neb., Dec. 9. — The American Legion of Jefferson county held annual election of officers Thursday night. Ciel. R. Shelley was chosen commander: Frank Leger, adjutant; Harrold Livingston, finance officer; Glen Stone and Herman Fast, vice commanders; Earl Sweeney, sergeant at arms. The attendance from outside towns was disappointing on account of the icy condition of the roads.

UNIVERSITY NOTES.

"We'd like to see how it happened," said Notre Dame in writing Dr. George E. Condra, director of the conservation and survey division, for a film of the Nebraska-Notre Dame clash Thanksgiving when the Cornhuskers defeated their strongest rival of the season by a score of 14 to 6. Doctor Condra sent a film of the game to South Bend Wednesday. Motion pictures of the contest were shown last week at the Rialto in Lincoln, the Strand in Omaha, and the Orpheum in St. Joseph, Mo. Along with the Cornhusker-Notre Dame film at the Rialto theatre were shown pictures of the Army-Navy and Princeton-Harvard games, which served to accentuate the radical difference between the fields on which are played the big eastern games and the games at Nebraska. Appreciation of the fine treatment received from the university and the city of Lincoln is expressed in the letter to Dr. Condra from Notre Dame university officials.

The women's Cornhusker party and the men's Cornhusker banquet, annual events, will be held Friday evening, December 15—a closed university night. The banquet is in honor of the football team at the conclusion of the season, and this year also at the conclusion of a successful campaign for the memorial stadium. It will be held at the Scottish Rite temple. Robert M. Joyce, Lincoln, will be toastmaster. The woman's party, which will be held in the armory, is in charge of the Women's Self-Governing association, fosters the part for the purpose of getting the women students acquainted with the university. 'Stunts' by sororities and dormitory organizations and dancing will make up the program.

La Tremaines, a dramatic club recently formed at the university, will present this year several plays in French. The officers of the club are president, Henry A. Sargent, '24, Lincoln; vice-president, Majorie Wyman, '24, Lincoln; secretary-treasurer, Annis Robbins, '23, Lincoln, sergeant-at-arms, Anelta Lavely, '23, Corning, Iowa. The faculty advisory board is composed of T. Agnes Gordon, Anton H. Jensen, and Gustave O. Fuchs, instructor in Romance languages. The members of the membership committee are Mariannas Cummings, '20, Lincoln, Viola Loosbrock, '23, Lincoln, Mason L. Merrill, '24, Lincoln; and Miss Gordon and Miss Eleanor Drebert from the faculty. Students interested in French from the conservational or dramatic points of view are invited to apply to the membership committee. The comedy "Edgar et so bonne" by Eugene Labiche will be presented at the first open meeting, Saturday zh December 16, in Faculty hall, the Temple.

Things to Wear Are the Things Most Appreciated by All Men at Christmas

A Men's Store's Christmas Message to Women

YOU know how hard it is to choose gifts for men. The problem always resolves itself into "something to wear" and then begins the frantic search. Because few women keep in close touch with men's styles, you're not always sure whether what you buy is in good taste or not.

It's our business to have correct things for men; it will be a pleasure to serve you. Whatever you decide on you'll find it here—the best that can be had, and most reasonably priced. You find courteous, unhurried service here, too.

Spend a moment going over this list

Silk or Wool Hosiery

The ideal Christmas gift, when they are such qualities as Interwoven, Holeproof and Phoenix. Lisles, Fibres, Silks, Wools, Silk and Wool and Cashmere. In all the new desirable colors—plain, embroidered and drop stitched. 40c and up.

The New Scarfs

Practical, swagger Camel Hair Scarfs. Large, bold two color square designs are shown in smart combinations of Camel and Alapaca, brown and sand, navy and camel. These new scarfs are in keeping with the spirit of sport and in these fine qualities are highely desirable. 1.25 to 3.50.

Men's Dress Gloves

Perrin's or Faultless make. Gloves of fine kid, cape, mocha and buck. Silk lined, fur lined, wool lined or unlined. Strap-wrist styles—long gauntlets—soft gauntlets—gloves of every description—sizes to fit all hands and priced to fit all purses. The finer ones start at 1.75.

Linen Handkerchiefs

Pure linen handkerchiefs. Cost less than for many years. Neatly hemmed linen handkerchiefs 35c—finer ones 50c and 1.00. Initial Linens—50c to 1.00. Fancy border lawns, 35c. Silk pongees, white and fancy silks, 50c to 1.00.

His Favorite Collars

This is a gift often overlooked—and certainly every man would appreciate a half dozen or a dozen of his favorite collar. His old collar has the name of the style, size and the make plainly marked on the inside; write it down or bring the collar. Arrow and Ide stiff collars—Aratex semi-stiff—Manhattan and Van Housen soft collars.

Fad of the Season

Wool Sports Hose for men in a wide variety of styles and colors. Embracing soft Wool Hose of the finest English and domestic makes. Handsome contrasting clox, fashionable plaids and striped patterns are much in the forground for winter wear—50c to 2.50.

House Coats

From time immemorial the House Coat has been the excuse to keep him home nights. It still works. The coats this season are very practical and extremely dressy and come in all wool worsteds, matelasses and silks, all sizes. Priced at 7.50 to 20.00.

Full Dress and Tuxedo Vests

The social season is on—dinners, dances, theatres, weddings and receptions. They all demand correct after 6 P. M. attire. You'll find here just the proper waist coat for Tuxedo or Full Dress wear—distinguished by their quiet simplicity, individuality and correct style. 6.50 to 12.50.

His Christmas Hat

Don't buy him a Hat. Buy him a Hat Order and let him select his own. Velours, Beavers and Rough Felts are the popular choice. The good ones sell for $5 to 12.50.

Fine Dress Shirts

What finer or more appreciated gift than Manhattan, Yorke or Excello Shirts. They are the finest shirts made. The patterns and fabrics are exclusive and are the very best of imported and domestic materials. Silk Shirts, Fibre Silk Shirts, Fine Silk Stripes, Silk Broadcloths, English Broadcloths, Russian Cords, Woven Madras, Oxfords and Soisettes. Neckband or collar attached styles. 2.50 and up.

Men's Sport Coats

They are very stylish, and wonderfully comfortable. You'll find here Camel's Hairs, Brushed Wools, Heathers and hard finished coats in solid colors and combinations. Plenty of the new popular light colors in jacket styles with two or four pockets. These coats can be worn under the dress coat. They come in all sizes, 34 to 46. Buy him one for Christmas—he'll like it. Our special is priced at 3.95.

Heavy Coat Sweaters

And Pull-over Sweaters in all wool yarns. Shown in all of the desirable colors and best of makes—some with trimmed cuffs and bottom. Pure worsted Shakers and wool Jumbos, including the celebrated Bradley line. Remember his Sweater needs Christmas; you will find some of these extra qualities priced as low as $5.

Lounging Robes

Here is where the gift giver who wishes to please has a wide variety of choice. Beginning with the more simple Terry Bath Robes, our Holiday assortment includes Blanket Robes of all descriptions and patterns—many fine all Wool Robes, Satin and Cord trimmed in large medium and small sizes. In addition you'll find here many gorgeous Silk Robes, beautiful patterns and styles. The price range is 4.95 to 25.00.

Fashion Knit Ties

We are devoting a special space to this item for the reason that "Fashionknit" Neckwear is in a class by itself. They are all pure silks and the combinations of colorings and patterns is distinctly different from those found in any other neckwear. Buy "Fashionknits"—they wear—they please—and they cost no more than the other kind. Priced 1.65 to 3.50.

Holiday Neckwear

You will find here Lincoln's finest selection of desirable Men's Neckwear, Silks, Satins and Knits and Fabrics of every wanted weave, both imported and domestic. Colors—lots of it. That's the stylish neckwear thought for this season. Literly thousands of Ties are here in unusually attractive patterns. Every one with the ear marks of quality and priced at 50c to 2.50.

Pajamas and Gowns

"Rock Me to Sleep" applies to older people as well. Quality Sleeping Garments have long been the choice of Christmas gift givers.
Here you will find Manhattan and other make Pajamas in Silks, Linens, Fibres, striped madras, fine mercerized cloths. Perfectly tailored garments, elaborately ornamented and trimmed. The better ones 2.00 to 10.00.

About People

Miss Frances Hayes is spending the week end in Omaha as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scott. Miss Rachel Metcalfe will entertain twelve guests at tea this afternoon in her honor.

Miss Helen Quinn of Aurora is taking the leading part in "The Girl Out Yonder," which is being given this week under the auspices of the Aurora post of the American Legion. The play will be given two nights in Aurora and in five or six of the surrounding towns. Miss Quinn attended the university and is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta.

Mrs. M. E. Morse is leaving today for Omaha where she will spend the next few weeks with her daughter, Mrs. John R. Golden and Mr. Golden. She will return about the middle of January.

Mrs. Frank V. Tilton is ill at the Lincoln sanitarium.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Woodward left Wednesday evening to return to their home in Los Angeles, Cal., after a visit of several months in Lincoln, their old home with old friends and relatives.

Mrs. Rolland F. Ireland left Thursday for Huntington, W. Va., where she was called by the death of a cousin. She plans to stop at Granville for a few days on her return.

Mr. and Mrs. S. O. Salisbury recevied a cablegram this week from Manila, P. I., announcing the birth of a son to their daughtir, Mrs. H. C. Ingles and Major Ingles on December 1. Major and Mrs. Ingles are now at Camp McKinley just outside of Manila where Major Ingles was ordered for duty a year ago.

Complimentary to Miss Elizabeth Felt, who is the house guest of Mrs. Raymond Farquhar, Mr. and Mrs. Carlisle Logan-Jones entertained ten at a theatre party last night at the Temple theatre for "East is West." The theatre party was followed by a supper party at Logan-Jones home, 1845 D street.

Mr. and Mrs. Preston Owen of Chicago announce the birth of a son on December 6. Mrs. Owen was formerly Miss Ruth Temple of Lexington, a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma at the university and a graduate of Northwestern university. Mr. and Mrs. Owen will leave Chicago shortly to make their home in Philadelphia, where Mr. Owen will take a new position.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Hendry have as their guests Mrs. Harry Chaney of Bakersfield, Cal., and Mrs. Henry Mahaney and daughter, Miss Dolly, of Orwood, Cal.

Allen J. Sutherland, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Sutherland, who is now cashier of the bank at Palmer, Kas., has accepted a banking position with one of the large branch banking houses of Oakland and San Francisco, Cal. His family will move to the coast soon after the holidays.

Word has been received from Charles Weidman, who is touring the United States with Ruth St. Denis, Ted Shawn and their dancers, that he will spend the week before Christmas in Lincoln with relatives and friends. After an engagement at the Brandeis theater in Omaha on Dec. 14 the company will leave for Sioux Falls, S. D. From there they will go to Davenport, Ia., and then to Sioux City. The following week is an open week, the only one during the tour, which fortunately is Christmas week. On Dec. 26 they will play at Denver.

The company, which is much larger this year than last year, features, in addition to Mr. Shawn, Ruth St. Denis, Martha Graham, Mr. Weidman and a ballet of seven girls. The tour this year is an extensive one including nearly every city of importance in the United States and ending the last of April.

Mr. Weidman's work has received much praise. His portrait appears in this month's issue of "Shadowland."

Charles H. Morrill went to his home at Stromsburg Tuesday, after a visit of nearly two months in Lincoln. Mr. Morrill served as president of the universdity board of regents for some twelve years. He has taken an active part in the business and railroad as well as in the educational affairs of the state. He has been a liberal donor to the Nebraska state museum, the Nebraska State Historical society the library, and other institutions. In recognition of his many services, Morrill county was named after him. He has written and published a book dealing wih the history of Nebraska.

MILLIGAN BANKER PLEADS INNOCENCE

Kotas Arraigned On Charge Of Making False Statements.

(Special to The Star.)

GENEVA, Neb., Dec. 9.—The first step was taken towards straightening the tangled affairs of the Nebraska State bank of Milligan, when Adolph Kotas, former cashier of the bank, appeared in court here and pleaded innocence to charges of making false statements to the state banking bureau.

The five counts against Kotas were for alleged wrong information given to Jay M. Riley, bank examiner, when he was going over the books of the bank some time before it was closed. The former cashier was ordered by District Judge R. D. Brown to appear before him on the first day of the next session of court, which will be held probably early in January. A bond of $5,000, for his appearance will be supplied.

The Milligan bank is now in the hands of a receiver, B. A. Lynn, who presented in court an application for approval of the major portion of the claims or depositors and draft holders. These amounted to $172,790.67, and were approved by the court. Mr. Lynn asked that claims of something over $16,000 be disallowed.

Claimants whose requests were opposed are ordered to show cause on or before January 1, why their claims should not be disallowed.

The receiver has about $96,000 on hand, including cash turned over when he took charge of the bank, and what he has collected.

Alliance to Have A Community Tree

(Special to The Star.)

ALLIANCE, Neb., Dec. 9.—Plans are being made by City Manager N. A. Kemish for a community Christmas tree and public celebration similar to the event which was a big success here last year. A 25-foot tree has been ordered from the Black Hills and will be erected on the street and laborately decorated. The Chamber of Commerce an all civic, fraternal and church organization are co-operating to make the occasion a success. Presents of candy, popcorn and nuts will be given to all school children both of the city and country who attend the celebration. A musical program will be given consisting of commulty singing, Christmas carols by the church choirs and a concert by the Boy Scout band. The program will be held Sunday evening, December 24.

Aurora Board to Retain Doremus

(Special to The Star.)

AURORA, Neb., Dec. 9.—J. A. Doremus has just been re-elected superintendent of the Aurora schools for three years from the close of this school year at the annual salary of $3,000. Mr. Doremus has been superintendent here for five yers. He came to Aurora from Auburn. Since he became superintendent two new buildings have been built and an old building rebuilt so that Aurora now has four excellent buildings while the bonded indebtedness is but $85,000. The attendance in the Aurora schools is 865.

Fremont to Quit Using Oil Burners

(Special to The Star.)

FREMONT, Neb., Dec. 9.—At the city plant it was admitted that the oil burners recently installed at heavy cost, are to be replaced again by coal furnaces, as a means of furnishing the steam for operating the water and light systems. iCty officials were very reticent to discuss the subject. They were very enthusiastic immediately after the installation of the oil burners over the alleged saving in cost of operation.

Badly Injured By Driven Golf Ball

(Special to The Star.)

AURORA, Neb., Dec. 9.—Otis F. Hartquist was the victim of a painful accident on the country club golf grounds and now wears a disfigured face. While he was waiting his turn to drive he was struck on the cheek bone and nose by a ball driven by Dr. S. A. Hensen, fracturing the bones of the face and nearly driving his glasses into his eye. Had the ball been a little more direct, the sight of one eye would have been destroyed.

SHIP EGGS BY MAIL.

(Special to The Star.)

WYMORE, Neb., Dec. 9.—Merchants are shipping eggs to Kansas City by parcel post, and are well pleased with results. The postage on a case of eggs is 57 cents while the express rate is 93 cents.

BEET FARMERS TO GET MORE MONEY

Large Sum Payable Under Sliding Scale Factory Contracts.

(Special to The Star.)

SCOTTSBLUFF, Neb., Dec. 9.—The Great Western Sugar company has announced that it will pay sugar beet farmers an additional $1 per ton, above the $5 minimum, as a first paymenut under the sliding scale contract on December 22.

This means that in the four factory districts of Scottsbluff, Gering, Mitchell and Bayard, the sum of $647,000 will be paid out.

The company announces that it does not consider this the final payment by any means and many beet growers believe that the final bonus, based upon the selling price for sugar, will amount to about $2 a ton, giving farmers of this region a million and a half dollars in excess of the three and a half million guarantee under their contracts.

The payment is expected to materially aid business conditions in this region.

Speaks Aloud After Months Of Silence

(Special to The Star.)

GENEVA, Neb., Dec. 9.—After being obliged to talk in whispers for three months Mrs. J. P. Gergen was able to speak a few words aloud Saturday. Mrs. Gergen was shocked by lightning on September 3 and for a time was unable to swallow or even whisper. She went to Lincoln a few days ago and took an electric treatment. On her return home she was seized with nausea and felt something give way in her throat. Immediately she could speak a word or two aloud. She is encouraged and expects to fully regain her speech.

Fourteenth Child Buresh Home

(Special to the Star.)

WYMORE, Neb., Dec. 9.—The stork visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Buresh this week, for the fourteenth time in twenty-five years. Of the fourteen children, four boys and eight girls are living. Mr. Buresch runs a tailor shop on Noth Seventh avenue.

MILES PLEADS GUILTY.

(Special to The Star.)

ALLIANCE, Neb., Dec. 9.—Michael Miles, local negro pleaded guilty before Judge Westover in district court to a charge of assault with intent to do great bodily injury and was sentenced to from one to five years in the penitentiary. He confessed to making an attack on another negro, Virgil G. Motley, with a razor and slashing him about the neck. Trouble between their wives instigated the attack, officers said. Miles was first charged with cutting with intent to kill, but on his agreement to plead guilty the charge was reduced.

ARM IS BROKEN.

(Special to The Star.)

WYMORE, Neb., Dec. 9.—Rev. W. J. N. Robertson of Axtell, Kas., had the misfortune to fall on the icy sidewalks in Wymore, breaking the bones in his left forearm. He was directed to the office of Dr. Gillespie where he was given medical attention. Mr. and Mrs. Robertson were on their way home from Lincoln where they had been visiting relatives. Having motor trouble on the way they stopped here to get the car fixed.

SHIPPERS NAME OFFICERS.

(Special to The Star.)

WYMORE, Neb., Dec. 9.—Members of the Farmers Shipping association have elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, Eve Closs; vice president, W. H. Davis; shipper, T. C. Jones. Directors: R. S. Jones, Hugh Williams and Will Closs. The association shipped twenty-five cars of stock during the year just closed.

MOST CORN CRIBBED.

(Special to The Star.)

NELIGH, Neb., Dec. 9.—According to information received from various farmers throughout Antelope county corn still in the field is a hard proposition to husk. It was down badly before the wind storm last week but that finished it and there is now practically none of it standing up. Fortunately most of the grain has been cribbed.

BURN WOOD AT WYMORE.

(Special to The Star.)

WYMORE, Neb., Dec. 9—Now that corn husking is finished many farmers are getting out wood and bringing it to town where it sells for $4 per rick, or 07 for two ricks which made a big load. Coal is scarce and high priced and fully half the people of the city are burning wood.

POTATO EXHIBITS BEST EVER SHOWN

Annual Convention At Alliance Is Very Largely Attended.

Kimball County Carries Off First Prize For Dry Land Stock.

(Special to The Star.)

ALLIANCE, Neb., Dec. 9.—The sixth annual convention and show of the Nebraska Potato Improvement association closed a three-day session here Friday. More than 200 potato growers and experts from Nebraska and several other states attended. Interesting programs were heard daily, at which all phases of the potato industry were discussed, including diseases, culture soil preparation storage, grading certification, shipping and marketing.

Five western Nebraska counties had county exhibits at the show n addition to 230 individual exhibits of growers in several counties. These counties were Kimball, Sioux, Scotts Bluff, Sheridan and Dawes. Kimball county was awarded first prize on dry land seed Red Triumphs, the prize being a large silver loving cup donated by C. A. Newberry, hardware merchant of Alliance. Dawes county won second prize, a small silver loving cup, while Sheridan drew third and Scotts Bluff county fourth. The latter two prizes were glit ribbons adorned with flag emplems. A large number of small prizes for individual exhibits were also awarded.

A. G. Tolaas, chief seed potato inspector of the Minnesota state deparement of agriculture, who was judge of both the county and individual exhibits, stated that the exhibits were the largest and the finest he had ever seen at any potato show. The high quality of the tubers shown, he said, showed an awakened interest on the part of western Nebraska potato growers in raising prize stock and that a decided improvement in quality was noticeable over previous state exhibits he had attended in Nebraska.

The grand sweepstakes prize for the highest scoring individual exhibit of potatoes was awarded to Fred Stanfield of Kimball on dry land commercial Red Triumph stock. This was a handsome silver trophy cup. First, second, third and fourth prizes were awarded for the various classifications, according to length of time of certification field and trial records and show samples.

Officers of the association were re-elected for the ensuing year as follows:

President, J. Pedrett, Kimball; vice president, C. O. Sawyer Lincoln; secretary-treasurer H. O. Werner associate horticulturalist of the University of Nebraska college of agriculture.

Fine Poultry Is Seen at Columbus

(Special to The Star.)

COLUMBUS, Neb., Dec. 8.—Prof. Charles Cornman of the extension department of the state college of agriculture finished the task of judging the exhibits at the seventh annual show of the Platte Valley Poultry and Pet Stock association. He remarked that many of the birds are on par with any that will be seen in any show in the state this year. Despite the unfavorable weather there was a very satisfactory attendance throughout the dates of the show.

Chicago Bandits Steal Policies

(Special to the Star.)

NELIGH, Neb., Dec. 9.—Walter G. Remig of this place, who is the representative of the Equitable Assurance society of New York, this week received two insurance policies written for a client and with them was a letter stating that they were duplicates of polices previously sent. The originals having been a part of the air mail stolen at Chicago recently by bandits who held up the driver between the postoffice and the flying field.

PROWLERS AGAIN VISIT BOSS FARM

Neighborhood Aroused Over Actions of Trio of Mystery Men.

COLUMBUS, Neb., Dec. 9.—Just forty-eight hours after the first visit the unidentified trio of men who exchanged shots with Carl Boss, a farmer near Duncan when he drove them off his place with a shotgun paid a second visit to the same farm. Mr. Boss saw two of them lurking about the barns and opened fire on them. After he had sent two shots in their direction they beat a hasty retreat to a point near the schoolhouse north of his farm where the third member of the party with a car awaited them.

They did not, as on the previous occasion, shoot at Boss. He at once phoned the sheriff, who on reaching the Boss farm found fifty farmers assembled armed to the teeth. The posse followed the trail into the sand hills ,where they lost track of them. The entire neighborhood is aroused and any more of the mysterious visits may lead to the organization of a vigilence committee among the farmers for protection.

Syracuse Pupils Present Operetta

(Special to The Star.)

SYRACUSE, Neb., Dec. 9.—The Syracuse high school chorus gave a musical comedy-operetta at the opera house Friday evening under the direction of Miss Blanche Wyant, music supervisor of the schools. It was "The Gypsy Rover" and was an elaborate production for a high school. It was very successfully presented to a packed house and the costumes of those who took part very fine, the first acts being in gypsy dress and the final act in old English period of 1778 during the reign of George III. It was produced under the direction of Miss Wyant assisted by Miss Elsie Talich as stage director and Miss Ruth Coddington as accompanist. Music by the school orchestra of ten pieces, an illustrated song by the primary pupils and the Fairy drill and Gypsy chorus were special features in addition to the play.

CRETE NOTES.

(Special to The Star.)

CRETE, Neb., Dec. 9.—T. H. Miller, who sold his fine home recently to A. L. Johnson, left Crete Friday for Palo Alto, Cal., where he will spend the winter with his daughter, Mrs. A. G. Kennedy.

The various women's clubs of Crete have contributed to the seven union colleges of China, Japan and India as follows: Avis $15, Fortnightly $10, O. E. S. kensington $5, Wednesday $5, Sorosis $2, P. E. O. $2.50. The appeal is being made principally to women's clubs, as the movement is interdenomination.

Saturday was Heart day in Crete, the school children tagging everyone, the money going to the Nebraska society for homeless children.

A monthly "go to church" Sunday is being inaugurated by protestant and Catholic churches alike. The Rotary club will also take an active part in the movement.

C. D. Blauvelt, who recently bought the Crete News and took possession on December 1, has leased the paper and plant to the former owner, R. L. Attebury for six months and has returned to Tecumseh.

The Crete high school gave an art exhibit December 7, 8 and 9. More than 150 pictures were loaned by a Lincoln firm and a fine program was rendered each evening.

Charles Dedio has sold his soft drink parlor and bought the Wendelin farm, to which he will move the first of the year. John Wendelin bought the F. Tavis farm and will occupy it as soon as Mr. Tavis moves to Crete, which he expects to do as soon as desirable property can be found. L. B. Hokuf has bought out the Stipet soft drink parlor.

A community Christmas tree is to be arranged for at the next meeting of the Commercial club. It will probably he held in Miller's park.

Harris Is Found Not Guilty On a Charge of Felony

(Special to The Star.)

NELIGH, Neb., Dec. 9.—after a trial in district court lasting nearly two days, Robert Harris, who was charged with receiving stolen property, was found not guilty. It was alleged that the defendant had bought 100 chickens which had been stolen from Henry Rich, who resides near Brunswick. There was no question about the poultry having been stolen, but Harris denied knowledge of the fact. The man of whom he said h e had purchased them had left the country. The case attracted much atention.

MIDLAND COLLEGE.

A number of new students, mostly boys from the farms, are enrolling to take work in the winter course offered by the School of Commerce. Classes began Tuesday, December 5. Students were entering all week.

The boys of west hall are having a touch of real winter weather these days ,owing to the furnace for that hall having broken. It is being repaired as quickly as possible.

Superintendent A. H. Waterhouse of the Fremont city schools gave an excellent adress in chapel Tuesday morning, December 5. As this week is being observed as National Education week, Mr. Waterhouse brought out four points of our national illiteracy, physical training, Americanism, and equal opportunity for education.

The Y. W. C. A. and the Y. M. C A. had a joint meeting Wednesday morning, December 6, in order to hear Mr. Davis, a missionary from Tokyo, Japan, speak. Mr. Atkinson, the Fremont Y. M. C. A. secretary, led the devotions, and Mr. Davis spoke to the students concerning our relations with foreign countries and especially Japan.

A reception was given by the boys of the Western theological seminary on Friday evening, December 8.

BY "CY" SHERMAN.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 9.—Faculty delegates of the Missouri Valley conference, holding their annual December meeting today in Kansas City, placed themselves on record as opposed to adding to the present conference membership of nine schools. One of the prominent agricultural colleges of the Missouri Valley region presented an application to be taken into full membership. The eligibility standards of institution in question were declared entirely to the conference delegates, yet a motion was adopted proclaiming against a policy of expansion at the present time. The school in question may be considered for membership in the future, but the degegates intimated that a body of more than nine institutions, the present membership, might be unwieldy and, therefore, undesirable.

Of particular interest to the University of Nebraska however, was the development at today's conference pow-wow that the University of Missouri alumni residing in Kansas City are organizing to demand that the Columbia institution shall reinstate Henry F. Schulte, head track coach at Nebraska for the past three years, as coach of football and track at the Tiger school. Schulte served Missouri "U" as football and track coach prior to joining the Nebraska coaching staff three years ago. Missouri bootball was so badly in the dumps this year that the alumni are demanding a new deal and a new head coach at Columbia.

Missouri Grads Active.

Several influential Missouri grads in Kansas City approached Schulte today the moment the Cornhuskers' head track coach showed up at the conference meeting. The alumni offer is reputed to involve the subscription of a substantial sum to aid the Columbia authorities in outbidding Nebraska, in event the affair comes to be a matter of price.

Schulte declined tonight to admit that he would consider a formal offer from the Missouri authorities, although he did not attempt to conceal that he had been approached by the Missouri "grads." Dr. Manley, Missouri's faculty delegate to the conference, and Athletic Director Clevenger both declared they had no information on the subject other a general knowledge that the alumni had started an agitation designed to "put Schulte across" as head mentor of track and football at the Columbia school.

It was intimated by Schulte, however, that the price phase of the situation might not be paramount.

"I have had three offers and opportunities to resign at Nebraska during the past two years," he said. "But I turned them down."

Schulte May Not Accept.

Schulte's annual salary at Nebraska track coach and coach of the football line players is $3,600. The Missouri alumni are reputed to be willing to go as high as $5,000 in their effort to induce Schulte to return to Columbia. Director Dawson of Nebraska tonight paid a high compliment to Schulte, admitting that the Cornhusker school could ill afford to lose the man who has turned out two championship track teams in the Valley Conference and, in addition, has rendered invaluable assistance in coaching Cornhusker football forwards.

Drake Side-Steps Huskers.

Director Dawson had easy sledding in felling Nebraska's football book of eight gridiron engagements for 1923. To the games with Illinois, Notre Dame and Syracuse, previously arranged, the Cornhuskers' director added contests with five Valley conference schools—Oklahoma, Missouri, Kansas, Iowa State and Kansas Aggies. The Drake Bulldogs, who filed a half claim on the right to a tie with Nebraska at the end of the 1922 season, ran true to form by side-stepping a game with the Huskers next year. Coach Ossie Solem frankly confessed that the Bulldogs did not rate with the Cornhuskers and begged to be excused from meeting the Dawson eleven next year.

Director Dawson's decision to dedicate the new Nebraska stadium on Armistice day, November 10, (Saturday), in conjunction with the Kansas game represents a return of a compliment paid Nebraska by the K. U. management last November. The new K. U. memorial stadium dedication was reserved for the Nebraska game, an appreciation which Dawson held deserved return consideration on the part of the Cornhusker school.

Kansas to Dedicate Stadium.

"Notre Dame and Syracuse," Dawson said, "will be great games in Lincoln next fall and attract great crowds. Neither of these games needs extra attraction, such as a homecoming celebration or stadium dedication. The Kansas Aggies-Nebraska game last month in Lincoln was a brilliant affair and a fine entertainment for Cornhusker followers. Coach Bachman has flattering prospects for next fall and I predict that our Thanksgiving day battle with the Kansas Aggies will be one of the best games of our 1923 season."

Director Schabinger of Creighton university attended the session of the directors and coaches, bidding for the establishment of football relations with Missouri Valley schools.

While failing to line a gridiron game with a Valley opponent he was successful in scheduling Kansas and Nebraska for basketball games, both of which are to be staged on the Creighton floor in Omaha. The Kansas game has been dated for January 8 and the Nebraska game for March 5. Schabinger pledged the directors that Creighton had adopted and is enforcing Valley conference eligibility rules and expressed the hope that he might land one or more of the Valley schools for football dates a year hence.

The conference delegates awarded the Valley track meet and tennis meet to Iowa State college at Ames. The track meet was scheduled for the final Saturday in May and the tennis meet for the Friday and Saturday of the same week.

COLLEGE PLAYERS ON ROLL OF HONOR

Honor Award to Football Men Of Outstanding Merit During Season.

Twenty-nine Athletes Receive Recognition From Coaches And Officials.

THE STAR'S STATE COLLEGE ROLL OF HONOR.
(Season of 1922.)

ENDS—Harrell, Wesleyan; Frary, Peru Normal; Caldwell, Grand Island; Williamson, Hastings.

TACKLES—Richapaugh, Wayne; Raitt, Wesleyan; E. Hansen, Central; Luschei, Midland; Shull, Cotner.

GUARDS — Sukovaty, Doane; Heyde, Grand Island; Smith, Kearney; Bock, Cotner.

CENTERS—Parkinson, Wesleyan; Donavan, Grand Island; Elliott, Midland.

QUARTERBACKS — Horn, Midland; Alabaster, Wesleyan; Willy, Peru; Rehder, Grand Island.

HALFBACKS—Sink, Grand Island; McKelvie, Chadron; Marsh, Central; Donlinger, Kearney.

FULLBACKS—Kummer, Kearney; Buitgenbaugh, Peru; Adams, Midland; McDermott, Grand Island; Buck, Doane.

Honorable Mention.

Donahoe, Wesleyan; Milam, Peru; Goodsell, Midland; Stevens, Hastings; Morgan, York; D. Miller, Wayne.

BY GREGG MCBRIDE.

Selection of an Honor Roll of Nebraska college football athletes is as usual, a difficult task. The past season of gridiron activity has been one which has feature few outstanding stars whose performance on the rectangle would seem to stamp them as performers of unusual merit.

Elevens have, on the other hand, featured team-play realizing that games are to be won not so much by individual effort as united teamwork in progressing across the enemy's goal line.

Places on The Star's Roll of Honor are awarded athletes who in the opinion of coaches and leading conference officials are worthy of this distinction. Each conference coach is according the opportunity to cast his ballot for worthy athletes.

The Roll, therefore represents not the individual view of the writer but rather the copiled opinion of conference coaches and officials who have seen the teams in action.

Twenty-nine are Honored.

Twenty-nine athletes are placed on the Roll this year as against twenty-five according the distinction last season.

Four athletes were selected for the wing positions. They are Harrell of Wesleyan; Frary of Peru; Caldwell of Grand Island and Williamson of Hastings. The quarter apparently stood out ahead of the rest.

"Pink" Harrell of the Wesleyan Methodist was the favorite selection among the coaches and officials. The red-haired athlete developed into a great end this season and was set for a big year had he not been forced out of the game with a broken arm. Harrell is a hard tackler, a handy man at catching passes and an experienced player who knows football.

Frary of Peru was one of the main strengths of the Pedagogue line. He is skillfull at turning back plays direct at his end of the line. Caldwell of Grand Island won recognition on his ability to either get the interference or the man carrying the ball on sweeping end runs. Williamson of Hastings is one of the most valuable ends that has worn Hastings togs for several seasons.

Some Good Tackles.

The tackles this season were a better lot than last year. Rickapaugh of Wayne Normal delivered in much better shape than last year when his play featured the work of the Wayne eleven in its race for the state banner. Rickapaugh handles himself well and can open holes which make good gains possible.

Raitt at Wesleyan is another outstanding tackle of the conference. Raitt is a steady and consistent pastimer who makes good use of his 180 pounds. E. Hansen of Central, Luschei of Midland and Shull of Cotner are worthy athletes who have delivered in good shape this year.

Four men are selected for the guard positions. They are Sukovaty of Doane Heyde of Grand Island; Smith of Kearney and Bock of Cotner.

Sukovaty at Guard.

Sukovaty was the favored selection. He played an end position at Doane two years ago but this season was shifted to guard and got away in great shape. His playing bolstered up the center of the forward wall, his weight and shiftiness making him a power on both offensive and defensive play.

Bock of Cotner is the captain-elect in the Bulldog camp. He played his second year of college football the past season.

Parkinson a Favorite.

Parkinson of Wesleyan leads the centers. The giant Methodist finished his fourth year of Wesleyan football. His passing ball season was accurate and his more than 220 pounds of beef made him a great man around which to build a line. When Harrell left the lineup because of injuries, Parkinson assumed the duties of acting captain.

Four athletes step forward to bid for he favored quarterback position. The quartet comprises Horn of Midland, Alabaster of Wesleyan; Rehder of Grand Isisnd and Willy of Peru.

Horn Valuable Quarter.

Horn captained the championship Midland team and won the attention of the college circuit by his skill at derecting the team advancing the ball and scoring from he field by the placekick or dropkick route. Horn alternated between a halfback and quarterback position.

Alabaster was shifted from a halfback to a quarterback position at the start of the season. While a trifle light, he accounts for more than his share of the yardage by sweeping end runs. Against Hastings, he broke away for the a long run to touchdown which kept the Methodists in the running. His work at directing the Methodist offensive improved as the season were on.

Reder and Willy are a clever pair of ground-gainers. Both are dangerous in a broken field.

Sink a Star Player.

Sink of Grand Island is the best halfback in the conference this year. Sink featured both the offensive and defensive play of the Grand Island team. He was able to penetrate every line in the conference against which he played. On the defensive, Sink took the fullback's position and backed up the line in great shape. Against Wesleyan and Midland Sink delivered his best.

McKelvie of Chadron is a great man at advancing the ball. Giving a broken field, the Chadron halfback has zig-zagged his way to numerous touchdowns this season and helped the Eagles to make a creditable showing in the conference circuit.

The list of conference fullbacks includes some good material. Kummer of Kearney is a hard-hitting type which batters down the opposing line. He led the offensive at Kearney the past season and the success of his drives is shown in Kearney's standing in the conference table.

Buitenbaugh of Peru is the best fullback Peru has had for many seasons. He developed during the season. He can be called upon to punt or score from the field. In fact he is a valuable man from every standpoint.

Nebraska Interscholastic Football Champions

LINCOLN HIGH SCHOOL ELEVEN.

The Red and Black moleskin warriors of Lincoln high school won the 1922 high school football championship last Friday by defeating Kearney, 30 to 6, in a post-season game.

"BIG BOY" MILLER.

Miller has held down the center position on the Columbus high high school football team the past season. He weighs 210 pounds and is shifty and fast for his weight. On the defense he has been the man the other teams feared as he halted all drives at center and did effective work blocking passes.

On the offense his passes were good and a nice gain could always be made through him. Miller intends to register at the University of Nebraska next year.

Amateur Cagesters Meet Monday Night

A meeting of those interested in the amateur basketball leagues fostered by the city Y. M. C. A. is called for Monday at 7:30 p. m. The meeting will be held at the Y. M. C. A.

Physical Director John Fuhrer of the Lincoln "Y" announced Saturday that three amateur basketball leagues may be organized this year. The group will include a city league, commercial league and Sunday school league.

WELLER CHOSEN ALL-WESTERN

Giant Nebraska Tackle Picked By Eckersall; Hartley On Third Team.

Valley Delegates Sing Praises Of Great Nebraska Football Team.

(Special to The Star.)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 9.—Announcement by a Kansas City newspaper tonight that Weller, giant right tackle for the Cornhuskers during the recent gridiron campaign, had been nominated for a all-Western team, with Captain Hartley as fullback and Scherer as end on the third team, was commended by every coach and director of the Valley conference.

"Weller is one of the great tackles I have seen in more than twenty years connection with college football, east and west," Director Mayser of Iowa State College said tonight. "Although a big man, Weller was surprisingly active and in the thick of everything I cannot imagine a better football tackle than Weller."

"Kansas has no regrets that Weller has had his third and last year of inter collegiate football," said Coach Potsey Clarke of K. U. "It was practically impossible to make ground over his side of line and it was just impossible to keep him tearing into smash an opposing team's plays. We hope to give Nebraska a close rub next year but if the Cornhuskers have any more Wellers I can see where we are not going to have much luck."

Valley Proud of Huskers.

Professor R. D. Scott, Nebraska's faculty delegate and Coaches Dawson and Schulte were showered with congratulations by Valley coaches and directors on Nebrasfine football season.

"The whole Missouri Valley conference was proud of Nebraska when the Cornhuskers trounced Notre Dame," said Director Forrest C. Allen of K. U. and if the coast conference or any coast conference school had formally invited Nebraska to play a post-season game in the west, I am sure the Valley conference would have cheerfully urged the governing boards to waive the rule against post-season football."

Crete High School Football Team

Crete high school won six of the eight games played this year, rolling up a total of 148 points as compared with 32 scored by opponents. University Place and Seward were the only teams to defeat the Crete eleven.

Members of Coach Sandberg's Crete high school squad in the above picture are:

BY C. E. M'BRIDE.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 9—To the victor belongs the spoils. As the triumphs go on the football field, so do the honors fal. In the annual all-star selections. Fitting enough that Nebraska, the team that swept all Valley foes into the discard, should place seven men on the first team, four on the second, one on the third. Almost a monopoly, you say. Yes, to be sure, almost a monopoly, but no more than the Cornhuskers had in the Valley championship race. The Nebraskans dashed aside all conference opposition. Against the Kansas Aggies the Nebraska score was in the youthful twenties; against the Kansans the count was in the oleing twenties; in the frolic with Oklahoma the Cornhuskers compiled thirty-nine points; against Missouri they ran into the forties, and against Ames into the fifties. Only twice were the Nebraskans scored on by Valley teams. Who will say that the Cornhuskers were not the bell cows of the Valley herd and so entitled to most of the "grapes."

The undefeater Drake team copped five places on the three elevens; one on the first squad, and two each on the second and third. Drake had an unusually powerful eleven; a team that hardly would have been able to have taken Nebraska's measure, but that nevertheless, probably would have given the Cornhuskers a real tussle, and certainly was a fine credit to the Valley.

Honors to Kansas Aggies.

The Kansas Aggies, probably the third strongest team in the conference, giving the edge to the undefeated Drake eleven, took one first team position; two on the second, and one on the third. Kansas, Oklahoma and Missouri tied with three places each on the three mythical elevens. Oklahoma was the only one of the three to place a man on the first team. Kansas placed two on the second eleven, one on the third. Missouri's three positions were on the third eleven. Oklahoma distributed its talent evenly, landing a second team place and a third eleven berth. Grinnell, Ames and Washington each found a place among the thirty-three stars of the Valley. To Grinnell goes the honor of a first team position, while Ames and Washington won third team places.

Scherer, Nebraska, and Marsh, Oklahoma, are the first team wingmen. The same as last year, only Scherer steps up from the second team to take the place vacated by his 1921 team mate, Swanson. Scherer and Marsh would be a set of ends fit to win the approval of any coach or hostile scout. Fast down the field and big and powerful along with their speed these players were potent factors in the play of their teams. The work of Marsh, taking passes, stopping plays, bobbing up always in the thick of the fray, stood out above that of Scherer simply because the Oklahoman was on a weaker team. Further tribuete to the Oklahoman lies in the fact that he wins fame as a first all-Valley man for the third successive year. Few in comparison are the players to whom that honor comes.

Pair of Superb Tacklers.

Weller and Wenke, Nebraska, tackles—the bulwark of the Cornhusker first line defense and men about whom much of the Nebraska offensive driving power was constructed. Throughout the season the play of the Nebraska line was remarkable. Neither Syracuse nor Notre Dame, the fiercest foemen of the Cornhuskers, could do heavy damage against the line. On the offense Weller and Wenke played their full part in the rolling up of Nebraska scores by opening holes to the outside and the inside for the gashing Husker backs to penetrate. Big, powerful, with enough speed to make them potent factors, both on defense and offense, these two Nebraskans stood out in the line play of their team all through the season. Weller was a third team selection last year.

Conference coaches and scouts who watched the Nebraskans in their games took back reports to the effect that one Nebraska guard, Berquist, held a fortress in the Cornhusker line that was practically impregnable. 'Lay off of Berquist's side,' was the word of the scouts. This player was the first all-guard selection, but Hahn, his Kansas Aggie running mate in the opposite guard position, has nothing to fear in comparison. Scouts who watched the Manhattan eleven perform carried back the same reports about the Aggie captain. Big and strong,

CURTIS AGGIES TO HAVE LIGHT TEAM

(Special to The Star.)

CURTIS, Neb., Dec. 9.—With more than thirty-five candidates reporting the Curtis Aggies started basketball practice this week with a program of limbering up exercises. Captain Essman and Lofton, guards, who are starting their third year are the only regulars from last year's five in school. Gerley and Leu, letter men are the other veterans reporting. The Aggies will in all probability be represented by a light, fast team this year.

Fourteen games have been scheduled to date with some of the strongest teams in southwest Nebrasaka. The schedule follows:

Jan. 5—Madrid at Curtis.
Jan. 12—Holdrege at Curtis.
Jan. 16—McCook at McCook.
Jn. 19—Cambridge at Cambridge.
Jan 26—Farnam at Farnam.
Feb. 2—McCook at Curtis.
Feb. 8—Holdrege at Holdrege.
Feb. 9—Minden at Minden.
Feb. 15—Madrid at Madrid.
Feb. 16—Holyoke at Holyoke, Colo.
Feb. 23—Minden at Curtis.
Feb. 27—Farnam at Curtis.
March 2—Cambridge at Curtis.

Basket Prospects Please Followers Of Albion High

(Special to The Star.)

ALBION, Neb., Dec. 9.—Regular basketball practice at Albion high school begins next week and it is expected that a large number of candidates will report. This week is given up to class basketball, both girls and boys, tournaments being held this week. From the showing made in these class games some idea will be gained of the material available.

In working out a basketball team this year, Coach Tyler will have the same difficulty confronting him as he had in football, namely, to make up practically an entirely new team. Floyd Nichols is the only latter man in school. A host of good material, however, is in sight, lacking only in experience to develop into a fast organization. As Albion has played football only three seasons there was not much available material to draw from, but in basketball there will likely be considerable material.

The basketball schedule for the coming season, as announced by Coach Tyler, is as follows:

Jan. 5—St. Edward at St. Edward.
Jan. 6—Genoa Indians at Albion.
Jan. 12—Columbus at Albion.
Jan. 19—Newman Grove at Newman Grove.
Jan. 20—West Point at West Point.
Jan. 26—Schuyler at Albion.
Feb. 2—Fullerton at Fullerton.
Feb. 9—St. Edward as Albion.
Feb. 16—Stanton at Stanton.
Feb. 23—Genoa Indians at Genoa.
Feb. 24—West Point at Albion.
March 2—Newman Grove at Albion.

Cage Outlook Favorable at Nebraska City

(Special to the Star.)

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Dec. 9.—The prospects for a good basketball team is promising here this season. About fifty candidates reported to the call for practice this week. There are two letter men of last year back, Albers at center and Poling at guard, Hurley will probably not get into the game, due to a broken collarbone received in football.

Vennemann and Ward, letter men of 1920, are out again and will help to build up the team. Nelson, Wilson, Morton, Robertson, Kieber and Iseman of last years reserves are fighting for a regular berth, while several freshmen look promising. The schedule follows:

Jan. 5—School for the Deaf at Nebraska City.
Jan. 12—Falls City at Falls City.
Jan. 13—Hiawatha, Kas., at Hiawatha.
Jan. 17—Auburn at Nebraska City.
Jan. 19—Peru Demonstration at Peru.
Jan. 26—Syracuse at Nebraska City.
Jan. 27—Seward at Nebraska City.
Jan. 31—South Omaha at Nebraska City. (Tentative).
Feb. 2—Plattsmouth at Nebraska City.
Feb. 6—South Omaha at South Omaha. (Tentative).
Feb. 9—Pawnee City at Nebraska City.
Feb. 13—Peru Demonstration at Nebraska City.
Feb. 16—Auburn at Auburn.
Feb. 23—Plattsmouth at Plattsmouth.
Feb. 24—Falls City at Falls City.
March 1—Ashland at Nebraska City.
March 8-9-10—State Tournament at Lincoln.

STATE CONFERENCE IN ANNUAL MEET

Championship Awards Made For 1922 Season at Saturday Conflab.

Awarding of state championships, selection of the place for holding the 1923 conference track meet and election of officers for the coming year constituted the work of the state college athletic conference Saturday.

Championships for the 1922 sport year were awarded as follows: Football—Midland college; basketball—Peru Normal; track—Nebraska Wesleyan.

The 1923 conference track meet was voted to University Place. Pres. C. J. Shirk of Nebraska Wesleyan extending the invitation.

Few Coaches Attend.

Coaches were unable to complete their basketball and track schedules because of the inability of several coaches to atend the meeting.

Officers for the coming year were elected as follows: President, F. E. Weir, Hastings college; vice-president, C. E. Ashcraft, York college; secretary-treasurer, M. S. Pate, Kearney Normal. A championship award committee selected for the coming year will include W. E. Tillberg, Midland collere; C. E. Ashcraft, York college and M. S. Pate, Kearney Normal.

The plan of the conference is to revive tennis as a recognized sport. The committee in charge of the new sport will be J. A. Moss, Cotner college; C. J. Shirk, Nebraska Wesleyan and D. G. Burrage, Doane college.

Nebraska Central was the only member of the conference which did not have a delegate present at the meeting. The list of those present included Chadron Normal, T. F. A. Williams; Cotner college, J. A. Boss; Nebraska Wesleyan, C. J. Shirk, Doane college, D. G. Burrage; Grand Island college, A. C. Rice; Hastings college, F. E. Weir; Wayne Normal, U. S. Conn; Kearney Normal, M. S. Pate; Peru Normal, R. D. Overholt; Midland college, W. E. Tilberg.

Failure of all the conference cahes to attend the meeting hindered the work of drafting football and basketball shedules. A few of the incomplete lists follow:

SEVEN HUSKERS ON MYTHICAL TEAM

fiercely aggressive, Hahn was a throbbing turbine in the Aggie line. Hahn it was who pulled a stray Kansan pass out of the air and ran seventy yards to the touchdown that enabled his team to tie the Jayhawkers. Hahn it was who, when the Jayhawkers were growing close to the scoring line, broke through the Kansas line and spilled a play before it could get under way, throwing the Kansas into a confusion that resulted in no score at a time when it seemed they had the game within their grasp. Such a player was the Aggie captain, well worthy of the honor of a first team place. Oddly enough Berquist and Hahn were the second eleven guards in last year's mythicals. They simply moved into the front row this year.

Into His Own at Last.

In the center Norelius of Grinnell. For three years this player, big, rangy, fast and powerful, has been in the Valley eye. In 1920, his first year out, he was the third team center. Last year Wallace of Amer. Bunker of Missouri, and Peterson of Nebraska, copped the center positions as named, Norelius going into the Honorable Mention, where is hidden many a player who would have risen to dizzy heights of fame had he been fortunate enough to have played on one of the upper elevens. But this year Norelius, captaining one of the best teams Grinnell has eurned out, earned added fame as "the whole Grinnell line," according to the terms of one keen Valley scout. Last year and the year before "Bud" Saunders, then coach of the Iowa collegians, insisted that Norelius was the best center in the Valley. This season every football coach and scout who watched the Grinnellians in action spotted the widely ranging, fiercely tackling Norelius as the man necessary to "get by."

Preston of Nebraska easily has the call in the quarterback position. That he was out of the Notre Dame game owing to injuries made no difference in the consideration of this player. Preston performed in all but one of the Valley conference games in which Nebraska played and so is entitled to the place. Preston is endowed with all the qualifications a successful quarterback should have. As a returner of kicks the Nebraska quarter was in a class by himself in the Valley. In that line of football endeavor he has been termed a wizard.

Noble Reminds One of Chamberlain.

Back of Preston are Boelter of Drake, and two of Preston's teammates, Noble and Hartley. What an ideal halfback this Noble boy is. Weighing around 190 pounds, ranging around the 6-foot mark, remarkably fast, having the weight, the courage and the low running style for a great line plunger and combining with this smashing ability an end running game that reminded one of the play of the fleet Chamberlain, wonderful Nebraskan of other years. A good pass receiver, hard to bring down. Also a player well versed in defensive play and unafraid to hit 'em. Such is Noble.

And Boelter—a flash of speed with 15 pounds to back it up, a brilliant dodging open field runner possessing that ability oft referred to as uncanny in receiving forward passes, and second only to Preston of Nebraska in running back punts. There you have a halfback fit to race alongside the massivle Noble and one who would attract as much attention from the spectators as the fleet Nebraskan. Boelter also is rated a corking good defensive man although he has played the safety position most of the time this year owing to his ability to catch punted balls and carry them far back into the enemy's territory.

A Player of Versatility.

Then Captain Hartley of Nebraska, to round out as fine a backfield as ever has graced an All-Star Valley eleven. Leading his Nebraska Juggernaut through to a Valley championship and a victory over Notre Dame was sufficient to earn Hartley the All-Valley captaincy. The Cornhusker captain is as versatile a player as ever stepped on a Valley gridiron. Good for a smash off tackle or an end run this Nebraskan also could kick and pass. Hartley's balllugging was marked by that spectacular style of sudden changing of speed, a going from a high into a darting, dashing, diving higher that would send him flashing past an opponent or driving through a sudden opening in a manner most bewildering to the opposition.

Coaches or other critics may be able to select a better eleven than the foregoing from the Valley teams, but it is almost a certainty that any Valley coach would be willing to take the eleven men here named and try to get along with them.

Only a shade of difference between the first and second teams and no odds on either team if the two cou'd be assembled and sent to combat on the gridiron. Stars of the second team could replace first eleven athletes and the High Honor team suffer little. Black of Kansas, a smart, tricky, crafty, hard playing end. Denton of Drake, 230-pounder, lacking the speed and agility to make him a really great tackle, but nevertheless one of the Valley's best. Peterson of Nebraska, center, third team man last year, a player of fine, aggressive ability and long experience. Back in 1917, Peterson was center on the second All-Kansas team. He played with Bethany college in those days. In 1918 he probably was in the service, but in 1919 again playing with Bethany, he made the center position on the first All-Kansas eleven.

Orebaugh a Budding Star.

Sam Orebaugh of Drake a field general of unusual ability, a quarter back who could take Preston's place on the first squad and acquit himself in a most commendable manner. He lacks only Preston's experience, being a first year man, but even so he won the first team quarter back position on the All-Iowa team over the widely heralded Parkin of Iowa. Perhaps it is only fair to say, however, that injuries prevented Parkin from receiving serious consideration. This boy is a fine open field runner, a fairly good place and drop kicker, a splendid punter, good passer, an expert receiver and a hard laying defensive man. Well-worthy of the second eleven captaincy.

Stark, Kansas Aggies, and Dewitz, Nebraska, would make a fine brace of halfbacks for any team. Stark is a good plunger and a clever pass recipient. Dewitz has about everything a good back is supposed to have.

Only the greater brilliance of Hartley of Nebraska, a shade in nearly every line except kicking kept Carl McAdams of Kansas off the first team. All season McAdams battled hard for the Jayhawkers. Punting from a close formation, a difficult task, McAdams kept his head under fire and kicked brilliantly. He passes well, carries the ball well, is a good pass receiver, a hard worker in running interference and good on the defense. By his courage and fight McAdams made many friends in the season that ended on Gobbler day.

On the third eleven are such players as Bunker, the Missouri captain; Higgins, the Kansas leader; Krueger, a powerful Drake tackle, almost as good as his teammate, Denton; Swartz, Kansas Aggies; Thumser, Washington and Lincoln, Missori.

Bunker an Ideal Type.

Lincoln of Missouri, great in spots but not possessing the proper disposition for a consistently great football player. Bunker of Missouri, a most admirable type of collegian, inexperienced in tackle play, but so big and powerful, so earnest in his endeavors, as to merit unanimous approval from all critics. A captain of admirable qualities, square playing, square dealing, square thinking.

Swartz, the Aggie quarter, was a brilliant field general, a hard worker, ever smiling, willing toiler on the gridiron. He manipulated his team cleverly in most games, and usually was in the thick of the fray with a fighting spirit and a personality that was an uplift in keeping team morale high.

Washington had an unfortunate year on the gridiron, but the St. Louis eleven had one player, Thumser, in the backfield who would have fitted into any Valley squad. A smart player—and that means a lot to a coach—this man was a clean liver, a gentleman, yet a real scrapper, fast, shifty, aggressive and the spark plug of the Washington team. He would make a good mate for Lewellen, the Nebraska back who will lead the Cornhuskers on the chalk-ribbed field next fall.

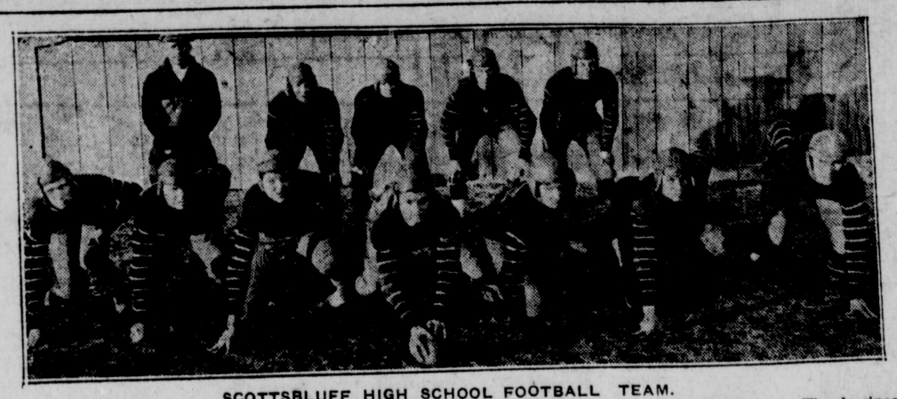

Higgins Consistent and Good Leader

Higgins, the Kansas captain, made a fine team leader and in the line he was a steady bulwark of fight and encouragement. Handicapped through the season with a bad elbow this player made a good captain and a worthy foe for any linesman through sixty minutes of play.

On the honor role are players who have given of their best to their teams and are worth of commendation. Men like Knight of Missouri Burt and Krueger of Kansas, Smith and Fowler of Missouri, with another year of play and a greater chance may develop into firse team material.

As usual these teams are offered as the composite opinions of a majority of the coaches, officials, newspaper men and other football critics. The selections may not please all, but at least it may be said in all truth that they were selected with not thought of being partial to any team or prejudiced against any eleven. They are the fairest selections that could be made from half a hundred sources of information, written and oral. Lastly, if you believe you can pick more reperesentative elevens that is your privilege, and you have the stage all by yourself and without argument.

The Florsheim Shoe

A Man or His Shoes?

How much a man is like his shoes;
For instance, both a sole may lose.
Both have been tanned, both are made tight
By cobblers, both get left and right.
Both need a mate to be complete,
And both were made to go on feet.
With shoes the last is first; with man
The first shall be the last; and when
The shoes wear out they're mended new,
When men wear out they're men dead too.
They both need heeling, oft are soled—
And both in time turn all to mould.
They both are trod upon, and both
Will tread on others, nothing loath.
Both have their ties, and both incline
When polished, in the world to shine.
They both peg out and would you choose
To be a man or be his shoes?

Building Program Planned at Hastings College

The trustees of Hastings college are planning an extensive building program for the campus, commensurate with the growth in enrollment, which has more than doubled in four years. Money for this purpose will be rasied in a campaign now being conducted.

Three buildings are to be first constructed. In the above picture they ore (1) Library Memorial hall in the rear center; (2) Pratt chapel, the first building to the right of the front center and (3) Taylor dormitory for girls, second building to the left of the front center.

The proposed future library stands to the right of Taylor dormitory. To the left of Taylor dormitory will be built other dormitories for girls. To the right of Pratt chapel will be dormitories for boys.

The future gymnasium will be to the right of Liberty Memorial hall near the athletic field and running track, shown at the upper left-hand corner of the picture.

The Bones of Thousands of Prehistoric Cannibals Stick Out of a Nebraska Hillside

BY T. R. PORTER

OMAHA, Dec. 9.—The bones of a thousand prehistoric cannibals are sticking out of a big hill near Blair, Nebraska, a few miles above Omaha.

"The bones are so numerous it looks like a last year's cornfield," says Dr. Robert F. Gilder, former field archaeologist for the University of Nebraska.

Dr. Gilder was called to investigate the find as soon as the discovery was made. He spent several days in the district but because of the frozen condition of the earth he was unable to make any excavations to amount to anything nor was he able to secure very many bones withmout breaking them off at the point at which they emerged from the ground. He did not wish to do this, so the real investigation and exploration of the bones has been postponed until spring thaws the frozen ground and permits of easy excavation.

This new discovery is not many miles from the point where Dr. Gilder discovered, a few years ago, the famous Loess skull, said by archaeologists to be the most primitive skull ever found in America and but very little above the Neanderthal skull.

In the cursory examination Dr. Gilder made of the new discovery he was unable to determine how deeply, or in what position, the burials were originally made. Furthermore, he is not sure but that the bodies were washed down to their final resting place during the prehistoric flood which caused the death of so many monsters of an early date and deposited their bodies along the Nebraska rivers and plains where they are often dug up.

Dr. Gilder believes the bones he has just seen up near Tekamah to be similar to those he is now engaged in excavating near Bellevue, Nebr., ten miles below Omaha. The latter excavation is in a deep wood and the ground is not frozen.

Nebraska Cannibals.

In the Bellevue excavations Dr. Gilder has discovered absolute proof of cannibalism on the part of the early inhabitants of the Missouri valley. In a number of these excavations Dr. Gilder has found piles of roasted human bones. Sometimes these bones still retain marks of implements used in scraping off the flesh. The bones were under piles of wood ashes which acted as a preservative.

"By the piling of the roasted human bones under wood ashes, a natural preservative, and the implements found near them, I have evolved that these early people were cannibals by taste," say Gilder.

For twelve years Dr. Gilder has sought permission to make excavations in a particularly fine ancient house site near the discoveries in the Bellevue district. This permission was secured two or three weeks ago and Dr. Gilder is now engaged in exploring this ancient ruin. He is going over every spade of dirt with a fine sieve and is thoroughly examining every particle taken from the ruin.

Under the formula promulgated by Charles Darwin as to the length of timt required for nature to fill excavations out in the open, Dr. Gilder has announced that this particular house was occupied when Egypt was in its glory.

"At least 4,000 years have passed since this house was first occupied," says Gilder.

Curiously Dr. Gilder has discovered that two distinct peoples, from 3,000 to 4,000 years apart, have occupied that house-site.

"As I dug downward I was rather disappointed to find that the house-site was occupied as recently as 1,000 years ago by ancestors of the Omaha or Pawnee Indians," says Gilder. "But as I dug deeper, I discovered that some 3,000 or 4,000 years before these later people lived in the house, it had been occupied by a people of vastly different culture. The earlier people had used extremly primitive implements which I found extant.

"The new culture had built their homes on the site of the ancient house. Why, I do not know."

Communal Home.

The dwelling was 60 feet in diameter and was used as a communal home by ten or twelve families, Gilder says.

"Of one thing we are certain," says Dr. Gilder. "Thousands of years ago these people lived. They made pottery and thirty or forty implements of bone. I myself have discovered that many. They lived in dwellings in the ground covered with roofing of poles, leaves, bark and earth. They disappeared and a thousand years or more afterwards the ear' Pawnees or Omahas, taking advantage of the original excavation, built their dwellings of similar construction on top of the original home. The entrance to the early homes was always on the south of the excavation. But the later inhabitants made entrances on the east side."

Dr. Gilder will continue his excavations around Bellevue until the ground freezes. In the spring he will transfer his work and studies up towards Blair where the bones of the thousand or more prehistoric cannibals are protruding from the hill side.

"I hope to secure such information and data of these early people that scientists will be able to solve the problem of their origin and death as well as the approximate date of their advent into the Missouri valley," says Dr. Gilder.

BILL DAILEY HAPPY.

The Dailey Motor Car company has been unloading from one to three car loads a day of both closed and open models—and are sure a happy bunch to be able to make prompt deliveries for the first time since June, as the order for the past five months have been far in excess of cars, which they say has lost them more sales than they have made.

Answers to Questions.

Q. 1. What is the matter with the storage battery if it will not hold its charge over one or two hours? It is no short circuit because I just put in new insulations.

Q. 2. Would you advise me to purchase a potentiometer for a single audien set?

Q. 3. How long would or should it take a cell to get charged using aluminum and tin plates four of each?

Q. 4. In your December 3rd Sunday paper you stated that alternating current could be used with an amplifier to light the filament if a crystal detector was used. What is the best hookup for one U V 200 bulb, one variocoupler, and one variable condenser, using a toy transformer which gives from one and a half volts to 24 volts in one and a half volt steps? M. D.

A. 1. If your battery had a charge and lost it in one of two hours the trouble is certainly in the insulation. A storage battery should never run down in that length of time unless there is a leak between the plates inside the battery. In order to give the battery a fair trial it would be well to charge it for about 72 hours or long enough to bring the specific gravity of the electrolyte up to 1300. The proper proportion for the electrolyte is one part sulphuric acid to four parts of distilled water. If the battery loses its charge in a short time after it is fully charged the insulation is defective. If there is a leak within the battery you will find that you will have a hard time bringing the specific gravity of the solution up to 1300 even though the proper proportion are used in the electrolyte.

Ans. 2. The potentiometer in the plate circuit of a detector tube answers about the same purpose as a vernier filament rheostat. It is a means for fine adjustment of regeneration. The maximum signal strength is obtained when the tube is oscillating below the oscillating point and as near it as possible. With a potentiometer in the plate circuit regeneration can be carried up extremely close to the oscillating point of the tube. The only drawback to a potentiometer used in this way is that when the slider is moved over the resistance wire a gritty noise is heard in the phones, and for this reason when adjusting the potentiometer it is necessary to stop turning the slider before the signal can be heard. Nevertheless I would advise the purchase of a potentiometer.

A. 3. I do not understand what sort of a cell you have reference to. If you will send in a more detailed description, giving the electrolyte used, I may be able to answer your question.

A. 4. The storage battery or dry cell used as an "A" battery is somewhat of a nuisance and expense. For this reason a number of fans have wondered why it is not possible to use alternating light current for their radio set as is used for the many home appliances. With this same idea in mind a number of radio engineers have worked and experimented, endeavoring to accomplish the use of alternating current on the filaments of vacuum tubes used for receiving. A number of hookups have been put out and some have been tried out by the Editor and found to give the 60 cycle hum in the phones.

The Bureau of Standards was one of the many who worked on the problem and found that alternating current could be successfully applied to amplifier tubes but not detector tubes. For this reason it was necessary to use a crystal detector with radio frequency amplification. Although this circuit has not been tried out by the Editor he is willing to take the Bureau of Standards' word for its success.

Regeneration is equal to about three stages of radio frequency amplification, so that since there can be no regeneration in using a crystal detector the Bureau of Standards found it necessary to use radio frequency amplification before detection and audio frequency amplification after detection, thereby employing a number of tubes to accomplish the same purpose on alternating current that a lesser number of tubes will accomplish on storage battery current. Therefore it is impossible to get good results with alternating current used on a single tube as you mentioned in your question. If you care to go to more expense and acquire the necessary extra equipment I will be very glad to give you the hookup developed by the Bureau of Standards.

Q. 1. Would a tuning set consisting of two variometers, one variocoupler and a 44 plate condenser make an efficient receiving set for stations all over the country? How would this kind of an outfit work in separating various stations on the same wave length? Or would the condenser be unnecessary when two variometers were used? A. O.

A. 1. The material you mention in your question will make one of the best receiving sets of the present time for eliminating interference. It is impossible with any receiving set to separate stations of the same wave length. However, stations differing in wave length by four or five meters can be separated with a good receiving set.

It is hard to buy parts for a receiving set which are properly designed to use with parts of another make. For this reason it is sometimes desirable to buy a standard make of three circuit receiving set where all of the parts are properly designed to work together.

The parts you mention will make a three circuit receiving set, having one variometer in the grid circuit and one in the plate circuit. The tapped primary of the variocoupler is used in the antenna circuit and the secondary in the grid circuit of the detector tube. If the primary of the variocoupler has two sets of taps, one set tapping every tap of ten turns, and the other set tapping every then of the remaining turns, it is not necessary to use a variable condenser. However, if the primary of the variocupler has only one set of taps tapping every eight or ten turns, it is necessary to use a variable condenser which should be about 43 plates in size.

A tuning set consisting of the parts you mention would make a very efficient receiving set and one of the best sets for eliminating interference. However, you will find that the signals brought in will not have quite the strength that they would have on a single circuit receiver, but the elimination of interference by the three circuit set would more than offset this.

Q. 1. I bought a tube not over three weeks ago and have used it very little. Last night it burned out right in the middle of a concert. What could have been the trouble? Is there any way I can get an adjustment on a new tube? N. F.

A. 1. If you were very careful of the tube and did not subject it to mechanical jar or a higher voltage than that for which it is rated, the tube may have had a soft place in its filament. There are so many tubes manufactured that once in a great while a defective tube will slip by the most rigid inspection. The Editor had experience himself of this kind, except that the tube burned out on the second night of operation, but right in the middle of a concert. Before the tube went out a sizzling noise was heard in the phones which showed that there was a soft place in the filament of the tube. No adjustment was made on a new tube.

So many tubes are destroyed by misuse that it is practically an impossibility for the manufacturer to give adjustments on them, and the person who does get a defective tube and who is one out of a very large number who do not, is very unfortunate.

JEWETT CARS ARE BUILT TO ENDURE

Open and Closed Models Built Like High Priced Auotmobiles.

Low Price Is Due to Fortunate Material Buying and Organization.

Consider next year and other years to come when you make the purchase of an automobile. There is just one permanent satisfactory form of body construction, whatever the price. The well built body has all metal panelling with closed and welded joints over triple fastened and metal braced hard wood framing. This construction, used on the finest cars in the country, is used also on the Jewett bodies, that they may endure.

Jewett open cars are upholstered with heavy leather black leather, over deep coil springs.

Top and snug-fitting side curtains are tailored from a high quality water proof coated fabric. A wide rear window glass and generous openings in the curtains give a clear vision on the road, when the car is enclosed.

Fittings are complete, including door handles, insidie and out, windshield wiper, foot rest, transmission, lock and new drum type headlights.

Enclosed Models.

All metal construction will best be appreciated in the Jewett sedan and coupe. So sturdily are these cars framed and braced, so enduring the solid metal panelling and so sturdy the six inch Jewett on which they rest, that aside from mishaps or accidents they should retain their good looks for the long life of the chassis.

Sedan and coupe are fitted with a sun visor and windshield wiper and, in addition to the adjustable upper glass, there is a waterproof cowl ventilator controlled from the dash.

You will search in vain among the Jewett models for any telltale signs of a neglected detail or cheapened product. The secrets of Jewett prices lies partly in purchases made in the lowest materials market of years and a quantity production running well into five figures, and in no small part to the Paige organization, operating efficiently under a low overhead and financially, clear, without a cent of bonded indebtedness.

ESSEX MADE NEW DIRT ROAD RECORD

The Record Smashing Essex of 1919 Still Good at 100,000 Miles.

The standard 1919 Essex phaeton which, three years ago this month, running day and night over frozen Iowa dirt roads, through snows and gale, established the world's 24 hour dirt road record of 1061 miles, is still in good condition as it nears 100,000 miles of service. The record it set still stands.

The picture above shows the car as it appears today, with its owner, George Wall shop superintendent of the Hudson-Jones Automobile company, distributor at Des Moines, at the wheel.

Though the record it made is a splendid tribute to the construction of Essex cars, the story behind it how it was done makes it even more remarkable.

Little Prapartion for Run.

"The car was the first demonstrator the Hudson-Jones Waterloo company dealer at the Waterloo, Ia., ever had," declares George W. Jones, president of the distributing company. "After it had been run about 12,000 miles, it was decided to attempt the world's dirt track record with it. No preparation other than a little going over, greasing, cleaning carbon, grinding valves, etc., was made."

Then it started out from West Liberty, Iowa, at 10 a. m., November 26. Running over various roads in eastern Iowa, the car stopped only for gasoline and oil until it checked in at Iowa City at 9:46 a. m., November 27.

During the entire drive the mercury never rose above freezing and the car was forced to fight its way through the teeth of a bitter wind. Often reaching a speed of 70 miles an hour, then slowing down to a scant 20 miles in some treacherous stretch, the Essex ran on and on.

Darkness came and still the car darted swiftly and silently over the rough roads. Toward midnight, snow, whipped by a freezing gale, began to fall steadily, but nothing could stop that speeding shape with its lights cutting a precarious path through the night and through the dancing snow flakes.

Motor Never Faltered.

Dawn broke. But still the car rushed on, its lights growing dimmer as the sun struggled in vain to break through the storm clouds. Watchers marveled at the punishment the car was taking, mile after mile of it bounding over frozen roads at tremendous speeds which were increased still more as day made driving safer.

The motor never faltered. Not a single adjustment was made to it during thme entire run.

At the finish the car was running as sweetly as at the start, not even a tire having been changed. The actual running time, deducting stops made for gasoline and oil and the finish 14 minutes ahead of schedule, was exactly 22 hours and 45 minutes, making the average running speed 47.8 miles an hour and for elapsed time 44.4 miles.

After setting its record, Mr. Jones sent the Essex to every dealer in Iowa. It spent practically all winter making these points and giving demonstrations. The winter of 1919-20 was one of the most severe Iowa ever experienced. Snow was four feet deep in places and when winter's backbone was broken, even the better roads were little more than a literal "sea of mud." Mud absolutely impossible for most cars to pull through never stopped the Essex.

Nebraska Road Conditions

The weekly report of the Lincoln Automobile club issued Saturday afternoon by Miss Agnes Neylon of the touring bureau states that it is not necessary to use chains on the country roads. The main highways art all in good condition and there is much travel at this time, according to the report, which follows:

D-L-D to Omaha fine. Light snow around Ashland early Saturday morning, but did not affect roads. D-L-D west to McCook generally good. A few rough places, but roads generally good. McCook to Denver, good.

S-Y-A to Grand Island, good. Light snow around York and vicinity, but roads fair to good.

L-C-D to Crete, good.

C. H. to Fremont, good, to Marysville, good. Rough in spots to Manhattan.

Meridian highway fairly good through Nebraska. About one inch of snow was reported around David City, Saturday morning, and Saturday afternoon, roads were little slippery.

O-T to Nebraska City, good. Rough in a few place. L-S to Sterling, good. L-C-T fair to good. R-V fair to good.

K. T. trail, good through Nebraska, from Omaha south. Omaha north, fair to good.

Golden Rod higway, fair to good through Nebraska.

Winter travel to California is heavier than usual. The preferable route is via McPherson, Amarillo, El Paso, Douglas, Phoenix into Los Angeles. Several stretches are reported rough, but fast time can be made.

NASH MOTORS PLAN NATIONAL SHOW

Sixes and Fours to Be Displayed in New York and Chicago Exhibitions.

Preparations are being made by The Nash Motors company for its display of six and four cylinder cars at the forthcoming New York and Chicago automobile shows. Nash models on display at this season's shows, it is said, will eclipse in point of apperance, comfort and construction any car ever produced by Nash motors.

"Interest not only on the part of the general public but by dealers will be greater at the automobile shows this year than it has been for several years past," said Charles B. Voorhis, vice-president and director of sales of the Nash Motors company. "This is due to the fact that conditions generally are far better than they were last year or the year before and to the further fact that developments in motor car construction have been a very great during the past twelve months.

"As far as the Nash exhibits at New York and Chicago are concerned, I can say in all confidence that the dealer body and the public will not be at all disappointed. Nash Motors is finishing the biggest year in its history and all indications point to even greater achievement during the coming twelve months."

The Nash exhibit will include closed as well as open models on the four and six cylinder car chassis. The new Nash sport model, completely equipped from nickel bumpers to combination stop and tail light and the Nash six roadster, in deep maroon with silk ecru top, are likely to attract considerable attention on the part of show visitors. It is expected that they will divide honors at the Nash exhibit with the four cylindar Carriole and the six cylinder sedan for five passengers.

White Trucks for Use as Busses on New Line Schedule

Will F. Hitchcock, distributor in this territory for White trucks reports the sale of seven White 21 passenger busses to the White Transportation company Mr. Ed Johnson, manager.

This fleet of passenger busses will be run out of Lincoln under the White Transportation company. Every effort has been given to make these cars the last word in motor transportation and they are equipped with everything necessary for the comfort and safety of passengers.

Schedules for the different trips will be announced later.

UNIVERSITY NOTES.

A junior department in the annual corn show of the Nebraska Crop Growers' association will be held this year at the college of agriculture, January 3 to 4, as port of the meeting of organized agriculture, January 2 to 6. Boys and girls under eighteen are eligible. The one showing the ten best ears of dent corn will be awarded $8 and will have his or her name engraved on a silver trophy. Forty-nine dollars will be given as prizes.

The University of Nebraska Glee club is available for a limited number of engagements, announces the "University Extension News published weekly by the University Extension division. The club's appearances are part of the university's movement to come to the people of the state in a "larger and better way." The president is Vance Doty, law '23, of Colorado Springs, Colo.; vice president Francis Diers '23 Lincoln; secretary-tresurer, Sutton Morris, '24, University Place; businesss manager, Elmer Berquist '24, Atlanta.

University of Nebraska basketball teams will play in the armory this winter instead of the colliseum at the state fair grounds, according to an annoucement by the athletic department. The armory has been remodeled to accommodate nearly 2,500 spectators. The doors, running from the ceiling to the floor, between the chapel and the gymnasium, can be pushed aside for games, making one large room. Seats will be arranged along the sides of the armory and in the chapel. Heavy glass backboards for the goals will permit a view of the game from any point in the room.

Teachers of Latin in Nebraska schools have been asked to answer a group of question and send the answers to Prof. A. A. Reed, director of the university extension division, to aid Prof. F. W. Sanford of the department of ancient languages, who is a member of the investigating committee of the American classical league which is making a nationwide survey of instruction in Latin. These question are given in the November 29 number of the "University Extension News."

"The Significance of Some Population Changes in Nebraska since 1880," by Miss Esther S. Anderson of the department of geography, is one of the principal articles in the October issue of the Journal of Geography. Miss Anderson points out the relation of geographic conditions to crop adaption and improved methods of cultivation and the resultant effects in stabilising an agricultural population.

Prof. N. A. Bengston of the department of geology and geography gave an illustrated lecture on Central America before the Community club of Stanton, November 28.

Prof. Louis Pound of the department of English, as western vice-president of the American Dialect society, has arranged a meeting, in joint session with the Central division of the Modern Language association at Chicago Friday, December 29. The program includes a paper by Miss Amy Armstrong, A. B., '14, A. M. '16 of the University of Minnesota, who taught in the university's summer session several years and two years in the Lincoln high school. The president of the society is President William Allen Nellsen of Smith college, former professor of English at Harvard.

Secretary of War Weeks is planning increased efforts to produce helium gas in large quantities for use in dirigibles in order to avoid disasters such as befell the C-2, the Roma and R-34. Prof. Wm. L. DeBaufre, chairman of the department of mechanical engineering, is member of the committee working under the bureau of mines to find an economical method of producing helium.

Principal H. E. Bradford of the school of agriculture, Lincoln, was elected member of the executive committee of the National Society for Vocational Education at the recent convention at Detroit. Nebraska was also represented at that meeting by Prof. Margaret Fedde and Prof. Beulah Coon.

Leland S. Paine, '22, formerly of the United States bureau of Soils, has been appointed assistant instructor in geography. Mr. Paine has charge of the field work and the physiography laboratory.

Miss Gertrude Lois Hanford, A. M. '15, has a study, "Metaphor and Simile in American Folk-Speech" in the latest number of Dialect Notes. The study is one which Miss Hanford made when a graduate student at the University of Nebraska.

Give Your Business Getters a Better Business Car

Business use is hard on cars. There is no economy in one too cheap. The small saving in first cost is quickly sunk in repairs and wasted time.

Pay a little more for real economy. And give your salesmen a car they can count on like a train. The Essex Cabriolet gives all weather utility. Its chassis costs more to build than any like-priced car in the world. Motors, axles, frame and transmission are built for steadfast, constant service under all conditions. Essex cars serving upwards of 60,000 and 70,000 miles are still smooth, reliable and economical. You can't get records like that except from a real car. And it's worth the little more you pay.

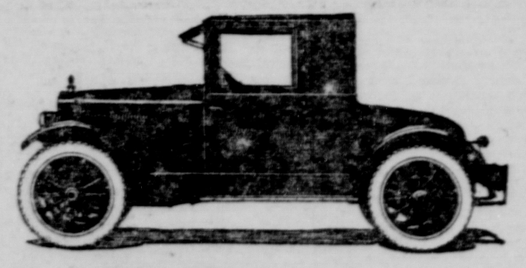

Ample Carrying Space in Rear Deck Locker

The Cabriolet is solid, quiet, durable. Your men will like it. They will appreciate greater riding ease, simple handling, greater radius of travel, and above all its positive reliability.

And it is more economical in every detail even than light cars whose only appeal is economy.

Program Notes.

By Rabbi Jacob Singer.

Charles Gounod (1818-1868 is best known as a composer of operas, although his sacred music and occasional pieces (of which the "Marche Pontificale" is an example) have undisputed value. As an exponent of the French Romantic school, his style is dominated by an appealing melodiousness; and even in his best opera, "Faust," which is still one of the most popular operas ever written, the lyric qualities escdipse the dramatic situations.

Gioachino Rossini (1792-1868) achieved his first triumphs in Europe with the appearance of "Tancred" in 1813. He was a most prolific composer of operas, although few of his forty operas deserve a high rank. For the most part, his ability lay in the field of melody-making, and rather than a pioneer, he was the successful manipulator of musical devices which were calculated to please the taste of his day. His qualities stand far above mediocrity, however. In the "Barber of Seville" he has given us a fine example of the comic opera, while "William Tell" belongs to the immortal compositions of musical literature. In him, Italian melody found an admirable exponent, and his popularity with vocalists is due to his knowledge of the voice and its possibilities.

Mr. Steckelberg's group affords musical specimens in which the violin makes its most sympathetic appeal. The "Andantino" (or slow movement) was written by Martini, one of the most learned Italian musicians of the eighteenth century. Martini's researches in the history of music are still prized, and his composition partakes of the serious type in keeping with this priest-scholar-musician's temperament.

"On Wings of Song" is one of Mendelssohn's famous compositions, and its adaptation for the violin by Achron is a happy one. The melody is laden with a mood of sad yearning, and conveys the tenderness of the heart when we dream of better days to come. It is one of the finest lyrics of Mendelssohn Great Violinist and Composer.

Wieniawski (1835-1880) is one of the greatest violinists and composers for his instrument. At the age of 11 he was awarded the first prize at Paris in violin. In 1860, he was appointed solo violinist to the Emperor of Russia, and in touring with the famous Russian pianist, Anton Rubinstein, his fame as a violinist became securely established. He succeeded Vieuxtemps as professor of violin at the conservatory at Brussels. In the "Russian Airs," he is at his best as a composer.

The orchestral Suite "Sigurd Jorsalfar" (Sigurd the Crusader) of Eduard Grieg (1843-1907) is a subject which enlists the deepest sympathies and talents of the great Norwegian composer. In Bjornson's poem, Grieg found a "folk-piece in its best sense of the word." This national or racial quality is prominent in Grieg's compositions. By the use of phrases taken from the folk-song, and more particularly in the old scales preserved in the traditions of his people, he becomes the tone-poet of the North, painting in tone the fjords and the rugged scenes, but more particularly, reflecting the romance and the heroic melancholy of his people's soul.

The "Introduction" presents the Crusader with the moods of Norse adventure mingled with the pietistic romance of the medieval soldier of the Lord. The intermezzo or "Borghild's Dream" is one of the tender aspects of the same character, reminding us of the chivalry and the romantic love which inspired the crusader and the knight alike This intermezzo has been compared with Elsa's dream in Lohengrin. The "Triumphal March" is one of Grieg's happiest moods. In it we have the striking characteristics of the composer. He is not only as the mouthpiece of his race or nation, but there is individuality by which Grieg is ranked as one of the world's great tone-poets.

Mascagni belongs to the modern Italian school of opera composers. "Cavalleria Rusticana" deals with a realistic subject, crudely expressed, but there are moments in it of genuine beauty and power. The "Intermezzo" is justly popular. The "Hungarian Dance" of Brahms is another work of wide appeal. The melodies for these dances are for the most part borrowed from Keler-Bela and other Hungarian musicians. Johannes Brahm (1833-1897) is one of the greatest composers of the last century.

Sigma Xi Will Meet Monday Night

The University of Nebraska chapter of Sigma Xi will meet in the general lecture room of Bessey hall on Monday Dec. 11, at 8 p. m. Dr. H. H. Waite, professor of bacteriology and chairman of the department of bacteriology, will speak on "Disease Protection, Past and Present." Beginning with the earliest conception of disease, particularly communicable disease, he will present the various stages of disease prevention down to and including the period of discovery of disease organisms. The meeting of the society will be open to the public.

PERFECT HEALTH IS GOAL FOR ALL CITY'S CHILDREN

Dr. Wolfe Says Malnutrition Most Common Defect Among Pupils.

Parent Organizations Encouraged to Assist in Health Work.

Dr. Katherine H. K. Wolfe, director of school helth in the Lincoln schools, has issued the following statement regarding one hundred per cent children for this city:

"Our present health knowledge makes it possible for all parents to have 100 per cent children.

"A large per cent of this knowledge was known for decades but was not put into practice.

"Our war record showed the startling fact that about 60 per cent of the men called for service in the World War were physically unfit. Nerly one-third were rejected outright and from 40 to 80 per cent of those accepted were found unfit after they were in the army and had to be sent to hospitals or development battalions. The second even more startling helth fact which reached the public from our army camps was that 90 per cent of the defects and diseases found to exist in our soldiers could have been prevented if they had received proper health care in their youth. Attention was centered on the physicial condition of our children and it was believed that unfit soldiers must have been a part of the army of underweight children in their youth. The per cents of 'skinny' children and physically unfit rejected soldiers was practically the same.

"Of all defects in children ,that of malnutrition has been most grossly neglected by both parents and the medical profession.

"Dr. Wm. R. P. Emerson, a relative of Ralph Waldo Emerson and a noted child specialist of Boston, began his special study of malnourished children fifteen years ago. He has evolved a most simple common sense effective method which builds up underweight children in a comparatively short period of time.

"Lincoln's reputation as the Athens between Chicago and the Pacific coast was upheld when her professional and business organizations combined their forces and brought a Dr. Emerson institute to Lincoln last June.

"Ninety- six students, composed of physicians, educators, nurses social workers etc. registered for Dr. Emerson's course.

"Forty-six representatives from the Lincoln school system received special taining in this most important health work.

"The efect of a better understanding of the needs of the underweight child by this large number of progressive educators in our school system is felt at the present time.

School Lunches for Underweights.

"School lunches for underweight children, consisting of a half pint of milk and crackers, in the midforefnoon, where parents desire this service is being made available in all the schools in the system with few exceptions at the present time.

"Letters to parents of underweight children, giving them an opportunity to have this lunche service for their children, are being sent out from the School Helth department as rapidly as the limited help in the department will permit. This service is offered at 25 cents per week, 15 cents per week or free of charge, in order to bring it within the reach of all underweight children whether their parents are able to pay te full cost, less than cost or nothing for their children's lunch.

"It is hoped that parent organizations in the city will meet the deficit in the cost of his service. The School Health department will be very glad to hear from parent organizations who are ready to assist financially in this constructive health work.

"The nutrition clinics organized by Dr. Emerson during the institute last summer were opened permanently at Prescott and McKinley schools recently.

"That Dr. Emerson's method of building up underweight children by his class method is most effective and that the weekly meetings are essential for permanent health results, was strikingly illustrated by comparing the average gain in weight of the nutrition clinic group of children during the seven demonstration weeks with their gain during the following fourteen weeks when the clinic was not in session.

"During the seven weeks when childhen and parents attended the weekly clinic, the children in Prescott nutrition group gained on the average 572 per cent their normal gain i weight.

"During the following fourteen vacation weeks (double the length of time) the clinic children gained on the average only 311 per cent the normal gain.

Child Regains Health.

"One child, who went over the top November 21, one week after the clinic opened this fall, hade the interesting record of having gained 7 pounds durig the 7 weeks demonstration period, only 2½ pounds the following 14 weeks, after the close of the clinics, and then gained 2 pounds in one week whe she resumed the practice of rules which restored her weight ad helth. This child was 18.3 per cent underweight when she enterel the nutrition clinic last June. She had dark lines under her eyes, was nervously active in eating as well as in other habits. She ate no cereals and drank no milk.

"When she went over the top, in addition to having gained sufficient weight to sustain her height she had also gretly improved in her general appearance. Her color was good, her hair glossy, the fatigue expression of her face had disappeared, and above all, she had a nervous balance and the joy of life present in all normal children, radiated from her entire being. Dr. Emerson's statement that 'The care and feeding of children is not alone a science but an art,' has been found to be true in Lincoln's nutrition clinic work."

"After underlying causes for underweight, such as physical defects are corrected, and children practice recommended health habits, they always gain in weight. When parents and children fail to put health rules into practice as directed, the result is allways a diminisher gain or an actual loss in weight.

"This fact was clearly demonstrated in the McKinley nutrition class November 29, when the entire class gained weight except one child who had a high temperature with intestinal trouble. The gain was on the average 530 per cent the normal gain for one week. All these children had stars for lunches, rest periods, and the presence of their parents at the clinics. Another nutrition clinical class, where some parents and pupils had compromised, and were not uniformly on their jobs, the average gain for the class was only 190 per cent. Burbank understood children when he said 'children are like plants only more sensitive to their environment.'

"'A nutrition clinic is a laboratory method of teaching how weak, underweight children can be restored to full weight, healthy specimens, in a comparatively short period of time.

"'Over the top' rules used in the nutrition clinics are being inclosed with the school lunch letter and sent to all parents of underweight children at the present time.

Malnutrition Common Condition.

"An unusually high per cent of underweight is found among public school children th's fall.

"The new Elliott school had the following high percentage of underweight among its children September 1922:

7 per cent or more underweight, 44.9 per cent.
10 per cent or more underweight, 31.3 per cent.
15 per cent or more underweight, 11.1 per cent.
20 per cent or more underweight, 2.5 per cent.

In the Twenty-sixth and O street junior hight group of children, the following per cents of underweight were found to exist in September, 1922:

7 per cent or more underweight, 40.8 per cent.
10 per cent or more underweight, 27.9 per cent.
15 per cent or more underweight, 15.2 per cent.
20 per cent or more underweight, 5.3 per cent.

"In comparing the underweight percentages in these schools it will be noted that there is an appreciably larger per cent of children 15 and 20 per cent underweight in the junior high children than in the elementary grades in the Elliott school.

"If one will note children as they file in or out of a school building, he will need no figures to inform him as to the physical condition of Lincoln's school children.

"The board of education has met its responsibility for the weak, under weight children, from the educational standpoint, squarely, helping to bring Dr. Emerson's institute for underweight children to Lincoln last Jupne, by providing opportunity for underweight children to have the mid-morning lunch, recommended by Dr. Emerson, and by making the nutrition clinic demonstration health work possible.

Will the parents and parent organizations of the community combine their forces with that of the educational organization, and even raise a western relief fund for our scrawney Lincoln children, if necessary, to bring then 'Over the Top?'"

DR. KATHERINE H. K. WOLFE,
Director of school health.

iana, being the only democrat to join the ten republican members who voted solidly for it—the bill differed materially from the form in which the house passed it. The Madden amendment was eliminated as requested by President Harding, and the Lenroot-McNary-Willis proposal to require congressional authorization for subsidy increases substituted.

The democrats in their minority proposed shiping policy involved launching the government on a sea o ftrouble and enormous expense in the form of a direct cash contribution from the treasury to specific private enterprise and must be met with resistence and defeat.

Retains Shipping Board.

"The minority report states," Jones retorted, "that it is argued in behalf of the bill that the United out of business, and that if the measure is passed and results in the elimination of the shipping board as its friends intend and expect American commerce will be at the mercy of trouble and enormous expense in the ships, even though they fly our flag. As a matter of fact, we do not argue that the passage of the bill will put out of business the shipping board. We need the shipping board as a permanent agency to control and regulate our shipping, to investigate and study its problems and recommend to congress from time to time what is needed to maintain our merchant marine. We want to make it to our merchant marine what the English board of trade is to the English merchant marine. It is hoped, however, that it will result in putting out of business as soon as consistent with the best interests of the country the emergency fleet corporation."

Deaths

SANTA TO BRING CHEER TO HEARTS OF POOR KIDDIES

Community Shop to Furnish Hundreds of Gifts For Little Tots.

Christmas Donations and Volunteer Workers Both Needed.

All Lincoln is invited to drop its Christmas shopping for people who have so many things they don't know what to do with them just long enough to help prepare toys for poor little kiddies who would be completely forgotten by Santa Claus if it were not for the community toy shop.

The community toy shop, which was organized last year and made Christmas a day of joy for many little children, is in operation again this year with headquarters at 201 South Eleventh street. Mrs. Millie L. Truman is in charge.

The object of the toy shop is to collect gifts for poor children, repair them and distribute them to children in poor families. Everything in connection with the toy shop is donated,—the room, the heat and light, the services of all the workers, the toys.

A call is issued for volunteers to work in the toy shop. Men who can repair toys are needed to work in the shop during whatever time they can spare. Women and girls are needed to dress dolls and paint toys. A representative of each church in the city is wanted to help and to enlist the service of others. Representatives of groups of women and of girls are asked to get in touch with headquarters. All volunteers should call at the community toy shop at 201 South Eleventh street, some time Monday, or as early in the week as possible, to get assignments for work.

Usable Girts Wanted.

Contributions of usable gifts for children are requested. Dolls are needed for girls, toys and games for boys, and books for both boys and girls. Used articles in good condition will be welcome, but if extensive repair is needed this should be done before the toys are contributed, as only a limited amount of work can be carried on in the toy shop.

Many children have toys and dolls which they would gladly give up for the sake of making poor little boy or girl happy on Christmas day.

Organizations of women and of girls are asked to collect dolls, dress them and present them to the toy shop. They may also collect all kinds of toys. Brushes and paints are provided at the toy shop so that they can go there and paint them.

It is hoped that groups of women and girls in the same church and groups of women and girls employed at the same business house will collect dolls and then meet for an hour or two and make pretty doll clothes out of scraps of material they have brought from home.

Candy, nuts and cash donations are wanted as well as dolls, toys and books.

Mrs. Emma M. Phillips, head of the millinery department at Rudge & Guenzel's sent over twenty-four woolen children's caps and hats which were soiled so that they could not be sold. Contributions of shop-worn garments from all the stores are solicited. The Lincoln Cleaning and Dye Works has volunteered to clean all such garments free of charge.

Last year there was keen rivalry among the stores in the donation of pretty dolls. Community toy shop workers are hoping that similar contributions will be made this year.

Mrs. J. McGeer will see Supt. M. C. Lefler and the board of education to arrange to get names of needy children through the schools. Most needy children can be reached in this way, but in order that none may be overlooked people knowing of such children are requested to telephone B2889 and give in the names.

Many Women Volunteer.

Up to this time the following women have volunteered to work for the community toy shop: Mrs. Roscoe Smith, Mrs. J. L. Burnham, Mrs. Herbert E. Gooch, Mrs. John Ledwith, Mrs. Victor Krause, Mrs. Carl Rohman, Mrs. Charles Stuart, Miss Lennie Stuart, Mrs. Frank Sides, Mrs. C. F. Ladd, Mrs. W. E. Straub, Mrs. Hugh Hallett, Mrs. Will Morgan, Mrs. Fred Funke, Mrs. E. W. Truman, sr., Mrs. G. E. Hager, Mrs. Frank Mullen, Miss Dorothy Kimball, Miss Jeanette Moore, Mrs. M. Aacn, Mrs. S. Wessel, Mrs. J. Teisman, Mrs. Ray Crancer, Mrs. H. E. Anderson, Miss Grace Porter.

Mrs. Arthur Raymond, president of the Junior league, has promised the time of workers from the Junior league.

Mrs. Samuel R. McKelvie, who was out of town during the pre-holiday season last year, wrote the community toy shop officers a beautiful letter shortly after Christmas, in which she commended the work of the toy shop and said that she wanted to help if the toy shop work were carried on this year. Unfortunately she will be out of the city again.

Mayor F. C. Zehrung is giving hearty support to the community toy shop.

Mrs Trumman does not yet have the departments of the toy shop definitely organized. The heads or departments will be appoint within a few days.

Charles Kelly, "the doll man," who mended so many broken dolls last year will be on duty again this season, working in the evening and during the day whenever he can.

People who have articles to contribute should either leave them at the toy shop or telephone B3889 so that someone can call for them.

Some articles came in last week and a number of people phoned in that they had contributions. As the streets were too slippery to drive cars around to collect these the work has delayed somewhat, but the work will begin in earnest Monday. Practically all the colecting is done by women.

"I wish that everyone would appoint himself or herself a committee of one to do something for the community toy shop," said Mrs. Millie L. Truman.

LET SEWER CONTRACT.

COLUMBUS, Neb., Dec. 9.—The city council at the meeting Thursday evening voted to accept from Contractor J. F. Devlin of Sioux City his bid for the extension of the main sewer storm at a cost of $5,615.58.

GRIDIRON CLUB HOLDS BANQUET

out that he had been very successful politically by being a new party man in Washington and a republican in the Badger state.

Beveridge of Indiana offered to join anything, explaining:

"Twice have I switched, each time in turn rejected; I seek some haven "Hi" Johnson poured some Bull now where I can be elected."

Moose fizzle into the brew but it didn't have a good effect. Senator "Jim" Reed came up, fleeing from Woodrow Wilson's wrath, and tarried to "be-devil somebody."

Bernard Baruch apeared but refused to join, saying he found the democratic party liberal enough.

Food Feeds Kettle.

The act closed with Henry Ford feeding the kettle with "green backs," and with a farmer and banker trying to stir up the brew together, where-upon there was an explosion. "Too many cooks," commented "Rankin File."

As another stunt four club members, drapped in white sheets apreared as the ghosts of Normalcy, reduced taxation, lower cost of living and the international court, the point of the act being that when the ghosts sheets were taken off these four things were found to be very much alive.

A gridiron club member was hauled up and disciplined because he had refused to play a part assigned him in the entertainment. His excuse was that he had been asked to "take the character of Vice President Coolidge and be funny."

New Song Is Hit.

"Sailing over the three-mile line," was the musical hit of the evening. There was also a song reciting that Governor Edwards of New Jersey, senator-elect, will find it awful dry when he gets to Washington.

Some club member remarked that President Harding had a great many problems on his mind. "Take the next congress, for instance," he said, "I wonder what the president will do with it."

"I've got a better one than that," remarked another scribe. "Wnat will it do with him?"

Walter S. Buell, of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, and Robert Barry of the Philadelphia Public Ledger were initiated as new members.

Harding Makes Speech.

The president, Associate Justice Sutherland of the supreme court, Former Vice President Marshall, Senator Borah and "Uncle Joe" Cannon, were among the guests who made speeches. When they said is a secret, for no speeches at the gridiron banquet are ever reported.

As this dinner was probably the last public entetainment in Washington at which "Uncle Joe" will appear, as he is retiring from congress in March, he was presented with a bronze gridiron as a memento. The ex-speaker very seldom memento. The ex-speaker very seldom if every missed a gridiron dinner.

MAKES A MOVE FOR RULING ON LANGUAGE LAW

grades. The second is the injunction suit against the governor, attorney general, and county attorney of Platte county, to prevent their enforcing the Reed-Norval law. Both proceedings were decided by the Nebraska supreme court in favor of the state, and the German language interests then took them up to the United States supreme court.

Cities Tower of Babel.

In a brief which he has filed to support the validity of the Reed-Norval act, Assistant Attorney General Reed declares its purpose is to promote national unity by educating all children in the language of the American people. He points to the scriptural incident of the tower of Babel as showing the disastrous results of a multiplicity of tongues.

"When the Higher Power observed the efforts of the people of the plains of Shinar to build a city supplemented by a tower which they hoped would enable them to reach Heaven," the brief relates, "God said: 'Behold, they are one people with one language, and nothing that they undertake shall be withholden from them.'

"The method adopted to check the building of the tower was to confuse the tongues of the workmen so that they were unable to communicate with each other. As a result, the tower of Babel can no longer be distinguished from the sands of the desert."

Mr. Wheeler answers the charge that the enactment of the law was due to "war hysteria by giving the date when it was approved and became effective—April 14, 1921, more than two years after the Armistice was signed.

Using Religion as a Cloak.

"The plaintiffs, in the endeavor to foist the German language upon inmature children, have attempted to do so under the guise of religious teaching," continues the brief. "The German language is no more a necessary part of plaintiffs' Evangelical Lutheran religion than was polygamy a necessary doctrine of the Mormon church. There is no question that the state has a right, under its police power, to curb licentiousness existing as a doctrine of polygamy under the rules of the Mormon church. Neither is there any question that the state has the right to prohibit the ingrafting of German ideals upon young American children through the guise of religious instruction.

"The only religion that requires a special language for its doctrines is the 'Me und Gott' doctrine once promulgated by the Hohenzollerns.'

Wheeler quotes from the Nebraska supreme court opinion by Judge Leonard Flansburg to the effect that the ancient, or dead languages, such as Latin, Greek or Hebrew are not "foreign languages' and that the law does not restrict their being taught, its intent being solely to do away with pernicious foreign propaganda in the schools.

"The purpose of the statute is to insure that the English language shall be the mother tongue and the language of the heart of children reared in this country who will eventually become its citizens,' the brief declares.

The showing with reference to language laws passed by the legislatures of twenty-one states, which was included in Wheeler's argument in the Meyer case, is repeated in the Reed-Norval brief.

MARRIED FIFTY-FIVE YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. William Daly celebrated their fifty-fifth wedding anniversary with a reception at their home, 1246 North Twenty-seventh street, Tuesday afternoon and evening. The house was decorated with roses and chrysanthemums. Cake and punch were served to the callers. About seventy-five friends called during the receiving hours, from 2 to 10 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Daly were married at El Paso, Ill., fifty-five years ago. After living on a farm near Washburn, Ill., for several years and managing a hotel in Washburn for seven years they moved to Nebraska. For seventeen years they lived on a ranch north of O'Neil and the past twelve years they have lived in Lincoln.

Mr. and Mrs. Daly are the parents of thirteen children, seven of whom are now living. They are: Mrs. Rose Neals, Valdeze, Alaska; Mrs. J. J. Harrington, O'Neil; C. M. Daly, O'Neil; J. E. Daly, Fremont; Mrs. Leonora Gerard, San Francisco; Miss Frances Daly, Denver, and Fred V. Daly of Chicago. Six children, Sylvester, Anna, Mauretta, John, Martin and Frederick, died.

WOMEN BATTLE IN COURT ROOM OVER MAN'S CHARACTER

executive kissed Miss Birkhead often as he left her.

"We were together most of the time—all three of us," she began sobbing. "They were seldom alone —Mr. Russell and Miss Birkhead."

Says Note Not Husbands.

When she regained composure, Mrs. Russell denied authenticity of a "Mary" note which Miss Birkhead's attorneys claimed was written by Russel and showed knowledge of the girl's alleged condition. The "M" in the signature was unlike Russell's she insisted.

She told of her fears for her husband's life as a result of the suit saying veiled threats had been received.

Then came an interlude in the trial while minor witnesses took the stand in quick order to substantiate previous testimony or add minute details.

The next climax of the day was reached when Miss Birkhead took Mrs. Russell's place in the witness chair, in rebuttal and categorically denied every reflection on her name.

Displaying a brilliant memory, she recalled major portions of previous testimony and attempted to convince the said jurors the counter charge was a tissue of falsehoods.

She went into detail concerning the defense's main contention that she was drunk and "kicked up her heels" at a dance near Yazoo City. Instead of falling to the floor in a stupor, she insisted she had been seized with a fainting spell and she laughed lightly at insinuations she had left the hall at frequent intervals with various partners.

Commissioners Refuse To Open Proposed South Street Road

The Lansaster county commissioners have refused to take any action in the proposed opening of a road two miles long beginning at the east end of South street being a continuation of the same highway eastward. The county laid out a road along the proposed stretch thirty years ago but never constructed a road. Recently Dan Kelly and D. M. Douthett and a few others petitioned the commissioners to open the road and serious objections were raised by W. L. Cottrell, C. D. Hyatt, Carrie Cassell and W. J. Johnson, who stated they would claim damages for several thousands of dollars if the road was constructed. In 1895, three years after the road was laid out, the legislature passed a law returning all lands to the original owners that had been acquired within five years previous for highwaypurposes but not opened. Those favoring the opening of the road calimed the law applied only to roads acquired to 1879. Rather than drow the county into a lawsuit the commissioners refused to take action in the matter.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Bradstreet's today says:

The first real winter storm with resulting cold or snow in northern areas and rains further south, plus an increase in holiday buying, has served to accentuate previous contrasts between rail and jobbing trade on the one hand and purely wholesale distribution on the other. Retail buying in the best since last winter, heavy wearing apparel, footwear and holiday specialties predominated in this latter direction, active advertising, which is apparently under a full head of steam, is reported bringing a good volume of business to department stores and large retailers and neighborhood action was also, this at some centers before the expected break up of the fine fall weather ocurred. Southern reports in most cases rather less encouraging. Weekly bank clearings $8,915,467,806.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.

Some good gains were made by industrial shares, particularly equipments, metals and low priced oils, in the early part of today's brief stock market session, but in a number of cases these were materially reduced or wiped out on resumption of selling pressure and profit taking at the close. Railroad shares were again sluggish, public buying of these issues being almost negligible. Stocks subject to the special influences, such as motors, Lead, which was pushed up 4 points on stock dividend expectations and Allied Chemical, which advanced more than 2 points on reports of heavily increased earnings in November, were the most active. There was a broadening demand for coppers on resumption of dividends by Butte & Superior. Investment buying of United States government issues, a number of which were quoted above 99 on substantial net gains, had a good influence on sentiment. Shorts put out more lines in the last hour, General Electric, Corn Products and General Asphalt being among the most conspicuous to yield to pressure. The close was irregular.

Sales approximated 500,000 shares.

A buoyant tone was shown by prices at the opening of today's stock market. While trading continues to be largely in the hands of professional interests who have conducted their operations at times in seeming disregard of outside news developments, the recommendations contained in the president's message, strength of sterling, increased car loadings and the optimistic nature of the weekly mercantile reviews, all had a cheerful effect on sentiment. Equipments led today's early advance, Baldwin, Westinghouse Airbrake, Lima Locomotive and Pullman advancing 1 to 1¾ points. National Lead broke through to another high record for the year on a gain of 2½ points. Resumption of dividends by the Butte & Superior Copper Company was reflected in a point advance in their stock. Gains of 1 to 1½ points also were recorded by American Tobacco, Studebaker, Chandler, May Department Stores Continental Can, American Ice, New Haven and American International Corporation, Marine preferred and American Ice. The sugar stocks continued their rise to higher ground. Rail shares again lagged behind the list. California Petroleum and General Electric were the outstanding weak spots.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.

SUGAR—The raw sugar market was firmer today and while spot Cubas were unchanged at 4c cost and freight equal to 5.78 for centrifugal, new crops were higher. There were sales of 10,000 bags of Cubas to an operator for first half of January shipment at 5⅛c cost and freight equal to 5.53 for centrifugal.

The raw sugar futures market was firmer on covering and buying for European account. Prices at one time showed advances of 6 to 9 points, but they eased off partly near the close under realizing and were finally unchanged to 2 points net higher; January showed the maximum gain, closing, December, 3.99; March, 3.48; May, 3.58; July, 3.70.

The market for refined sugar was quiet and unchanged. Fine granulated 7.10@7.25.

Refined futures were less active, but the tone was steady with transactions of March at 7.05 and June 7.10.

New York Foreign Exchange.

GRAIN MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 9.

WHEAT—Wheat displayed a firm undertone today during the arly dealings, the optimistic speech of Julius H. Barnes yesterday bfore the Illinois Chamber of Commerce having some effect of sentiment. There was a good class of commission house buying immediately after the start which readily absorbed the offerings from local traders, and prices advanced readily. Offerings increased, however, on the way up and the advance was checked. The opening, which varied from ⅛@¼c decline to like advance, with May $1.17⅛@1.17¼ and July $1.08¾, was followed by slight gains all around.

Subsequently prices advanced sharply, May wheat touching a new high for the season. The rally resulted from increased buying induced by a report of the introduction of the foreign credit bill in the house and a private report which told of the withdrawal of plate offerings in the Liverpool market. The close was strong, with values showing a net gain of 1¾ to 2⅜, with May $1.20¾ to $1.20⅝ and July $1.09½ to 1.10⅜.

CORN—Corn advanced readily on lack of pressure and scattered buying. After starting a shade off to ⅛c up with May 69¾@70c, the corn market hardened a trifle and then began to climb.

Corn and oats later showed fair activity and advanced sharply with all deliveries of oats at a new high for the season. Corn closed strong at a net gain of 1⅜@1¾ to 1⅝c with May 71⅝ to 71⅝c.

OATS—Oats started ⅛c higher to a like decline, May 45¾@45¾c, and later scored gains all around.

PROVISIONS—Provisions were higher, being influenced by strength in hog and grain markets.

TEAMS OF EAST IN COAST GAMES

West Virginia, Pitt and Penn State Book Mid-Winter Slate.

BY M. D. TRACY.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 9.—Three mid-winter games to be played by the last of this month will go a long way towards answering the old question of whether the Pacific or the Atlantic coast excels at football.

Starting a number of years ago when the Pasadena, Calif., tournament of Roses decided to stage annually on New Year's day an east-west football game, the idea has grown until this year three eastern teams will journey west during the Christmas holidays.

The third of these inter-sectional matches was finally arranged today when Gonzaga college of Spokane, was signed to meet West Virginia at San Diego, Cal., on Christmas day.

The Pasadena game, still bearing the official title of the "east-west" game despite its competition, will be between the University of Southern California and Penn State on New Years' day. Pittsburgh and Stanford play December 30 at the Stanford university stadium.

Gonzaga vs. West Virginia.

Selection of Gonzaga to meet West Virginia was made after the Pacific coast conference refused to permit the University of Oregon to play. The conference took the position on account of an arrangement made a year ago whereby it agreed to name the western competitor in the 'east-west" at Pasadena and promise that the Pasadena game would be the only game it would sanction. This is the same agreement which has caused Stanford to be reprimanded by the conference for scheduling the game with Pittsburgh, with the result that Stanford has offered its resignation from the conference.

Washington State college is the only college team that has beaten Gonzaga this season. Gonzaga has defeated Montana and Idaho. Not being a member of the coast conference, the Spokane team has not met California, Stanford or the University of Southern California.

Gus Dorias, Gonzaga coach, has built his team mainly around Stockton, halfback, one of the heaviest point scorers in the country this season, and whom Coach Andy Smith of California believes "among the best in the west."

Gonzaga now is in training for the game at San Diego and will leave for the south December 18.

Stanford Plays Pitt.

The Stanford-Pittsburgh game December 30 will be Glenn Warner playing against himself. He is sort of "coach emeritus" of Stanford, working through Andy Kerr, his understudy. Stanford has adopted completely the Warner playing methods.

The Penn State university of Southern California at Pasadena New Years day will mark the U. S. C. team's first contest against a team from east of the Rocky mountains. U. S. C. was named by the coast conference for this game when California declined to [illegible]. The Southern Californians have a record of having been defeated this year only by California.

Efforts to stage a Christmas game at Pasadena between Nebraska and the University of California apparently have failed. California having broken training entirely.

Siki Hurls Defi To French Commish

PARIS, Dec. 9.—Battling Siki, French Senegalese negro, today defied the French boxing federation and refused to appear before the federation committee that is investigating the charge that Siki's fight when he won the light-heavyweight championship from Georges Carpentier, was "fixed." Siki's title was subsequently annulled.

In a letter to the federation Siki said:

"The federation annulled my title forcing me to take the matter to court. The federation is my enemy and I refuse to answer my enemy."

Scribes Would Deny Cobb 400 Average

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—The .400 batting average presented to Ty Cobb by Ban Johnson, president of the American league, came under the ban of the New York chapter of the baseball writers' association, which in a resolution adopted today, declared it to be the sense of the organization that Cobb's average not be recognized and that efforts be made to have it corrected in the official baseball guides.

Bladen Defeats Bluehill Quintet

(Special to the Star.)

BLADEN, Neb., Dec. 9.—Bladen high won its second game of basketball last night on the local floor by a score of 37-20 from the Blue Hill high school. The game was a battle royal to the finish. This was Blue Hill's first defeat of the season and Bladen's second victory. The first half ended 25-10 in favor of Bladen. Bladen goes to Guide Rock next Wednesday.

SERVICE FOR YOU

You have noticed advertisements reading:
"Address Box No. 00, Care Star."

The Star Want Ad Department has a small post-office department where your replies can be called for.

If you wish your identity kept from the public, or do not wish the bother of interviewing all applicants, have your replies addressed to The Star Box numbers.

A record is kept and all locked up so that no one can find out who the box belongs to.

You receive a small card with your number on which you present at The Star office and receive all replies, or they will be mailed to your address in a plain envelope if you wish. There is no extra charge.

Clarence Tubman, Who Has "Raised" Most of Lincoln During the Past Twenty-six Years, Has Had Glimpses into the Inside Drama of Nearly Every Lincoln Family.

BY LYNNELLE GREER.

There is nothing of the hero about Clarence Tubman, especially, in fact he is very modest and does not even claim but one distinction which we will come to later on. But regardless of what his opinion concerning himself may be, we know that Clarence Tubman has done more to raise prominent men to certain heights, and has raised more families than perhaps any other man in Lincoln.

You see, Clarence Tubman is an elevator operator, and has been such for more than twenty-six years. Clarence began his career at an early age, he was ambitious; he wanted to get up in the world and he did.

His first step towards ascent was the position he had at the old Brownell block, where the squeaky, shaky old elevator was run by water power. Clarence hung on to the rope that carried people up and down, day after day, for almost a year. That was thirty years ago when folks stubbed their toes on splintered board walks, and wore their heels down at the corners jerking them out of the cracks between the boards.

Thirty years ago!

In those days, the average person preferred walking up innumerable flights of stairs rather than risk their life in "one of the pesky things," but there were those who enjoyed them, and would offer to pay their fare just as they would on the street car.

According to Clarence the old fashioned elevator was somewhat different to the modern invention, although he says the very latest thing in elevators resemble the old fashioned type in as much as they are of wood, and have the mirrors all around.

Shortly after the Brownell block boasted of an elevator the Richards block had one installed, and Clarence Tubman was asked to operate it. This one was run by steam and was a little advanced over the one in the Brownell building, but it still jerked, and moaned and shook and shuddered when it stopped at the different floors.

Fifteen dollars a month was the salary paid at the Richards building, and that was considered quite a handsome sum for a mere boy to be making in those days. You could do much with fifteen dollars every month, so Clarence says.

Then came the Spanish American war, and the man who ran the elevator in the old McMurtry block enlisted. Clarence took that elevator and operated it for two years. That was when William Jennings Bryan began his first campaign for the presidency of the United States, and Clarence would carry him up and down each day as he went to his office. Robert Furnas, too, made the acquaintance of Clarence during his stay at the McMurtry block, and when he was secretary of the state fair board, he would send Clarence two season tickets every year.

"You certainly come in contact with prominent people," said Clarence, "I just about know them all, for I have been in about every elevator in town.

"Just the other day a lady stepped into the elevator and wanted to go to a certain oculist's office. I recognised her immediately. She used to ride in my elevator at the Ganter building twenty-five years ago, when Drs. Garten and Cook had an office there. I told her that I knew her and she said that she was the lady. Dr. Garten died and since then she has been going to another oculist.

While Clarence was at the McMurtry building he received five dollars a week, but he had to do the janitor work in the hals, too and he thinks he certainly earned his money. At that time there were no elevators as there are now, and the mail would all be given to Clarence and he would have to take it down to the mail box in the lower hall. The letters he couldn't get in the box, he would have to leave on top or on the floor.

Elevators De Luxe.

In those days, too, the elevators were small, and there were upholstered seats all around where the passengers sat. The car would hold only about ten. The sides of the elevators were covered with mirrors, and they were quite dignified looking affairs.

Clarence was the elevator operator in the Richards block for eight and one-half years, and ran the car in the Little building for ten years, he has been the operator in the old Security Mutual building, in the Ganter building, and to tell the truth there are very few if any elevators in town that have not known the experienced hand of Clarence Tubman.

"Time certainly does bring about changes," Clarence says, "When we first had elevators, we had to oil the machines ourselves and if any of the machinery broke, we had to send to Chicago for repairs and then fix it ourselves. Now we don't have to do anything but run them, if they get out of order, a regular elevator mechanic comes and straightens it out.

"There were so few people who could operate elevators when I first began, that there was no relief at noon. We just stopped the elevator until I come back from lunch."

Clarence has watched the people come and the people go. He has also watched the narrow squatty little buildings grow into tall business houses with elaborate offices and the marble stairways, and modern elevators.

He has watched the cobble stone streets grow into wide smoothly paved avenues, and has witnessed the passing of the horse car and the horse.

"I came to Lincoln in 1879" said Clarence, "when there were not more than eight thousand people in Lincoln. Lincoln was a funny place in those days, and no one realized that it would be the pretty place that it is today.

Began at Fourteen.

"I was fourteen years of age when I began as an elevator operator and I liked it so well that I have kept right at it. The wage has changed with the times, and it pays a very good salary now. I began with five dollars a month, then I received ten, and then fifteen and then twenty, on up the ladder up to fifty, seventy-five, and now more than that.

"There is something fascinating about operating an elevator. You see so many people every day, come to know them by sight and name, and make a great many friends. The people I have worked with have always been very good to me. Every Xmas I get all of the way from five dollars to sixty dollars in tips, besides neckties, handkerchiefs, candy and the like. I believe I would be pretty lonesome if I were not on the elevator every day.

"You hear funny things, too, and see some sad sights, you come to know who is having trouble with their eyees, or who is ill, and who is having domestic trouble. You know their doctors and their lawyers, and feel about like one of the family.

"A great many people ask me to recommend lawyers and doctors they come from out of town, and don't know who to have."

Clarence has taken a keen interest in his work. During his vacations he has gone east many times, and has looked up all of the latest devices for elevators, and has even operated the finest in the land just to see the difference.

Ups and Downs.

"There is a big difference in the way the cars run now and the way they did at first," Clarence said. "They run so smoothly now that one hardly knows they are in one, but it wasn't like than years ago. Sometimes the cable would break, and you should have heard the women yell. They thought they were going to die for certain. One time I dropped four flights, broke the elevator pretty badly, but not a person in the car was even hurt.

"Another time I dwent up through the roof, lost control of the car, and thought my time had come, but no one was hurt even then.

"You know people are funny, if something happens while there are a good many passengers on the car, some one will say 'O, this car is out of order just two thirds of the time,' when in reality it probably is only out of order about two or three times in a year. Sometimes the car needs a little oiling, it jerks, or squeaks or something and I will go behind the car to reach the machinery. Then you should hear what the passengers say. They don't know that I can hear, and each one contributes something about

Clarence Tubman as a youth.

"ONE DAY I THOUGHT MY TIME HAD COME. I LOST CONTROL OF THE ELEVATOR AND WENT ON UP THROUGH THE ROOF."

"AT CHRISTMAS I GET ALL THE WAY FROM $5 TO $60 IN TIPS."

IF THE CAR HAS TO STOP FOR SLIGHT REPAIRS SOMEBODY WILL SAY, "THIS CAR IS OUT OF ORDER." TWO THIRDS OF THE TIME.

Newton King Handled Difficult Task At Infamous Andersonville Prison

BY LULU MAE COE.

Andersonville prison—a name bringing shudders to the reader of history. A name that conjures nightmares of frightfulness in the minds of those who were forced to spend weeks and months there. A name that makes those soldiers of the Civil War stare glaringly, and then look out over the pleasant city streets with a little pang of thankfulness, happy that this is the reality and the other the past.

Sixty years have gone by since men have suffered in that shelterless, arid prison pen, but those men speak of it with hesitation. They tell of it only upon being pressed, and then with eloquent gestures, to take the place of some thoughts that are too strong for words. They want to forget, these old men, and they want to push their knowledge far into the oblivion of memory.

There are several veterans in Lincoln who witnessed the sights in Andersonville prison, beacuse they were there as prisoners from the union army. There are men who lived through those dark days and nights of agony, seeing others give up their lives, rather than face the conditions in which they were existing. There are men who spent the most violent months of their lives in Andersonville, of which one man wrote in his diary: "I can't write any more and there is no man living who can tell what misery a man can go through until he tries it. . . . I don't think there ever was such misery on God's earth before."

Probably of the few remaining veterans of the prison here, Newton King, who is now over eighty years of age, had one of the most unique experiences. He lives at 1033 F street, going out for his daily walking and living in the past. However, he recalls with difficulty his days in Andersonville, for he has spent long years in trying to forget them, and to forget the sorrow he had to cause in line of duty.

Newton King's Experience.

Newton King enlisted in the Eighty-fifth Illinois volunteers in June of 1862 and went into camp at Peoria. From there he was sent to Springfield and then in the fall into the country near Louisville, Kentucky. Fighting and skirmishing, the second brigade, fourth division, department of the Cumberlands, gradually worked south until a large portion of the time was spent near Nashville, Tennessee. In the middle of the summer of 1864, Mr. King and a number of other soldiers were taken prisoners by the southern army, during encampment after a march.

The attack did not take place in a regular engagement. During the afternoon, Mr. King's regiment had been crossing a small stream, Peachtree creek. There was delay and misunderstanding among the officers and the orders, and a long time was consumed in crossing the rather narrow creek. Finally the line was safely on the far side, but so long had been the delay that it was decided to make camp at that point. The idea was unfortunate, as during the night the union troops were surprised with an attack, resulting in the loss of one hundred men to the rebels.

The prisoners, Mr. King among them, were taken to Atlanta, preparatory to the trip to Andersonville, which lies some distance southwest of that city. Being detained there in an enclosure all night was quite mild to the days that were to come. The following morning the prisoners were loaded into box cars and sent upon their journey to the prison. Arrived at the prison, fatigued with months of fighting and tired of the journey, they were kept outside for hours in formation by the officer in charge of the prison.

Once within the prison, the hundred newcomers found about twenty-five thousand other men, all war prisoners. In this unsheltered enclosure, the men were allowed to erect their little tents by collecting tree limbs for the tent poles, the limbs being secured from trees, outside the stockade and the dead line and secured under guard. The majority of the men inside had only their army blankets made into crude tents as protection from the rains and the intense heat. The prison lots were bare of grass and trees, as they were of pleasure and hope.

Exchange of Prisoners.

When Mr. King had been in Andersonville a month or six weeks negotiations were begun between the northern and southern commanders for the exchange of prisoners to the number of 2,000. From this motley assemblage of 25,000, composed of all the elements of a small city, Mr. King and nineteen others were chosen to select the fortunate 2,000. The orders read that the men must be able bodied, able to march to the point of exchange, somewhere near the line of battle, and come from a certain section of the country, and free from illness.

To Mr. King it is a mystery why he was chosen for this important place, as a great deal depended upon his choice of men. However, the person who selected the chosen few from the many had to be a person of education, so that his reports could be written legibly. He also needed to be of highest integrity and honesty, for he could show no favoritism, but only strict attention to duty, even in the face of many pitiful pleas. A judge of character he had to be, for his report depended upon the men's replies, and he ruled whether or not the men were telling the truth.

Newton King is now living quietly at his home in Lincoln, but sixty years ago he was taking an active part in the Civil war with the Eighty-fifth Illinois volunteers. He participated in many battles ,finally being captured in a surprise attack and taken to Andersonville prison. He does not like to recall the summer months spent there, but certain distinction and honor came to him within that stockade when he was chosen to pick part of 2,000 prisoners who were to be sent nort hinto the fighting forces.

There was only one way to choose the men, and that was to go among the twelve or fifteen hundred in his section, asking question of those who appeared in good health and who could stand the haardships of further fighting. He choose the hardy ones, one by one, securing their name, address, place of enlistment, company, regiment, age, and general physical condition.

Those who were unable manifestly to make the change, Mr. King had to ignore, even though, as he says, it was on the hardest duties to pass them by, as they were the ones who needed the change. Because of the unsanitary condition of the prison, the men chosen in nearly all cases had been in the shortest time, the others contracting diseases in a remarkably brief space of time.

Many Disappointed.

From the ones he found to be in good condition, he had to choose a certain number for the two thousand quota of the camp from the healthiest in his contingent. He caused much despair again, for some who had hoped their chance for an escape had come were disappointed, in that their requirements were not as high as certain others. Of the thousands of men in the prison camp, Mr. King chose something around one hundred from his section to go out, leaving thirteen hundred of his own men despondent, doomed to stay at Andersonville.

Because he had been at the prison only a few weeks, Mr. King was one of those who were exchanged, and who went with the others to join the northern army. Late in the war as it waas, perhaps his choice helped to bring the end. Perhaps the men he sent, fired by the terrible straits of those they had left, fought a little harder for the end, that those might be freed. To history, his may have not been the heroic position, but to those in his unit he may have seemed to do his duty even more honorably than was required, and because he did the end came a little sooner.

COTNER NOTES.

Dean Winters in company with Miss Lola Duncan left Thursday morning for the convention of deans of women and campfire directors which is being held at Manhattan, Kansas. Miss Duncan is secretarial director of the Lincoln Campfire, and is a daughter of Dean Duncan of Cotner. The convention was held at the state agricultural college of Kansas.

Mrs. S. R. McKelvie addressed the Cotner home building class Thursday afternoon. A large number of visitors as well as the members of the class heard Mrs. McKelvie.

Hugh Lomax, field secretary for Kansas, spent Sunday with the Christian church at Tescott Kansas, where A. E. Weed a former Cotner student, is pastor. Rev. Weed reports that the largest audience ever known to be in the building greeted Mr. Lomax. Chairs were carried in until every clause in the city fire ordinance was violated and still the people were turned away.

President Cobbey spent Sunday with the First Christian church at Omaha. The occasion was that of welcoming his successor in the pulpit. Rev. George A. Miller of Washington, D. C., follows Mr. Cobbey at Omaha. Dean Shellenberger filled the pulpit there in the interim between President Cobbey's administration and the coming of Mr. Miller.

Thanksgiving services were held in the College chapel at 8:30 Thanksgiving day. Dillard Lessley led the song service. Miss Mildred Sanstead sang the special solo, and Hugh Lomax, field secretary, made the address of the morning. His main theme was that the Puritanism that is largely responsible for the settlement of the United States is a great cause for Thanksgiving. He contrasted South American conditions with North American, showing that the difference is largely a difference in religion rather than resources.

P. B. Cope, field secretary for Nebraska and the Dakotas, spent last Sunday at Harvard, Nebraska. He spoke to the high school on Monday.

Mrs. J. M. Reed spent Sunday with her daughter, Lottie, at the dormitory.

Mrs. Miller of Topeka Kansas has been visiting her daughter Mildred the last week.

Miss Lola Raver, '22, was on the campus homecoming day. Miss Raver is teaching in the high school at Powhattan Kansas.

Miss Wiser who is also teaching in Powhattan, accompanied Miss Raver to Cotner, and was a guest of Inez Med for the week end.

Clarence Crawford spent the week end at the home of Miss Lillian Schlentz, David City.

Miss Eva Dean spent Thanksgiving and week end visiting Rev. Dobbs and family at Aurora.

Miss Bertha Fishback spent Thanksgiving and Sunday at Norfolk with her mother and father. Mr. Fishback is still confined to his bed from the auto accident of some weeks ago.

KILLS CATARRH GERMS

Chronic bronchial asthma and catarrh yield almost instantly to treatment with Lavex, the amazing discovery of a noted French scientist. You should get this tested germicide and prove for yourself that within a few minutes after the first application your head and bronchial passages are cleared almost like magic. Thousands of chronic sufferers have been relieved in a single night by this remarkable treatment, the same as used in the famous Philadelphia clinic. In this clinic it was proved that the only way to treat catarrh and bronchial asthma is to kill the germs. Lavex is harmless to persons of any age. It is guaranteed to hurt nothing but the germs which cause trouble. The Owl pharmacy sells and guarantees Lavex. Get yours today.—Advertisement.

"I want to give the Fuller Hair Brush for Christmas!"

THIS CHRISTMAS GIVE ELECTRICAL GIFTS

THOSE who are wise in the ways of giving will choose useful things this Christmas, knowing that such gifts will be welcomed and used, and the giver gratefully remembered long after Christmas is passed.

For this reason Electrical Appliances should play an important part in your gift list, especially those "Electric Servants" that save hours of toil and drudgery.

Happily, the expenditure of large sums is unnecessary. The offerings below suggest scores of electrical gifts, useful as well as decorative, that may be purchased at small outlay. Of course, the better choice comes from buying now!

Here Are Our Suggestions

--for Gas and Electrical Gifts!

A Voss Gift Lasts All Year

Beyond all question, the Voss Sea Wave Washer is the world's finest Electric Washing Machine. It is their crowning achievement.

How much do you value experience? What does it mean to you to buy the product of a manufacturer who has been specializing on one thing for forty-four years? The Voss makes an ideal gift.

A Beautiful Detroit Jewel Will Delight Her

This is what Mother wants for Christmas — a shining new, clean, modern cabinet Gas Range. A wonderful range with convenient oven and broiler AND GAS—the clean, quick, ready fuel so reasonable and so abundant.

Holiday Special

Could a woman receive a more worth while gift than our Holiday Special Cabinet Gas Range. Come in and see it. Also a number of other models especially priced for quick selling. Purchases held for future delivery if desired.

A Hoover Cleaner

"Hoover Cleaning" is quick, easy and thorough—no more back-breaking sweeping or tiresome dusting. With the Hoover your rugs are cleaned and kept clean and they wear longer. Let us demonstrate. Easy comfortable payments.

YOU never see an electric appliance put away on a shelf or up in the attic with the soon-discarded Christmas gifts. A lamp is used and enjoyed every time that dusk falls. A toaster is present at every breakfast. An electric iron is used on an average of five hours a week. And as often as any of these gifts is put to work, you and your generosity and thoughfulness are recalled. Give electrical servants for Christmas.

Years Come in Spite of All You Can Do But Age You Bring On Yourself Says J. A. Campbell

BY LYNNELLE GREER.

J. A. Campbell snaps his fingers and 'pooh poohs' the idea of old age.

And J. A. Campbell has a reason. He is eighty-seven years old, and before many months will be eighty-eight. He is strong, sturdy, and outside of a little defective hearing is in "A 1" condition.

"It's all in your mind," says J. A. Campbell. "There is a mighty difference between years and age. Years, of course, you can't help, they come in spite of everything, but age you bring on yourself."

Just to show you that Mr. Campbell really believes what he says we will tell you about the trip he is now planning to take and how he intends taking it.

Over a Ford chassis, Mr. Campbell is building a bungalow. To be honest it is an apartment, a three room kitchenette and bath affair, with every convenience imaginable, and it is on wheels.

Bound For California.

Next week sometime, Mr. Campbell expects to furnish his little apartment with all of the necessary equipment, and then, together with his two housekeepers, the Misses Mary and Emily Sturdie, he is going to begin his trip to California.

"The girls haven't been off of the place for fourteen years," said Mr. Campbell. "So I thought I'd give 'em a treat and take them to California. I will do the driving, and they will do the cooking. We will go to the coast the southern route, and return the northern route, and we won't be back until next June sometime."

The front of the apartment belongs to Mr. Campbell. It is arranged so that during the day, the three travelers may sit comfortably on the long seat, which in the evening will be converted into a bed for Mr. Campbell.

A partition divides Mr. Campbell's compartment from that of the ladies, who will have a larger one with two berths, lower and upper. There is a small door leading into a dressing room at one side, and another small door leading either to the front of the car or outside. There is one room where the cooking and eating will be done. The table and chairs will fold up and be out of the way except when in use. A gasoline stove will occupy one wall, and a small cupboard for dishes will be close to it. A small space will be arranged for luggage, and altogether it will be quite a complete home on wheels.

"Eighty-seven!" you say. "Pretty good age for a man to be starting a motor trip to the coast."

As Strong As in 1856.

Very true, but you don't know Mr. Campbell. He is just as strong and as straight and healthy and wholesome as he was in 1856 when he reached his majority. He was born in 1835, and in the same town where he was born, there were several little boys and girls born the same year.

About twenty years ago Mr. Campbell made a trip back to his old home and found one man there his own age, the others had died.

"I went to see my friend," said Mr. Campbell," and found that he was an old man. 'How are you?' I asked him. 'Well, pretty well, pretty well, for a man my age, but I'm not young anymore,' and then away he went telling me how old he was and all of the things that were the matter with him.

"I just laughed at him, and told him he should be ashamed for being so old at his years. He tried to tell me that he was older than I, but I said 'Now hold on, hold on there, we were both born in 1835, so I am just about as old as you are.' There he was, trying to make himself and every one else think he was about ready to die, when he was still very young.

"I went to see another friend of mine who was several years younger, and found him almost glued to a padded chair, had a cane and just thought he was the oldest person living. I told him straight from the shoulder what I thought of a man as young as he was who would sit down and make every one wait on him, and think he was old.

"It really is all in your mind if you just believe it is. It doesn't pay to worry about anything, for worry never helps, only to make you old.

Do Nothing But Wait.

"The trouble is when years creep on, people just wait, do nothing but wait. They think they are going to die soon, and spend their time thinking about it. That makes them old in their mind, and when they are old in their mind they become old physically, and then they are really old.

"Keep going,' that's my motto, and then you don't wear out. Keep yourself busy and you forget about being old, and when you don't think about it, you don't get told."

Mr. Campbell made the second talking machine that was ever made. Edison made the first, and then he printed explicit directions in the Scientific American as to how they were to be made. Mr. Campbell followed the directions closely, and had a sure enough machine when it was completed.

"The boys at the shop had great fun with it," said Mr. Campbell. I never bothered much with it after it was made, I didn't have time, but the boys enjoyed it.

"Mr. Campbell is a great reader, philosophy and psychology are his hobbies when it comes to reading. He keeps himself busy all of the time, doing one thing or another around the place. He is content, and happy, and the sparkle in his eyes, his very ruddy skin and his stalwartness are all evidences of good health, and probably many more years.

COTNER NOTES.

Mrs. John Schull has gone to Topeka, Kansas, for a two weeks visit with her parents.

Miss Martha Carl, Amy and Carol Cornelius, Messrs. Fay Stephenson and Ira Mitchell spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Cornelius of Humboldt.

Florence Thorpe, '22, spent the week end with her parents in Bethany. Miss Thorpe is teaching in the high school at Clay Center Neb.

The class basketball championship of last week's tournament went to the Sophomores.

The annual football banquet was held last Monday night in the dormitory dining room. Almost two hundred plates were laid. The dinner was planned and directed by Den Winters. The high school team from the Bethany high school were guests of the evening. Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Snavely, Mr. and Mrs. Dugall, all of Lincoln, Rev. C. F. Stevens pastor of the Bethany Christian church, Supt. Mapes and Principal and Coach Parmenter both of the Bethany high, were invited guests. The toasts were all responded to by members of the different teams. Mark Bock was chosen captain for the coming year. President Cobbey was toastmaster of the evening. It was a "gay" evening. Riotous joy reigned. Every one is now turning his athletic interest to basketball.

New Method of Reducing Fat

A news item from abroad informs us that the American method of producing a slim, trim figure is meeting with astonishing success. This system, which has made such a wonderful impression over there, must be the Marmola Prescription Tablet method of reducing fat. It is safe to say that we have nothing better for this purpose in this country. Anything that will reduce the excess flesh steadily and easily without injury to the stomach, the causing of wrinkles, the help of exercising or dieting, or interference with one's meals is a mighty important and useful addition to civilization's necessities. Just such a catalogue of good results follow the use of these pleasant, harmless and economical little fat reducers. We say economical because Marmola Prescription Tablets (made in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription) can be obtained of any druggist the world over or from the Marmola Company, 4612 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich., for one dollar a case, which is a decidedly economical price, considering the number of tablets each case contains. They are harmless.—Advertisement.

A SACRIFICE TO SCIENCE.

Professor Vaillant, director of the X-ray laboratory of Lariboisiere hospital, according to a Paris dispatch, has just undergone the thirteenth operation in an effort to end the resistless creep of a strange malady which withers his flesh and which is a direct result of his experimentation in the X-ray field. His left arm has already been amputated to the shoulder and his right arm at the elbow. The operations began with the removal of affected fingers, each succeeding amputation being made in an effort to check the spread of the blight.

If ever a medical man has been a martyr to his profession and to the science of healing, Professor Vaillant is entitled to that title. His terrible plight is directly caused by his experimentation with the X-ray, powerful healing agent and powerful agent for harm, that it can be. He dared to handle the dangerous and unknown light when it was new and therefore deadly. For years he has labored in improving this great discovery so that it would do the most good in the healing of the ailments of mankind only to fall a victim in the end of the ravages of his own tools.

There is no reason for alarm in the announcement of the slow death this scientist must face from the effects of the X-ray. Other earlier experimenters with the same rays met death from their effects but from their experiences and misfortunes as well as from the discoveries they made and for which they perished, the modern practitioner has learned to harness this terrible force so securely that neither the scientist nor the patient is in any danger from X-ray treatments.

Dr. Roscoe L. Smith, X-ray specialist and owner of one of the most powerful and complete outfits in the country, has handled X-ray machines for ten years without receiving a single burn. He explains, however that Professor Vaillant recognized as an authority in the X-ray investigations, handled the rays for many years before adequate protection for the operator was available or its need was realized. As a consequence, he subjected his arms, and probably his whole body repeatedly to the rays and now, years after these expostures were made, the body is showing the effects of this blighting light. His present terrible state is due to the inadequacy of his protection and to his careless consideration of person in the pursuit of his investigations.

A visit to the modern X-ray laboratory makes it easy to understand how the early experimenter had little means and perhaps less realization of the need of protecting himself from the X-ray. Where the rays are used for curative purposes on limited portions of the human body, the patient is covered completely with lead sheeting, placed in a lead lined room, treated with rays that pass through metal to filter their burning properties. Precautions are so complete that out of hundreds and thousands of treatments no one is injured and the patient and the specialist are both protected from all possible danger. But these are precautions of a later age, since the X-ray has been studied and its secrets learned. Professor Vaillant had no such protection in the early days.

He pays the price that most pioneers in any advanced science must pay. He leaves a powerful agent for good, harnessed and controlled, free from danger and offering unsolved blessings to the lame and the halt and the blind. And he is dying a horrible lingering death from the very cure he helped perfect. The thousands who have X-ray to thank for their health and happiness will breath a blessing for Professor Vaillant whose name is so nearly like the word we would use to describe him.

BUSINESS SHOWS A GAIN.

The November review of financial conditions in the Tenth Federal Reserve district, issued from Kansas City, is overflowing with conservative optimism. Reviewing the situation at a glance and picking out "high spots" almost every set of statistics show material improvement over the previous month and over the same month a year ago. In many instances the recovery has been complete enough to place business on a basis second only to that enjoyed during the war boom.

Building in 19 cities in the district during October amounted to $9,513,559, permits numbered 3,088, an increase over the previous month of 12.6 per cent for the first ten months of 1922 the construction in the district amounted to $83,631,651, an increase of 38.7 per cent over last year. Business failures increased slightly in numbers but decrease in liabilities. Coal mining decreased from September but increased over October 1921. Crude oil production continued to gain rapidly.

Live stock markets are close to war time volume with some receipts setting new records. Meat packing has taken a corresponding jump. Wheat receipts decreased from September but increase substantially over October 1921. The freight car shortage has hindered the rapid recovery to some extent and has the maintenance of high freight rates.

Loans and discounts have been moderately expanded, reflecting the improvement generally in business circles. Savings banks continue to show increased deposits, an argument that convinces the skeptical that hard times have gone.

There is no need for Nebraskans to feel alarm in the government's report that the death rate for 1922 has gained on the death rate of 1921 and that the birth rate for 1922 is not on a par with the birth rate of 1921. That condition is not true in Nebraska. In fact this state appears to be almost, if not quite the most healthy state in the union, although children are not as numerous as in some fifteen or twenty of our sister states.

The death rate in Nebraska for 1921 was 9.2 per thousand on the average. For the nation as a whole it was 11.3 and only one state, Montana, was listed with a lower rate. For the first half of 1922 the rate for Nebraska has been 10.1 with five states listed as having lower rates during that half year. The national average for the same time is 12.6 per thousand.

In the birth statistics Nebraska does not rate so high. The birth rate the country over for 1921 was 24.4 per thousand and for Nebraska was 24.5. During the first half of 1922 the rate in the nation fell to 22.7 while in Nebraska it fell to 23.0. Nebraska ranks about half way between North Carolina where the birth rate in 1921 was 33.8 and Oregon where it was 19.3.

MR. HARDING'S MESSAGE.

In addressing his message to congress, President Harding was fully conscious that the two years of his administration have failed to satisfy the desires of the great mass of American voters nor measured up to their expectations. There is an undertone of reproval for those demanding what he terms impossible legislative relief from purely economic problems.

It was the last message which Mr. Harding will deliver that may have a bearing on the elections of 1924 Its recommendations constitute the basis for formulating final judgment on his administration. Those recommendations which he may submit at a later time can hardly be crystallized into legislation in time to exert a noticeable influence on the next presidential congress. For this reason, then, and for the added reason that it is more vigorous in tone and more sweeping in its concessions to the progressive thought of the middle west, Mr. Harding's message deserves the serious consideration of thoughtful people.

The president sums up the difficulties of the agricultural section with recommendations for more elastic credits both as to land and production. He suggests that the farm loan bureau and the federal land bank acts should be extended to provide the necessary credit for the hard-pressed farmer loaded down with high-priced land and at the same time provide for the marketing of his crops under the most advantageous conditions. The same recommendation is extended to the live stock industry in which Nebraska is also vitally interested. It is a greater concession than Mr. Harding has heretofore made to the middle west. It does not, however, strike at the greatest problem which now confronts the Nebraska farmer, and that is an adequate compensatory market for the crops which he produces.

Nebraska has raised two bountiful crops in the last two years and in the face of record production, the farmers have been compelled to market their crops at a loss because of the low prices of agricultural products. No extension of credit will very materially advance the prices of agricultural products for any sustained period of time by creating an abnormal market.

The president attempts to reach this problem by suggesting that transportation costs are the greatest irritant to a recovery of agriculture. No one would be disposed to take issue with him. One of the most difficult problems in any country involving vast stretches of land, where the cost of transportation must necessarily be heavy, is transportation. We can all echo approval to link steel rails and waterways in the effort to very materially reduce the cost of transportation, particularly on the bulky raw materials. The suggestion to co-ordinate transportation facilities appears to be another move for standardization, a principle which has been rejected by the people of America. So far nothing has appeared which would insure the efficient management of the weaker roads, making it necessary for the transportation lines successfully managed to carry the burden of the weak. That is precisely the burden which the people, and particularly the agricultural sections, are now carrying.

Mr. Harding approaches the problem of higher labor costs with the statement that both sides are wrong. The president is dissatisfied with the work of the labor board and suggests some other tribunal to replace it, presumably with power to enforce its decisions both as to employer and employe, when a very large proportion of the nation is affected by the controversy.

It is rather difficult to interpret just what Mr. Harding had in mind in his references to the prohibitory amendment. Certainly the suggestion of a conference between the president and the governors of the different states should be welcomed. There is no question that today there is a difference in interpretation and a duplication in the enforcement of prohibition.

Nearly two years have now elapsed since Mr. Harding took office. During that time it is generally admitted that conditions in Europe have become more demoralized and will continue to grow worse unless some strong stabilizing force exerts its influence. It was not unreasonable to expect the president to set forth more clearly his views on America's foreign policy. This, he has failed to do. His generalities with reference to America's world relationships are of the same stock in trade as his campaign utterances and his pronouncements since then. They are decisive only in that, to borrow an expression from Mr. Wilson's critics, he will be content to play a role of "watchful waiting."

Mr. Harding regards the domestic problem of transcending importance to the stabilizing of world conditions. The matter of foreign markets—the most urgent need of America today—must wait until Europe arises from her sick bed or sinks into her grave.

Comment by the Press

WAR WARNINGS.

Pleading for adequate preparedness for war by means of an efficient regular army, military reserves and training camps or young men, Gen. Pershing, in his Chamber of Commerce speech, warned the country of the possibility of war. Calling attention to wars and preparation for war in Europe he said no one could tell when a war would be started in which we would be forced to participate. In the absence of guarantees against war he did not pretend to say when another war would come, but it would come. We have engaged in a major war without any aggression on our part, but for principle, every twenty years, and there is no guarantee that the record will not be continued.

Gen. Pershing's warning emphasizes the predictions of three public men of distinction and world-wide fame in one day. In the Sunday Post-Dispatch Clemenceau, H. G. Wells and Senator Borah gave warning of another war. It was a remarkable and sinister symposium of predictions of possible disaster.

Clemenceau in his St. Louis speech, depicting the terrible conditions in Europe and urging us to lend our strength and influence to the stabilizing of Europe and the guaranteeing of peace, said, ominously: "You may have to come; take care it is not too late."

H. G. Wells, painting a vivid picture of the collapse of our system of civilization in Russia, Austria, Hungary and Poland, and the paralysis which is creeping westward, spoke of the probability of war—"another war to end war."

Senator Borah, speaking in Boston and pleading for the recognition of Russia and the elimination of fear and suspicion between nations as a means of averting war, said that within two years the situation in the Near East may bring on war.

How can we hope to escape the consequences of the collapse of the existing system of industry and trade and commercial exchange which has ruined Eastern Europe, is not ruining Germany threatening France and Italy and closing the industries of Great Britain if the paralysis is not quickly checked?

How can we hope to escape participation if another world war grows out of the misery and turmoil of Europe?

These warnings are not idle words. They are based upon actual conditions which invariably, and with far less cause, have led to war and increased disaster.

The warning, in plain language is this: If we do not help to obtain sound peace settlements, to re-establish the falling system of industry and trade and maintain peace; if we do not use our great strength and potent influence to assure peace, we will have to use our wealth and manpower for our own defense and safety in a world again at war.

Gen. Pershing, therefore, in urging reasonable measures of preparedness through the training of citizen officers and soldiers and through the maintenance of a merchant marine, reasons well. Secretary Denby is right in saying that we must have a navy second to none.

There is, however, a better way—an immeasurably less costly way—to assure our safety and prosperity. That is to join hands with other nations in rehabilitating war-stricken countries, stabilizing exchange, adjusting international disputes and guaranteeing peace.

The alternatives of preparing for war and suffering the cost and disaster of war or averting war by international co-operation are before us.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

World Crisis in 1923 if Political Situation Does Not Take Better Turn---Gibbs

BY SIR PHILIP GIBBS.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—World politics at the present moment are in a state of arrested development. It is as though all leaders and all governments were busily engaged in doing nothing in order to gain time before they must face some tremendous crisis rapidly approaching. Not only governments, but peoples seem anxious to avoid an actual clash of realities which may be full of peril and are anyhow unpleasant.

In Great Britain, the United States and Germany recent elections have resulted in administrations which have no popular mandate for strong and active policies, but rather for compromise and postponement of vital questions and the evasion of difficult and dangerous problems. Only in Italy, under Mussolini and his Blackshirts, and in Turkey, under Mustapha Kemal and his Moslem soldiers, has there been audacity of leadership and a kind of brutal challenge to the decrees of fate. Most other nations have pretended that all will go well in the world if it is only let alone.

Unfortunately there are certain enormous questions that must be settled before it can begin to go well and this policy of postponement cannot last more than a few weeks or few months longer. The new year that will soon be here will be a decisive year in world history, when those problems can no longer be evaded but will demand immediate settlement unless there is to be a great crash leading to widespread chaos and conflict.

It is interesting and profitable to glance for a moment at those men at present in power who will have to deal with world history in 1923 and face the biggest crisis we have ever seen.

Harding Faces Task.

In the United States there is President Harding, very cautious, utterly honest, benevolently well meaning, but with no mandate from his people and no support in congress to deal with world problems with any boldness of vision or any high and noble audacity of statesmanship, such as all the world needs today, and such as the United States of America alone among all nations has strength and means to give. It looks as though in 1923 President Harding and his administration will play for safety, compromise, in all things, and look on as benevolent, but inactive observers of the Euro-Asian and Asiatic melodrama.

In Great Britain there is Bonar Law, lacking all the erratic brilliancy of Lloyd George, but steady going and as business-like as the general manager of a dry goods store, with a clear, commonplace, uninspired brain devoid of imagination and narrow in prejudice. Behind him are a number of excellent gentlemen, many of them peers and most of them honest, also rather limited in qualities of leadership and with no claim to inspiration. They are faced by the formidable opposition of the Labor Party and Liberals far more brilliant in personality, with all chances of attack on their side, so that the government will be checked at every turn.

In Germany there is no secure government at all, and every party is waiting breathlessly on future events without any policy of reconstruction, because at any moment there may be complete chaos. Nobody in Germany can control this situation, which is at the mercy of forces bearing down on German life from without and within. They are forces of militarist and monarchist reaction, of revolutionary, labor and economic distress and made finance. And always there is the threat and power of France to impose penalties which would smash the machinery of German life. The present German government is merely a stop-gap. Stinnes, as industrial dictator, is still manipulating enormous trusts, still calling upon German labor to work harder on starvation wages, still ready to make any concession to France provided he is able to get raw material for his industry and bleed his workers white by paper wages which lose their purchasing power week by week.

French Still Stubborn.

In France there is still Poincare, clinging desperately to his old obstinacy of view that in the last resort it is better to ruin Germany than let France remain insecure as well as unpaid, but willing to make a bargain with England to forego vengeance on Germany if England will guarantee the German indemnities and wipe out French debts. Poincare is the most outstanding figure in Europe now that Lloyd George has gone and he has qualities of gretness in strength of character, courage and ruthlessness which will make him a man of destiny in 1923, provided the French people will continue their support. That is not at all certain. There are many Frenchmen, not audible in the French press, who prefer to cut their losses rather than inflict penalties on Germany which would not anyhow produce much money for France and would certainly arouse such hate and misery among the Germans that they would turn sooner or later like a wounded beast, perhaps with the Russian bear to help them.

Poincare knows this feeling exists in France and is growing stronger. He knows also that the French people may be willing to use their standing army for police work, but that they will not risk another war during this generation for any reason on earth. Poincare has to make his decision about Germany during the few weeks that remain in this year. It will depend first of all upon his estimate of French popular feeling and next upon his conversation through diplomatic channels with Bonar Law and Lord Curzon. In my belief he will not get much satisfaction.

Limit to Generosity.

The British government and people wish to be generous to France up to the last possible limit. We have not been ungenerous and hundreds of thousands of pounds have been sent to France by private charity for the rebuilding of Verdun and other towns. We have not asked her yet to pay one single penny of that five hundred and eighty-four million pounds which we lent to her in time of war. We have wiped it out of our books and out memory. But it is impossible for Great Britain to pay German's debts to France by way of guarantee or loan. Such an idea, pressed again and again by French newspapers, is beyond all words fantastic and absurd. But the French government is in desperate plight financially and Poincare must face an immense deficit due to non-payment of German reparations. In some way or other he must act before the next year is a week or two old. No longer can that question be postponed and it raises every issue in Europe today destructive of all tranquility.

Another statesman of Europe will not be left out of account in next year's reckoning. That is Lenin, whose sinister personality still dominates Russia. So far, western governments, including France, the United States and Great Britain, have refused to recognize the Soviet rule, but whether it is recognized or not it is there, patient, watchful and active in a secret way.

Lenin believes that 1923 will be a fateful year of world history. His supporters, like Chicerin and Radek, are convinced that Russia will re-enter Europe as a great power whose weight will decided many issues according to which side it is flung. They are open to bargain with Germany, France or Great Britain upon equal terms. They will make use of German revolution to frighten France and England if it happens that way, or they will back France and Turkey against England and Germany if that way is open. They are without prejudice and without scruples and will sell their power to that bidder who serves their interests best. But these people are not easy in their minds. They too cannot wait long for decisive events.

Russia Still Hungry.

Russia is no longer famine stricken as last year, but it is still hungry and in February and March next year Russian supplies will be low again and famine will once more creep over many densely populated districts. In Moscow now there is since my visit there a fair outward semblance of trade and prosperity. Shops and restaurants are open again and markets are busy with private trading. Communism and rationing have been abandoned in actual practice, though communists still mouth their creed.

In Petrograd, I am told by recent travellers, there is a blaze of light down Nevski Prospect and articles of luxury, mostly of German make, are in all the shops. But below all that show and glitter of new conditions there is immense, despairing misery and creeping paralysis among a hundred million people. Lenin and his followers must devise some way of escape before many months have passed.

All that is working up to a world crisis stop in 1923. There will be great history made for good or evil. As I have hinted, we have no great men as leaders. We have only commonplace cautious governments or men driven with their backs to the wall and rather desperate. It is not a very reassuring prospect and yet personally I believe we shall avoid the worst things that might happen because all European peoples are in dread of war and some general kind of wisdom, which men call common sense, is slowly emerging and growing in influence among the masses of humble men and women who are doing honest work in life and will not be pulled off their jobs for another bout of massacre.

Freight and Perishable Products.

LINCOLN, Dec. 9.—To the Editor of The Star: The writer believes that in justice to grower and consumer of perishable farm crops that there should be a sliding scale freight rate based on the selling price of some terminal market. For instance, if potatoes in western Nebraska are worth $1.50 a hundred and freight to Chicago is 30 cents a hundred when these potatoes drop to $1 a hundred the freight should drop to 20 cents a hundred and on the other hand if potatoes advanced to $2 a hundred the freight should advance to 40 cents a hundred. Such a rate would be fair to all parties concerned, producer, transporter and consumer. With a stationary rate it often happens that the producer must let his produce rot because the freight would eat it up if shipped and if it isn't shipped the railroad lays off train crews and lets cars stand idle while the people who would use the produce at a moderate price must either pay an increased price or do without.

Last season several thousand car loads of fruit and melons rotted in California because the freight rates wouldn't leave the producer anything if shipped, but the melons and fruit could all have been consumed if the freight had been down.

If any railroad official reads this we would like to ask him if it wouldn't pay a railroad better to move these big crops at a lower rate rather than have cars stand idle. Would you be willing to give a low rate on low priced produce if you could be assured of a high rate on high priced produce.

We believe that if a just and equitable sliding rate could be put into effect on all car loads of farm produce that it would indirectly benefit everybody. It surely would help both producer and consumer and we believe the railroads as well. None of us would complain of a rate that should show the railroads a profit over their investment. We never could see where a railroad could earn dividends on idle cars and train crews.

If a man would never work except when he could dictate a very high price for his labor he would be headed straight for the poor house and probably die there. If a sliding scale of rates would hurt anybody we fail to see who it could be.

Hints for the Christmas Shopper

Star Reporter Visits Lincoln Stores to Gather Lists of Attractive Suggestions For Every Member of Every Family—Things You Might Never Think Of But Which Will Delight the Heart of Your Dear Ones—At Prices as variable as the Articles Themselves.

BY JESSIE WATSON.

In order to help Star readers to think of appropriate gifts for their friends on their Christmas shopping list a reporter went to various stores and collected a long list of suggestions. Some of them are given here.

Many people have no difficulty in selecting gifts for women and girls, but when it comes to buying a present for a man they are up against it.

If dad has a desk, either at home or at the office, a desk set would be very nice for the family to give him. These come in many styles and they make equally appropriate gifts for ladies. If a person wants to give a smaller present a single piece for a desk may be selected, for instance a perpetual calendar.

Monogramed stationery always makes a nice gift. The latest thing in stationery for young men to use for personal and semi-business purposes has the name and address engraved in place of the monogram. This is cast in a tiny die and can be used on the envelope as well. The gift usually consists of the die and a small amount of the engraved stationery. This is appropriate for a young lady to give a gentleman friend.

Brief cases are practical gifts for business men who carry papers home from the office to work on them.

Every man likes to play games, and if he is not already equipped with these he would appreciate a set of playing cards, checkers or chess.

For the Man Who Smokes.

For the man who smokes there are many attractive articles, some of them made up in brand new styles this season. Either a set or a single piece may be given. For a single piece a cedar-lined humidor is nice.

In the line of jewelry a watch is the nicest gift a man could receive. There is something very personal about a watch because of the constant association with it. The styles now are smaller than they were a few years ago.

If a man belongs to a fraternal order, a piece of jewelry bearing the lodge emblem—a ring or a watch charm—makes a nice gift.

Among the smaller gifts, cuff buttons and stick pins are always favorites. A silver belt buckle, initialed or monogramed, would be appreciated.

There are many leather articles that are inexpensive, bill cases, key cases, card purses. The card purse is nice for a man who belongs to a number of organizations for which he has to carry his membership card. Kept in the case they are always accessible and do not wear out.

The articles of clothing that could be presented to a man are almost endless: Hosiery shirt, neck tie, umbrella, sweater, house slippers, cane, bath robe, house coat, hat, buckskin or mocha gloves, handkerchiefs, muffler, etc.

Christmas Clothing.

A lounging robe in oriental silk, or in matlass is a nice gift for a young married man. The older man, who makes his choice for comfort more than appearance, prefers the blanket or tweed. The terry robes are also popular.

Two kinds of sweaters prevail in fashiondom for men, the shaker-knit sweater and the sport jacket. Middle-aged men like the sport jacket for house wear, and the university boy wears it to school. The shaker-knit sweater is also popular with the younger set.

Both fancy knitted and brocaded silk ties are in vogue this year.

A few years ago fur caps were popular Christmas gifts and now that hats are taking the place of the caps many are giving hats. The very rough, shaggy hats are preferred by men at this season when overcoats are worn. Brown, heather and gray are popular colors.

In house slippers, most men prefer leather because it looks less feminine than felt.

The silk shirt so popular for a while has given place to the cotton. This comes in madras neatly striped in blue, lavender or tan and in plain-colored English broadcloth.

Some people solve the Christmas problem by having their picture taken and sending it to all of their friends. Most of the photographs are finished in gray this year, and the frames, either the wall or easel type, are good. The diffused picture is also very good, especially for women, and the tinted photographs are finding special favor for children.

The kodak makes a good individual or family gift. A kodak album is a nice gift for a person who already has a kodak.

Family Gifts.

In naming family gifts the clock could hardly be omitted. There are the grandfather style, the hanging, the mantle and the desk clocks. Mahogany cases prevail at present.

There are many pieces of living room and library furniture that could be either family gifts or individual gifts for the mother. Among the more expensive gifts the phonograph, the piano and player piano are especially appropriate to give to a family, and among less expensive gifts rolls for the player piano and records for the phonograph are especially good.

One of the most important considerations in selecting a gift is to get something specially fitted to the recipient's taste or needs. The woman who has a home of her own and who places her chief interest in her home is always pleased to receive pieces of furniture or anything to beautify the home.

The latest thing for the dining room is a buffet set composed of two candlesticks and comport to match. This set is beautiful in Steuben glass of dull blue, gold or irridescent.

The art shops and art departments have an almost endless selection of things to beautify the home. A piece of pottery or a vase for the mantle is always a favorite.

Nowhere is there a larger line from which to make the selection than in dishes. Anything from the tiniest gift to be a mere remembrance to a very substantial gift can be found on the dish display counters. In addition to fine china and cut glass, articles of Dutch silver are quite the thing now.

The woman who takes pride in a well equipped kitchen will appreciate aluminum.

Among the most practical of gifts are electric fixtures: toaster, waffle iron, grill ,lighting fixtures and many other things. The lighting fixtures range from dainty boudoir fixtures to elaborate floor lamps or table lamps.

Furniture Suggestions.

Writing desks are very popular. There are little Italian ones, very feminine in appearance, that stand out from the wall not more than a foot or two.

The new console tables and mirrors are beautiful gifts.

A Martha Washington or a William and Mary style sewing table is nice for the woman who sews or who does fancy work.

Odd chairs are all the rage and would be appreciated by mother if she does not already have one.

Sometimes people feel that they want to give a woman something for her own self instead of for the house, and out of the large number of personal accessories for a woman it should not be hard to find such a gift. Every woman loves beautiful underwear; yet in many instances it is a luxury which she would not buy for herself. This makes silk nightgowns, step-ins, teddy bears or the bloomers all the more appreciated. There are the frilly, ribbon and lace-trimmed ones for the woman who likes fussy things and the neat tailored garments of good quality silk for the woman who prefers simplicity. Dainty articles in Philippine embroidery are equally nice.

Always at the head of the list of jewelry for women is the diamond ring. One of the most indispensible pieces of jewelry at the present time is the wrist watch. A woman does not feel completely dressed without a wrist watch and beads this season. Ornamental combs are no passing fad, but have assumed a degree of permancy. The larger they are the better.

Any list of gifts for women this season would be very much incomplete if it did not include ear rings. These come in a great variety of colors and styles and should be selected to suit the face of the wearer and it is also well to have in mind the dresses that she will wear with them.

More Gifts For Women.

ortunately there are many inexpensive articles that are appropriate remembrances for women. Among these are guest towels, handkerchiefs, fancy powder puffs, sachets and many other toilet accessories. The newest thing in handkerchiefs is white linen with colored border and embroidery in the corner to match.

No one should have difficulty in selecting gifts for the young girl. One of the cleverest things is the diary that locks.

There are friendship books and address books for the school girl.

There are many articles of clothing that just suit the coed; for instance, the shaker-knit or the camel hair sweater.

A quill pen in a brilliant hue will brighten the room of any girl.

A pair of cologne bottles is very

Denied His Wish to Heal Humanity
Dr. Eiche Turned to Study of Flowers

Makes Use of His Medical Training in Experimenting With Members of the Flower Kingdom Which He Finds Responds to Treatment Very Much Like Human Beings Do.

TREATS FLOWERS LIKE INDIVIDUALS

Plans to Make Tulips Bloom For Christmas and to Grow Fragile "Lady Slippers" For the First Time Under Glass —Makes a Study of Each Flowering Plant.

BY LULU MAE COE.

No man is born into this world whose work
Is not born with him; there is always work
And tools to work withal, for those who will.

Dr. Fred Eiche believed that his only work in this world was medicine. He felt that he had been called to heal the ills of the body, for there in his keenest interest lay. His had been the gift, with the tools for the work. In his mind, medical science was his life, and no other.

Dreams too often fail of fruition, and came a day when medicine could be Dr. Eiche's work no longer. So sudden a termination after years of effort and progress would make only "Finis" for some, an act with a prologue but no epilogue. Dr. Eiche, however, could not spend his time in vain regret, and he sought for further usefulness.

A medical education, with its subsequent intensive study, does not open the path to every line of endeavor. To take up something in which he could not bring strength from ill health and which his science was powerless to further did not appeal to him. He could not let his tools grow rusty and dingy because their possessor had no further use for them.

Denied his usual profession, he turned to the observation and study of flowers as a scientist. As a scientist, he looks upon them a trifle differently from the average individual. They are human in his conception. In plants he sees many of the same needs as in persons, and it is those needs that he seeks to meet. To treat them, he brings to bear all the knowledge of his medicine and of his biological studies.

Like a Debutante.

Flowers, to Dr. Eiche, are individuals. He does not see roses and lilies and carnations in a lump any more than he saw his patients in the mass. Each one has a personality, and that must be cared for and watched as carefully as though it were a coming debutante, whose future success depended on present treatment. Each one he treats with respect, and, like people, they give of their best to the one who has done that.

Studying that personality, he has found that chrysanthemums and hydrangeas and all the others are sensitive to their surroundings and if not kept in perfect condition, they show their ire by flowering less profusely. Their physiological reactions to the soil and the benches and the food is quite marked, and upon this study Dr. Eiche bases his care of his flowers. It has taught him that plants and flowers like and need good food, of its kind, sleep, medicine and attention.

Naturally, Dr. Eiche has not made these discoveries by walking about and gazing upon the flowers meditating upon their life processes. Nothing more could be gained that way than by looking upon a sick person, guessing at the trouble. Rather he has taken the plants into a laboratory, as he would a culture, and worked with them there. Dr. Eiche has fitted up a laboratory in which he carries on his plant experimentation, beginning with the most fundamental and elementary principles of plant growth. To a physician, organic chemistry, so Dr Eiche maintains, is very simple, and working with its formulas upon plant life is a pleasure even as great as the results it brings forth. Working with this science which treats in part of the compounds produced in plants, Dr. Eiche has found many interesting results, which are also unique.

Beginning with the most pertinent part of flower growing, the soil, Dr. Eiche instituted a course of soil analysis, for himself and for his plants. Testing all the soil that is used in the benches—the wooden boxes in which the flowers are grown—he knows exactly the elements which it contains and which it lacks. By this rather simple analysis, he is able to add those necessary for good production.

Responded to Treatment.

Finding also that the plants do best in a soil that is clean and sweet, he wondered if the other elements in the early growth could be of any influence. Making rather simple experiments with plants in benches of ordinary wood and in those of a prepared variety, he found that the latter were more satisfactory. He had experimented with driving lime into the wood, to which the flowers reacted, demonstrating to him that they were sensitive to their surroundings and grew better in clean, fresh surroundings, even as he had found that true in his medical practice.

Even with the best of home surroundings he had seen people fail to live because of some vital lack in their system. Perhaps the person had an illness that was common, responding ordinarily to prescribed treatment, but in one case the treatment was without result. To that one patient, he tried to give some vitalizing element to which her individual nature would answer. To fit the cure to the individual, it was necessary to do some testing, to see what element was lacking in his system that prevented the usual cure from wo...

Insert—Dr. Fred Eiche who is studying plants and flowers as he once studied his patients. No longer a practicing physician, he is using his medical and biological knowledge toward the improvement of the growth and strength of plant life. In his laboratory he experiments with them and notes their reactions, with the result that he has discovered many things hitherto unknown to growers.

The interior picture shows the flower benches upon which he has used his laboratory discoveries. Because he believes flowers react to their surroundings, he has studied the soil in his laboratory for its improvement and has found that specially prepared boards are more efaacious than ordinary timbers for plant growth.

LINCOLN WOMEN AS THEY ARE AND AS THEY WERE

TOWNSEND

MRS. VICTOR KRAUSE

NELLIE MAHLER

MRS. EDWIN J. FAULKNER

LEAH MEYER

MRS. ARTHUR RAYMOND

DORRANCE HARWOOD

"Lincoln Women as They Are and as They were" has furnished the incentive for a proposed series of attractive portraits of charming Lincoln women. Concealed among the family treasures are the quaint portraits of childhood days of a few short years ago whose dainty frocks and style of dress prove most interesting to the young miss and matron of today as she cantrasts them with the present day foshion.

Mrs. Krause spent her childhood days in Switzerland for Zurich is her old home and from there comes the picturesque portrait of her which was taken at the age of five she was Nellie Mahler.

Mrs. Kaulkner is a Lincoln girl and the interesting picture of her when a miss of five years is the work of a Lincoln photographer. She was then Leah Meyer.

Mrs. Raymond also spent her childhood days in Lincoln and as a Lincoln matron is prominent in Lincoln circles. She was known as Dorrance Harwood.

Dinner Dance Is Brilliant Event of Week

Winter with its covering of glistening snow, snow covered fences, snowballs, snowmen and merrily ringing sleigh bells was the setting for the December dinner dance of the Saturday Night club last Thursday evening at the Lincoln hotel. As a quartette, composed of the Misses Allie Della Brown, Irene Long, Myrtle Kulling and Ruth Haberley from the voice classes of Madame Gilderoy Scott, sang "When Winter comes," the guests were ushered into the large ballroom, wonderfully beautiful in its snow white decorations and appointments through an arch of snow covered lattice work.

Small tables of eight places each were arranged in the form of an immense V down the long room providing space through the center for the program which was given during the diner. The attractive centerpieces were made to represent large snowballs and over all was a sprinkling of silver tinsel. Extending to each table were white ribbons which brought forth dainty favors from the huge snowball pie. The tables were lighted with white tapers in crystal sticks tied with bows of white tulle and at the side of each table stood a tall floor lamp covered with a white shade. The side lights were also covered in white. A snow covered fence was placed across the orchestra platform and leaning against it was a large snow man.

Appearing on the program was Miss Margaret Perry who sang "For You a Rose" as little cunning Betty Ann Whitney and Betty Ann Clarke dressed in frocks of white and tinsel wound in and out among the tables presenting white roses to the ladies. Miss Perry graciously responded with an encore. Music between the courses was furnished by the quartette.

There were several favor dances and among the favors were silver ribbon bracelets with bells attached for the ladies and white paper caps for the gentlemen. In an elimination waltz Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Latsch were the winners and were presented with a silver cigarette case and a silver vanity vase.

The guests were Lieutenant and Mrs. W. G. Moore of Mitchell Field, Long Island, Miss Elizabeth Felt of Chicago, Ralph Lounsberry of Denver, Colo.; Guy Brown of Omaha; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Farquhar; Mrs. Leon Crandall and Dr. E. N. Deppen.

The committee in charge of arrangements included Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Knapp, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Burkett, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Markel and Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Mattison.

Bridge Benefit is Big Success

More than four hundred persons attended the Kappa Alpha Theta bridge benefit at the Rosewilde yesterday afternoon, making it a most successful and attractive affair. The proceeds will be donated to the national scholarship fund of the fraternity.

Tht Theta colors of black and gold were carried out in the bail room where bridge was played. A large basket of yellow chrysanthemums stood in one corner of the room, while deep orange California asters graced the tea table. The color motif was enhanced by the brass candlesticks and yellow tapers on the table, the holders being tied with black.

Tea was served from a Russian samovar by Mrs. W. E. Hardy and Mrs. R. G. Clapp, and served at the tables by several of the alumnae members. Cakes and candies were sold from prettily decorated tables by Mrs. C. F. Ladd and Mrs. Vance Traphagen. The candy, as were the hand made handkerchiefs given as favors for each table, were in orange paper with black ties.

Assisting Miss Rachel Trester as general chairman in arranging the bridge were Mrs. Fred Deweese, Mrs. Ellery Davis, Mrs. Guy E. Reed, Mrs. Thomas Woods, and Mrs. E. M. O'Shea.

Parties of the Week

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Watson entertained at an attractively arranged dinner Friday evening at the Lincolnshire. The soft pastel shades of lavender and pink were combined in the appointments of the two large tables whose centerpieces were baskets of sweetpeas in the two colors while at either end of the tables were smaller baskets of the dainty blossoms. Cards were played after the dinner. The guests numbered twenty.

Among the charming affairs of the week were the two bridge luncheons, one on Wednesday and one on Friday for which Mrs. Alanson Chapman and Mrs. Walton Roberts were hostesses at the home of Mrs. Roberts, 1535 L street. Thirty-five guests were entertained on Wednesday and twenty-eight on Friday. Red roses, and red tapers in crystal sticks tied with red tulle, suggestive of the Christmas season, were the decorations while at each place were dainty place cards to which were attached little burning tapers. First and second prizes in the bridge games of the first day were won by Mrs. Morris Turner and Mrs. C. A. Lord and on Friday the most successful players were Mrs. Fred Foster and Mrs. E. N. Mitchell.

Mrs. Henry Gugler entertained at a prettily appointed luncheon at the Brown Betty Friday. The appointments were all in red, the centerpiece of red roses and the red tapers in crystal holders carrying out the motif. Mrs. H. G. Schroe-

Weddings

HARRISON-WARD.

Miss Othella Mae Harrison of Louisville, Ky., daughter of Mrs. Philip Hempel of Lincoln, was married in Omaha on last Tuesday to Elmer Ward of Lincoln. They returned to Lincoln after the ceremony and a wedding supper was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hempel. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Airehart and W. M. Hempel of Hastings. The bride was married in a gown of brown satin and carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses. The couple will make their home in Lincoln.

Engagements

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Mann of 545 South Twenty-eighth street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Anabelle, to Charles D. Lafferty of Little Valley, N. Y. The wedding will take place during the holidays.

A THANKSGIVING BRIDE

The marriage of Mrs. Leroy Phelan took place Thanksgiving evening at the home of the brid's father, Joe Holderness, in University Place. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W .S. Longacre in the presence of sixty guests. Mrs. Phelan was formerly Miss Nellie Neely.

The bride's gown was of nile green taffeta, silver trimmed. She carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses.

Mrs. Phelan attended Nebraska Wesleyan, where she was a member of Delta Phi sorority. After a short wedding trip, visiting the groom's parents in Lewiston, Mont., enroute, Mr. and Mrs. Phelan will make their home on a farm near University Place.

TWO BRIDES OF THE LATE FALL

Left—Mrs. Arthur Wymore whose marriage was performed in Omaha by the Rev. Charles Savage November 21. Mrs. Wymore is the daughter of Mr .and Mrs. M. Underhill, 629 South Eighth street, and Mr. Wymore's parents are Mr .and Mrs. W. E. Wymore, 911 Washington street. Mr. and Mrs. Wymore will make their home in the Metropolitan apartments.

Right—Before her marriage last Wednesday, Mrs. Victor Bracke was Grace Erisman, daughter of H. B. Erisman of Auburn. Mr. Bracke, whose home is in Fairbury, is a senior in the university.

TWO RECENT BRIDES

Mrs. Irving R. Butler, left, was a Thanksgiving day bride. She is the daughter of Mr .and Mrs. James Lockard of Beatrice and before her marriage was Miss Faye Lockard. Mr. Butler is a son of Judge W. O. Butler of Beaver City and is a senior in the state university. The marriage took place at the home of Rev. H. C. Capsey, pastor of the Emmanuel Methodist church, who performed the ceremony. The only attendants were Miss Dorothy Lefler of Lincoln and Lein Jacobson of Gordon, Neb., a fraternity brother of the groom. The young couple willmake their home in Lincoln.

Mrs. Ben W. Boeke, right, before her marriage on November 16, Mrs. Boeke was Mrs. Gertrude Engelbart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Engelbart. The marriage took place at the family home in Hallam in the presence of fifty guests at 8 o'clock in the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Boeke will be at home at 1319 L street.

MARRIED THANKSGIVING DAY

An attractive Thanksgiving bride was Mrs. Francis G. Booth, whose wedding took place at 9 o'clock at the Blessed Sacrament church, the Rev. Father Cleary officiating. Mrs. Booth was Miss Violet Frances Derieg, Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Smith of this city.

The bride's gown was of white crepe satin, simply fashioned with a draped skirt. Her veil was held in place with a strand of pearls, caught on either side with pearl clusters. She carried Ophelia roses.

Following their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Booth will be at home at 1439 South Seventeenth street.

SOCIETY

der of Colorado Springs was an out of town guest. Five hundred was played during the afternoon in which high score was made by Mrs. Herbert Sandberg and consolation by Mrs. Ralph Betty.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Amen, 601 D street, gave a dinner Thursday evening in honor of Rev. and Mrs. J. Wagner who have been active in the Volga relief work. Rev. Wagner recently spent nine months in Russia doing relief work and studying the conditions, and spoke on conditions there. The table was attractively arranged with a centerpiece of yellow and white chrysanthemums. The same colors were used in the place cards and nuts cups. The hostess was assisted in serving by Mrs. Fred Lebsock, Miss Florence Loose and Miss Ruth Amen.

Honoring Miss Margaret Waymire, whose marriage to Lester Boyd of Syracuse will occur in the near future, Miss Lulu Waymire and Mrs. C. E. Anderson entertained at a miscellaneous shower Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Anderson, 431 South Twelfth street. Christmas decorations were used throughout the rooms. The evening was spent in games, and in a bride's flower contest the prize was won by Miss Annis Deland. Miss Frances Barnes gave a solo dance. The coming of the gifts for Miss Waymire was announced by a telegram, followed by Margaret Shamer and Harriet Quackenbush as cupids with a basket of presents. Pink and white ices were served late in the evening.

The annual fall party of Acacia fraternity was held at the Rosewilde Party house Friday evening. One hundred couples of active and alumni members of the fraternity and representatives from the other fraternities danced during the evening. Christmas colors of red and green were used in the decorations of the ball room. The lights were darkened with red paper shades, tied at the top with green ribbon, and from the bottom of each light hung a solid circle of fluted red crepe paper ribbons. From the balcony to the lights and extending across from light to light were streamers of twisted red crepe paper in alternate row of four and five. Entrance to the dance floor was made through arch ways made in the cascade of red streamers that hung from the balcony to the floor. The orchestra was concealed behind a lattice of red with a green band through the center, on which was an electric replica of the Acacia pin, with a Christmas wreath on either side.

Cabaret entertainment was provided between numbers by Miss Joy Mickel, who gave a sailor dance and as an encore an interpretative dance to "It Seems to Me," by Wilbur Chenoweth. Little Margaret Ward presented the ladies with pink rosebuds as favors. Punch was served during the evening.

The chaperones were Dr. and Mrs. E. H. Barbour, Professor and Mrs. George Foster, Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Hiltner and Mrs. W. A. Brown, the Acacia house mother.

The Century guild of the First Presbyterian church will hold its annual Christmas party Thursday evening, Dec. 14, at 7:30 o'clock in the church parlors. The guild will have as guests for the evening the members of the Thursday Evening club of the First Congregational church.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hart of College View entertained at a family dinner Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. For the centerpiece of the one large table, yellow asters and ferns were used with yellow candles in silver holders at either end of the table. The same color note of yellow and green was also used in the other appointments. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Andrews and family, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Zimmer and son, Lincoln; and Mrs. B. L. Andrews and daughter of College View.

HONORARY COLONEL OF UNIVERSITY CADETS

Miss Pearl Swanson of Sioux City, Ia., a senior in the university and a member of Alpha Phi sorority, was presented to university folk Friday evening at the military ball at the city auditorium as the honorary colonel of the regiment. Miss Swanson was chosen by a general university election which was held in the early fall and the result of the interesting election was kept a secret until last evening.

Miss Swanson appeared very charming in her chic blue grey uniform fashioned after the style of uniform adopted this year by the cadet officers. A cape of blue-grey lined with red and a little cap with a touch of red added to the attractiveness of the outfit.

The selection of an honorary colonel was an innovation this season in university circles but will, in all probability, become a yearly event.

Joseph G. Noh of Clarkson, a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity, is colonel of the regiment.

Quickstart

They Both Will Appreciate It

Read What it is and What it Does

A specially designed gasket, fitted with our own patented, non corrosive heating element; a length of insulated wire; and an exclusively designed trigger switch. That's the QUICKSTART. Sounds simple, doesn't it? But so swift and sure in action that, once installed, you wouldn't part with it for many times its cost.

QUICKSTART operates from the dash. To install, loosen the bolts binding carburetor to intake manifold; insert QUICKSTART then tighten bolts; run insulated wire by easiest route to switch.

QUICKSTART fits any car, and can be installed by anyone in a few minutes with a screw driver and wrench. There are no holes to bore in the motor.

QUICKSTART, in a few seconds, gives you heat when you want it, and where you need it.

Result, the flow of gas reaches the spark in the form of a hot, dry vapor which will ignite instantly.

Your engine starts spanging. YOU'RE OFF!

Mr. Man, you need a QUICKSTART on your car, you need it now. If your dealer cannot supply you, order direct.

ECHOES FROM WOMEN'S CLUBS OVER THE STATE.

The Syracuse womans club conducted an infants health conference in cooperation with the state department of health with Miss Whitely, state field nurse, in charge, assisted by the local physicians, at the Baptist church parlors Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. Forty-eight children from the ages of six months to five years were examined by the physicians and state nurse during the two days and many more would nave been presented but for the very inclement weather prevailing the last day of the conference.

In addition to this forty-two children from the lower grades of the schools were examined as to eye, ear and throat conditions.

The club ladies were highly pleased with the work of the state nurse and are confident that much lasting good was accomplished by the conference. The visiting nurse was truly pleased with the splendid cooperation given her by the club ladies and complimented them on the spirit of harmony and effort that prevailed among the members of the Syracuse club stating that it was well above the average.

St. Edwards, Neb., sends the announcement that a chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution society was organized there Dec. 6 by the state Regent, Mrs. C. P. Spencer. Mrs. Nellie Finch Weldon is chapter regent. One of the members of this chapter, Mrs. Flory, has in her possession one of the famous St. Memin minature portraits, a valued collection of which is in the Corcoran Art Gallery of Washington. This portrait is of Mrs. Flory's revolutionary ancestor, John Caldwell. So far as known this is the only St. Memin portrait owned in Nebraska.

A chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution Society was organized at Coleridge Nov. 25, with Mrs. L. A. Douglass as Regent.

Minatare, Neb. organized a chapter of the Daughters of the American Revoluton on Nov. 28, with Mrs. L. S. Videtto as regent. Mrs. Videtto is a sister of Mrs. F. Eiche of Lincoln, and the chapter honored these ladies by choosing the name of their ancestor, Ebenezer Clark, for the chapter name.

The Tecumseh Woman's club gave a tea at the community club rooms Tuesday afternoon for Mrs. Nellie S. Bradshaw of Omaha, who was in Tecumseh to participate in the All-Nebraska concert given by the Tecumseh military band. It was a pleasant gathering. The rooms were beautifully decorated with chrysanthemums and pink tulle. Two tables were lighted with candles and presided over by Mrs. H. L. Cooper and Mrs. Clarence Smith. Elizabeth Sappenfield and Mary Hervey served as little maids. The officers of the woman's club formed the receiving line and Mrs. Bradshaw was presented to the officers and other ladies by Mrs. R. J. McKenzie. Mrs. W. H. Cooper and Mrs. Daisy Hervey invited the ladies to tea

Preceeding the serving the following program was enjoyed.

Violin Solo—Mrs. Earl Robb. Miss Grace Morill at piano.

Reading—Mrs. F. C. Radke.

Vocal Solo—"A Bowl of Roses,' Mrs. Nellie S. Bradshaw.

Mrs. F. M. Honey, accompanied by Mrs. Robb.

By request Mrs. Bradshaw gave two of her own compositions. She then made a few remarks, expressing her appreciation of the honor shown her.

The woman's club of Herman has been making progress and now numbers thirty-five. Recently these women added seventy new books to the public library, which now has over three hundred volumes. This library is supported by the woman's club. A large mirror was presented to one of the dressing rooms in the new American Legion hall. The club recently held a social meeting at the home of Mrs. E. C. Burdic. At this time the teachers of the schools were guests. A musical program was rendered.

Last Friday afternoon the Herman Woman's club presented Nebraska's poet, John G. Neihardt in recital. He gave his own poems, explaining many passages as he read.

The Seward woman's club had a large attendance on Wednesday afternoon to hear Miss Gladys Legg of the subject of "Clothing." Miss Legg is a favorite speaker of the club and made her talk very practical and interesting.

Mrs. A. C. Stoner spoke on "The Origin and Aims of Educational Week." Mrs. Fred Welch sang a group of songs.

Stromsburg held a very interesting meeting last week, for the purpose of organizing a 'Parent-Teacher association. Mrs. A. B. Hedbloom acted as temporary chairman. Seventy-four members voted to affiliate with the state and national organizations. Officers were elected as follows: President—E. E. Stanton, attorney.

Vice Pres.—Mrs. E. H. Lindquist.

Secretary—Mrs. E A. Roostrom.

Treasurer—Prin. C. E. Hagelin.

Miss E. Richards, Eupervisor of music in the public schools, directed the musical part of the program, which was given by the different grades. Mrs. G. H. Wentz of Lincoln, state president, talked on "The Possibilities of the P. T. A." Other talks were made by C. A. Gimerson, Superintendent of the city schools and E. E. Stanton.

Refreshment were served by the woman's club of Stromsburg.

P. T. A. ORGANIZED AT CAPITOL SCHOOL.

Patrons of the Capitol school held their regular autumn meeting Tuesday evening at the school buliding. About one hundred and forty were present. Prof. Adrian Newens of the University School of Music, gave the address of the evening. Subject: "What Shall a Child do during his leisure?" A discussion followed by Dr. Frederick Teal, Walter Locke, H. P. Shepherd, Dr. W. T. Elmore, Mrs. W. T. Irons gave a report of the meetings of the local Parent-Teacher associations which she attended as a delegate from the Capitol schol district. Mrs. W. K. Fowler also spoke.

C. B. Anderson reported for the special committee on organization, and recommended that the Capitol school patrons affiliate with state and national organizations. The recommendation was formally accepted.

Dr. H. W. Orr presided during the evening. Music was furnished by the Capitol school orchestra, consisting of thirty members and the chorus of the eighth grade.

EDUCATONAL PROGRAM BY EVERETT SCHOOL.

Educational week was observed at the Everett school in a most fitting manner. The subject was outlined were discussed, informally, and reports made in the classes each day.

Tuesday afternoon the Parent-Teacher association met at 3 o'clock and a most nteresting program was given, consisting of following numbers: Music by the department girls and an address by Dr. Charles Fordyce, subject, "How to Find My Child's Talent." A social hour and refreshments concluded the meeting.

Thurday morning at 9 o'clock, Miss E. Ruth Pyrtle spoke on "Americanization" to the Seventh and Eighth grades. Miss Pyrtle specially emphasized good citizenhip.

Friday morning at 9:30, Bernard G. Westover addressed fifth and sixth grades on "American Citizenship.' In the afternoon at 2:30 Dr Fred Morrow Fling addressed the department on "Patriotism." Patriotic songs and the flag salute were a part of the exercises.

VINCENT CHAUTAUQUA STUDIES NATIONALISM.

The Vincent Chautauqua Circle met at the home of Mrs. E. E. Rider for the following program led by Mrs. H. F. Hackman:

Aims of Nationalism and Turkish Nationalism, Mrs. E. E. Rider.

AXIS CLUB FAVORED WITH MUSICAL PROGRAM.

Axis club was entertained Tuesday evening by Miss Myrtle Kulling assisted by Miss Valesta Pospeshil. A musical reading, "Our Folks" and a reading "If I Could be by Her," were Miss Kulling's introductory numbers. A violin solo was given by Miss Pospeshil, who also accompanied Miss Kulling's vocal nummbers, "Into Her Garden," and "My Love is a Dashing Muleteer." Miss Kulling, whose home is in Burlington, Kan., is a student of the University School of Music, and plans to give other programs in the near future.

Following Miss Kulling's program a whistling number was given by Miss Gertrude Reynolds accompanied by Miss Grace Spacht and a glee club composed of seven Axis club girls sang a group of humorous songs. Miss Christie Brookman of the "Home Savings Loan Association" gave an interesting talk on the business operations of savings and loan institutions and discussed briefly her duties in connection with that business.

New Axis members are: Lucille Williams, Gladys Beaumont, Martha Younkin, Pauline Wood, Alice Wood, Ermunda Clark, Ann Shephard and Irene Showalter.

B. I. L's ENTERTAINED AT THANKSGIVING DINNER.

Chapter "V" P. E. O. University Place, entertained the B. I. L's at a Thanksgiving dinner party given in the spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Roper.

Three long tables laden with a typical old fashioned New England dinner emphasized the spirit of "Ye olden times." Following the bountiful dinner a pantomine, "The Soul of Priscilla" was given by members of Priscilla, the colonial dresses and coiffures, the impersonation of John Alden, the Indian scenes, and Miss Columbia, all gave spirit and reality to the occasion.

The company took part in an old fashioned game. The winners were required to put on an impromptu stunt.

The decorations were in harmony with the Sisterhood colors. Sixty guests were present.

EVERETT SCHOOL CLUB ENJOYS FINE PROGRAM.

The mothers and teachers of the Everett school met Tuesday afternoon for an especially fine program. Dr. Charles Fordyce of the state university spoke very constructively on "How to Discover My Child's Special Talent."

Music was furnished by pupils of the school, followed by a social and the serving of tea.

The added attendance and increased interest at each meeting give promise of filling the need for an association of this kind. As the date for the January meeting comes during the holiday vacation, no meeting will be held until the first Tuesday in February.

RANDOLPH SCHOOL OBSERVES EDUCATION WEEK.

Teachers and pupils of the Randolph school celebrated education week by holding open house on Tuesday. Patrons visited and heard the regular work of the school. Eighty-four attended.

The Home Economics department of the Lincoln Woman's club, will be favored with two fine lectures during January. One by Prof. F. M. Gregg of Wesleyan University on "Child Psychology," and one by Dean McProud, on "Principles of Child Training."

Who's Who in Lincoln

Miss Margaret Ellen Brown

Miss Margaret Brown, the efficient secretary of the State Sunday School association, has been twice around the world in the interest of religious work, and has conducted ninety-seven conventions in the ninety-three counties in the state, each year, and each year delivered a new lecture upon some phase of her visits abroad

Her first trip was in 1913 as a member of commission number four to visit the Orient and study Sunday school conditions. Time was spent in Japan, Corea, China, Siberia and Russia, stopping in Petrograd and Moscow, through Germany to Switzerland for the world's Sunday school convention, back through Germany, Belgium, the Netherlands, France and England. The second trip was made for the world's convention in Tokio. During this time she spent a considerable time in India She returned in 1921.

Last year Miss Brown made 463 addresses. She travels almost entirely by automobile and finds it more satisfactory as there are five counties in the state without railroad facilities and some others with very poor service.

Two thousand Sunday schools are represented in the conventions held with an attendance of fifty-eight thousand persons. Miss Brown left Lincoln on July 6 for a partial tour of the state, returning November 20. In that period of time, sixty-six conventions were held, each one of two days' duration and three sessions each day.

The schedule of conventions is planned in Lincoln at the S. S. A. office, many months in advance and this last year only one change was necessary. The state convention is held in the early summer of each year. The association consists of three paid workers with thirteen volunteer officers in each county. Miss Brown has been at the head of the state work for thirteen years and during her service has lifted a heavy debt. Some years ago she accepted invitations from New York, Illinois, Texas and other states to assist them in convention or at other times, but as the requirements of her own state grew heavier she has refused to go.

Miss Brown said: "We are working for a Nebraska spirit which says, every county every year. We are trying to lift the whole field a little rather than boost some certain place a great deal. We are stressing standardization of schools and will open a training school, Jan. 4 in the Lincoln office where we can take a representative from each of twelve different schools to study with us six hours a day for four weeks. This is looking toward a time when a building will be erected and a faculty employed for a permanent traning school."

Before taking up this work Miss Brown was a teacher and was also the county superintendent of Hall county, which service made her specially fited for her present position to which she has proved peculiarly adapted.

CLUBDOM

MISS COGIL TELLS OF EUROPE'S ATTRACTIONS.

Thursday evening fifty members of the League met for the regular diner and business meeting. Immediately following the dinner Miss Mabel Zimmerman accompanied by Miss Kemp sang a group of songs. Mr. Hall, private secretary for Ccharles Brandon Booth, spoke briefly in appreciation of the club's cooperation in Mr. Booth's work with funds and Christmas box and of the trunk presented Mr. Booth by the firm employing one of the League members. He stated Mr. Booth had been critically ill but was improving. He introduced the captain of the volunteer movement in Lincoln and his wife and asked the encouragement of the League in their work. The balance of the evening was devoted to a talk by Miss Annie Cogil of her recent ten week's trip to Europe. Miss Cogil told in detail of securing her passport from U. S. and of obtaining the various vises necessary to enter foreign countries. She told of many points of historical and literary interest in England, France, Italy and other countries; of the after effects of the world war: of the natural beauty of the various countries and of the modes of travel and commerce. A collection of linens, laces, jewelry, carving, inlay, etc., attracted a great deal of attention and the groups gathered around them received much interesting explanation from Miss Cogil.

New mebers of the League are Mrs. Phillip Young of Mayer Bros., Mrs. Besse T. Parriott of the Lincoln Joint Stock Land bank; Miss Anna H. Bethune of the Lincoln public schools, and Mrs. A. F. Berggren secretary of the A. F. Berggren Pattern shop.

Mrs. Barbara Hayes left Saturday evening for Los Angeles where she will make her home and continue in the insurance business. Mrs. Hayes has been very active in the league and will be greatly missed.

Miss Bess Owens who has been quite ill is rapidly improving.

The dancing class will meet Monday evening and the gymnasium class Tuesday evening.

The Happy Venture club will meet at the league rooms Wednesday evening. Miss Millicnt Wright will be hostess Thursday evening, Miss Minnie Morrill Friday evening and Miss Berna Mae Miskell Saturday evening.

Thursday evening, Dec. 21 the league will give a Christmas party at the club rooms to which all friends of the league are cordially invited.

PARK ASSOCIATION MEETS FOR PROGRAM.

The December meeting of the Park Parent-Teacher association took pace Wednesday at 3:30 p. m. A splendid program was enjoyed and was composed of the following numbers:

Song—America.

Dramatization and Songs by 1B grale, Miss Bloss, teacher.

Piano deut—Helen and Paul Moessner.

Dramatization—1A grade, Miss Davis, teacher.

Group of Songs—7B grade, Miss Ella Noll, teacher.

Talk—Supt. M. C. Lefler.

A social hour followed the program.

HAWTHORNE ASSOCIATION HOLDS SUCCESSFUL BAZAAR.

The Hawthorne Parent-Teacher Association met Friday afternoon at the school building. A short business session was held with a successful bazaar in connection. The proceeds will go to the city hospital fund. Educational week was observed, the teachers holding their annual open house, with class demonstrations by the various grades, and the singing of Christmas carols. A feature of much interest, was the new radio outfit just installed by the pupils.

A social hour followed, and dainty refreshments were served by the teachers assisted by Mrs. J. J. Mosher.

MRS ADDISON E. SHELDON WILL ADDRESS A. A. U. W.

Mrs. Addison E. Sheldon will review Willa Cather's latest novel, "One of Ours" at the meeting of the A. A. U. W. on Saturday afternoon The Association will meet for luncheon at 12:30 at the "Woodburn," 425 South Fourteenth street. Mrs. W. T. Elmore will speak, briefly, on the movement for eastern women's colleges.

LITERATURE SECTION GIVES CHMISMAS PARTY.

The Literature department of the Lincoln Woman's club, met Thursday afternoon to celebrate the Christmas season. Between forty and fifty women were in attendance and were seated about the tables made gay with Christmas decorations. Each had a remembrance from Santa Claus in the form of trumpets, horns whistles, and other jolly toys which contributed to the hilarity. Two beautiful cakes were sent to the soldiers in Lincoln hospitals.

The party was planned by the social committee, Mrs. Louis Solomon, chairman and was greatly enjoyed by all. Mrs. W. W. Whitfield and Mrs. H. H. Wheeler poured coffee.

Mrs. M. E. Moore, the leader, announced that early in January the department will give a benefit card party.

Mrs. H. H. Wheeler reviewed "The Mirrors of Washington." The speaker observed the symbolic significance of the illustratinons, which were both cartoons and photographs. She commented on the style, illustrating by quotations from the book, and gave abstracts of the various sketches, concluding that the author had produced a piece of brilliant, clever writing. The humor of the book is sardonic, the measures of men distorted, was the conclusion reached.

The next meeting will be on January 18, and the subject of the talk: "Notable Books of 1922."

Y. W. C. A. NOTES.

The board of directors of the Y. W. C. A. will meet at the association building Wednesday for their regular monthly meeting. The meeting will be at 10 o'clock.

On account of the community concert at the high school at 3 o'clock there will be no program at the Y. W. C. A. Sunday afternoon. Some of the club girls will be at the Y. W. to act as hostesses for the social hour late in the afternoon.

Last week there were five new members at the Bible class. Rev. Arthur P. S. Hyde took up the social teachings of Isaiah, telling of Isaiah's early life and of the crises in the history of the Hebrew people at that time. Next Monday he takes up the "Social Teachings of Habakkuk."

At the health class Thursday at 8 o'clock Dr. E. J. Angle will talk on "Care of the Skin and Hair."

There will be no meeting of the members' council this month. The next meeting will be held at the usual time in January.

The December meeting and luncheon of the membership committee was held on Thursday. Due to the weather there were but sixteen present. The tables were attractively decorated with red candles, poinsettas and miniature Christmas trees, by Mrs. W. O. Forbes. Devotions were led by Mrs. J. E. Almy. Mrs. Moore, Mrs. B. A. Cosner and Miss Lillian Smith were guests. Miss Helen Thompson was introduced by Mrs. Fred Williams, chairman, as a new member of the committee. Reports were given for November and work given out for December. It is hoped that every committee member will do her work and make her report early in the month.

The Physical Education committee will meet Tuesday evening at 5 o'clock at the Y. W. C. A. building.

This week all classes will be held as usual, in the gymnasium department. The following two weeks will be the Christmas holidays with classes starting again in three weeks.

The extension committee held its annual Christmas bazaar during the last week. Contributors may call for their returns Monday and Tuesday of this week, Dec. 1 land 12.

The federation meet Thursday evening for a supper and a sing. At 8 o'clock the federation team played the G. F. team at basketball in the gymnasium. The score was 25 to 12 in favor of the federation. Next week the Do Ski Kais will give a little play, "Courtship under Difficulties," for the federation meeting.

The G. F. club met for a social hour and basketball Friday night.

The executive council of the federation will have its monthly business. The Christmas party and social service work will be discussed.

The Misses Florence Bennett and Harriet Campbell of the Tri W. club gave the opening program Sunday at the City Mission Sunday school. Girls of different clubs have volunteered to do this each month.

The two dozen dolls for the prisoners' families Christmas have been sent. The dolls were dressed by federation girls.

The travelers' aid secretary at the Burlington station is anxious to be of as much help as possible to the strangers and the Lincoln people who go to the stations. If travelers from out of town are coming in to Lincoln and would like to be met or given advice, they may write to her or to the Y. W. C. A. and she will be glad to help them in any way possible.

Girls' Reserve Corner

The True Courage club held its meeting Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 at the Y. W. C. A. Mrs. Hutton Webster gave a very interesting talk and display on the customs and mode of living of the Hoppi Indians of northern California. The girls of the club have planned to send Christmas gifts to the children of the Pine Ridge Mission school of South Dakota.

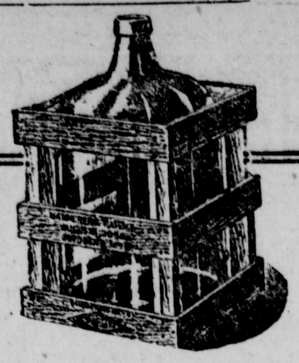

Student club of Girl Reserves will meet Tuesday afternoon at the high school. Mrs. Nellie Peters of the Beulah Mission will talk to the girls about her work, and Miss Ruth Easterday of the Y. W. C. A. will talk about Christmas and service. Plans will be made for the Christmas party and service work.

The Freshman girls club met Wednesday afternoon at the high school. Eleanore Bivans gave a piano solo. Ruth Omen told the girls about the Indian girls they are adopting for Christmas friends and the girls planned the gifts they will send and the letters they will write. A Christmas party was announced for December 19.

The Dorothy Dix Girl Reserve Corps of Willard school held an initiation Monday afternoon at the school building.

THROUGH the SHOPS with Patricia-Ann

Let Ben Simon and Sons Assist You in Selecting Your Gifts.

Are you still pondering over what to give the feminine members of your family for Christmas? Probably, most of us are, but just yesterday we asked aid from the feminine department at Ben Simon and Sons, and we learned quite a few things as to what might please our mothers and sisters and sisters-to-be, and even our mothers-in-laws and aunties. There at the store they have the prettiest, silkiest things, delicate shades of crepe de chine, crepes, silks and satis in step-ins, lace trimmed, and some of them along more tailored lines; bloomers, teddies, everything that could be thought of in silk underwear. Then there is the silk nightie, every girl loves a silk nightie in the beautiful shades you can find at Simon's. There are petticoats, too, and there are slip-on sweathers that would delight the girlish heart. To go with these sweaters, or to wear with sports skirts, there are the most adorable tailored pongee blouses you ever could imagine. In the same department are other blouses of filmy styles. In fact, all of the little intimacies that every woman loves can be found at Ben Simon and Sons. All of the apparel is first class, and the service can not be bettered.

While you are looking at the lingorie and so forth, have someone show you the wonderful line of coats that are to be sold at special prices. They are splendid bargains, every one of them. Good coats at better prices, and if you want a more elaborate coat, you will find it there, too.

"Just Must Have One" Says the Son of the House. He Means a Tuxedo From Walt Ludwgi's.

The young hopeful, in other words, the son of the house is just at the age where he is exceedingly sensitive about whether he looks just all to the good or not. He will probably be attending his first formal affairs during the holidays, and will want either a tuxedo, or a full dress suit. You may still have to examine his ears, but a tuxedo is the desire of his heart. Send him to Walt Ludwig, and let him fit him out in tip top shape.

Capes Amid Coats and Wraps.

Capes are another item which, while not predominant, makes its bid for popularity with those whose demands are necessarily for this type of apparel.

They appear in silks with quaint flounced shoulder effects below equally quaint ruffle collars; or in draped models of flat crepes with colorful embroideries on the collar, part way down the front and perhaps a touch around circular side cutouts which make rom for the arms to come through.

Circular set-in sleeves are noted on straight line coats of twill, one of which has its back treated to resemble a box jacket to waistline.

Fluted braid is used to offset the style lines of a bloused back coat having a two-piece skirt section with open sides which hang in handkerchief points.

Waffle-cloth is being used for more voluminous models oppropriate for motor wear, and one of these is an example of the novel cuts which enter such garments also, the yoke and sleeves being cut in one with a laptuck seam serving as the tailored trimming.

Types of Black Gowns.

Amber is one of the new shades, and it is combined with gold or chartreuse to develop artistic color harmonies in the flat crepe evening modes, and the organdies and lace types. The all black gown here is especially smart and is to be had in a variety of interpretations from the stately satin drape, suitable for the matron, to a soft affair in lace and chiffon, with amusing little ruffles on the skirt and trimmings of ermine fur, which make the model appropriate for a debutante.

Velvet ribbon finishes off the yokes of some of the brilliantly colored taffeta gowns, or bands the skirts of daytime models in flat crepe. Velvet flowers in great variety of color trim the girdles of some of the youthful frocks and French ribbon flowers are used in a complete range of colors.

For the Family—The Best That Can be Had. A Buick Answers the Purpose.

You, who would give to your family the best that money could buy, and who want to give the entire family something to enjoy constantly, give them a car. A Buick sedan is just the thing, have it driven up to your home Christmas morning, and see how popular you will be for many weeks to come. Not only beautiful to look upon, the sedan is equally comfortable to ride in and to drive. The Buick five passenger six cylinder sedan is truly the ideal car and the ideal Christmas gift. Broad doors open into the Fisher-built body, with its wide and deeply upholstered seats and luxurious interior trimmings. It is just the car for family motoring, and you will find that the up-keep is very small, and that for the car itself, considering what you have, the price is comparatively the best on the market.

Seek Your Gifts at Mayer Bros., All of the Small Gifts That Mean Much Are There.

Not so much the gift as the spirit in which it is given, the whole world says, so why spend extravagantly for Christmas gifts. There are so many little things thot can tell the story, exquisite, dainty things that the feminine heart craves, the lovely handkerchief, hand embroidered, that the piece of ivory to match her other things on the dressing table, the beautiful ribbons that she can make into sashes or anything else her heart desires. Then there is the Three Flowers powder and toilet water and perfume, all of these for 'lovely woman,' and yet it is such hard work to find just the right thing. At Mayer, Bros. they have a complete line of these gifts, and no doubt you will find just the right thing for the right person. The ivory line is especially attractive because there are no two patterns alike, each one has an individuality all of its own.

Spanish Lace Inserts on Flat Crepe.

A charming flat crepe frock in dark blue uses inserted squares of silk Spanish lace in dull gray to mark its only color note. A Lanvin green crepe has its printed crepe bodice embroidered with white beds. Another frock in crepe Zingara uses a trimming of beads and appliqued leather to mark its waistline and panels. Beaded dinner frocks in pale shades of crepe Luxette are sponsored for formal wear in the Palm Beach collections. These dinner dresses have an all over beading which is, however, lightly done and there is no impression that the frock is overdone. An afternoon frock in a pale beige developes a delightful tunic effect, with an all over design in vermicelli embroidery in dull gold.

The three-piece frocks are strongly emphasied in the collection. They are developed in Frou-Frou and other crepes. Any of them develop white with contrasting colors such as peach and Lanvin green. One costume with a straight dress has a sleeveless jacket in peach crepe with an allover embroidered design. Frills of plain peach crepe trim the neckline and Paisley and Oriental designs trims the sleeves. Some printed crepe in other attractive three - piece suits. One tan frock with a panel back to the waistline uses pompoms of silk braid as its only trimming.

Furs of All Kinds At the Lincoln Hide and Fur Company.

The littlest girl, as well has her older sister must have something in the way of fur for her vurry vurry best Christmas gift. If father is giving it to her, of course she must have a coat, a fur one, and if brother or sister or any one else is the donor, a lovely fur choker is just the thing. They have a wonderful selection of these at the Lincoln Hide and Fur Co., so before you decide on anything else, take a look at the line they have. The rest will be easy.

Milady Would Like, If She Could Choose, Some Pretty Buckles For Her Shoes.

Milady would like some silver buckles on her shoes, some sterling silver buckles set with rhinestones, and you can buy them at Storer's jewelry store. And while you are there look at th eadorable clock rings for the little finger, and the lovely jeweled combs for the hair, the latter ranging in price from $3.50 to $15.00.

Do Your Shopping At Tucker-Shean's, And Your Troubles Will Soon Be Over.

Have you decided what to give him yet? If you have you are doing better than most of us, but just as a suggestion let me tell you about the good looking line of leather goods at Tucker-Shean's. Everything in the leather wear that might strike the masculine fancy is there, including the best doking cigarette boxes of cedar, covered with various shades of leather. On this can be stamped in gold letters the name or fraternity or lodge crest. Take a look at them, before you decide to buy elsewhere.

Buy Milady's Perfume Powder, and Toilet Water At Pillers' Pharmacy.

Of course she would like one a regular combination of perfume, toilet water, and face powder, talcum, all just the same brand. There is nothing like a combination of this sort for the fastidious maid or matron. You can get them at Pillers Pharmacy, Sixteenth and O strets.

Dark Colors for Spring Street Wear.

In colors, for street wear, dark blue, Lanvin green, black and brown lead the field with a certain amount of conservatism that possesses a great deal of smartness. In the afternoon frocks for indoor wear and semi-formal gowns for evening wear every fashion shade would seem to have been given a fair chance beige, maple, dull rose, blue, ivory, peach, Lanvin green and Paris gray are created in various types of dresses from the simple afternoon type to that which would be acceptable for afternoon or evening wear.

The straightline dress is favored. Skirt lengths measure eight to 10 inches from the ground. Necklines are preferably bateau or semi-round. Sleeves present an interesting degree of novelty. Tiny cap sleeves, long flowing styles, with a slit for the arm, that present a capelike appearance, sleeves effected with a slight overhanging of a yoke neckline—all these are but part of the novelties presented. Sashes falling below the hem, cape backs, paneled backs falling to the waistline, slanting collars, bows tied on the shoulder, sleeves set in with bands of ruching—these mark the line as truly new for spring.

Smart Simplicity.

A blouse whose smartness is its simplicity is made of biscuit colored satin faced crepe with a single narrow planel of vivid embroidery running down the middle of the front and forming the wrist bands on the loose peasant sleeves.

Somewhat along the same lines but availing itself of totally different materials, is a blouse of tan crepe de Chine trimmed with gold ribbon. In this instance the blouse fastens at the center panel, which is edged in an attractive, uneven fashion with loops of the metallic ribbon. The same effect is used t otrim the round neckline.

Thirteen Nebraska composers, ten of whom live in Lincoln, were featured in a program given by the Woman's club at Western, Neb., Monday evening. Mrs. George Lautenschlager of Swanton interviewed many of these composers personally and obtained information from others by correspondence. She arranged a program of thirteen numbers, each being introduced by a sketch of the composer's career and his works, followed by a song or instrumental selection from that composer.

The composers featured are: Thurlow Lieurance, Howard Adamson, Wilbur Chenowith, W. P. Ackerman, Jess Williams, Edward J. Walt, Reuben Walt, Howard Kirkpatrick, Hazel Kinscella, Prof. Carl Beutel, all of Lincoln; George H. Aller, formerly of Crete, now of Kearney; Harry Cockrell, Omaha; J. A. Parks, York. Of these, nine are classic composers and four are composers of popular music.

Miss Orville Matzke told of the career and accomplishments of Thurlow Lieurance in his research work among American Indians in reducing their weird music to written form.

Mrs. Fred Winter gave an account of Miss Hazel Kinscella and told of her method of piano instruction.

Mrs. P. Waldorf read a paper giving the story of J. A. Parks of York and his work as composer and publisher.

Mrs. Lautenschlager told of the success of George Aller as composer and singer. He is one of the organizers of the Adelphian quartet at Doane college. This quartet was organized about thirty-five years ago and is claimed by Chicago authorities to be the oldest existing quartet in the United States and probably in the world. Prof. Aller is now head of the music department in the state teachers' college at Kearney.

The Girls' Glee club of the high school sang Howard Kirkpatrick's popular song, "Nebraska." The high school orchestra gave several song and orchestral selections written by Adamson, Chenowith, Ackerman and Williams.

Mrs. Ed Steele and Mrs. W. L. Lewis sang Ed Walt's "Lassie o' Mine." Mrs. E. M. Armour sang Aller's "A Rose Will Fade" and Aller's beautiful "Rose of Sharon," was given by Jay Staley, Fred Winter, George Lautenschlager and O. W. Matzke. Miss Clara Rosenfelt sang Harry Cockrell's "His Song of Night." The following selections by J. A. Parks were given: "The Story of Old," male quartet; "Pale in the Amber West," ladies' quartet, Mrs. Walter Lewis, Mrs. Fred Winter, Mrs. Ed. Steele, Mrs. E. M. Armour; "The Old Home Town," mixed quartet Jay Staley, Miss Rosenfelt, Mrs. Ed Steele, George Lautenschlager; "When the Boys Come Marching Home," male quartet.

A carillon of forty-three bells, said to be larger than any now in this country, will be hung in the Park Avenue Baptist church of New York as a gift from John D. Rockefeller in memory of Mrs. Rockefeller. Mr. Rockefeller already has ordered the bells from Croydon, England. The only other carillon of the sort in the United States is said to be planned for Grace Episcopal church, Plainfield, N. J., where an anonymous donor has given a set of twenty-three bells.

The H. E. O. club was entertained by Mrs. L. Baker Tuesday afternoon at her home, 2901 Dudley street. The afternoon was spent socially. Refreshments were served at the close of the afternoon. The Christmas party of the club will be held in the evening with Mrs. L. Kamm, 1130 Huff street, in two weeks.

Mrs. Charles Chilson, 1345 E street, was hostess on Thursday for an attractive 1 o'clock luncheon for which the guests were the members of the Monte Carlo Whist club Mrs. Joe Tucker and Mrs. Burt Polsky. Red roses were used in decoration and the room was lighted in red candles.

The club will hold no more meetings until after the holidays.

The Wimodausis members, their families, friends and neighbors, almost a hundred in number, enjoyed the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Burleigh, Fifty-second and O streets, Tesday evening at a party given by Mr. and Mrs. Burleigh. The evening was spent in a most enjoyable manner with games, cards and dancing. A delicious luncheon was served the latter part of the evening.

The next meeting of the club will be on the afternoon of January 3, with Mrs. L. R. Mulliner, Fifty-second and O streets.

The Pastime Whist club met Monday evening with Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Bassett, 1522 S street. The evening was pleasantly spent at whist, of which there were four tables of players. Mrs. Marion F. Crosby and Ray Leslie won high honors. The consolation prizes were won by Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Kennedy. At close of the games a two course luncheon was served.

The next regular meeting will be with Mr. and Mrs. Ray Leslie, 303 North Thirty-fourth street.

The Jekonus club was entertained on Tuesday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sprague at their home, 1426 South Twelfth street. There were three tables of five hundred players and high score was made by Mr. and Mrs. George Krk. Refreshments were served.

The next meeting of the club will be in two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Stednitz, 2319 St. Mary's avenue.

The Jolly Five Hundred club met Thursday evening with Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Schwenker, 3048 Vine street. The high score in the card game was made by Mrs. Carl Curry and the consolation prize was awarded to Miss Evelyn Carson. Refreshments were served and the club adjourned to meet on January 4 with Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Forke, 425 L street, College View.

The Fidelis club was entertained by Mrs. Rollin H. George 1811 South Twenty-fourth street, Thursday at 1 o'clock luncheon. Red roses and holly were used for the decorations. The guests were entertained with a Christmas program arranged by Mrs. J. C. F. McKesson.

The next meeting will be in four weeks the place to be anounced later.

the elevator or the operator, and the majority of the contributions are not very complimentary.

At the present time, Clarence is the operator at the Funke building. He has been there eighteen months, and has made many friends. All of his resident passengers are his real friends, and all of them have a cheery word for him, women and the men alike.

"It's bad weather outside, you must be careful going home tonight," one of them will say.

"What's the matter Clarence, got so much business you have to have a stenographer ride around with you all of the time?" some one else will say for a bit of fun, and Clarence has a smile and a greeting for each of them.

Clarence's hours are from 7:30 a. m. until 6:30 p. m. and from nine until one o'clock on Sundays. He has an hour and a half at noon, and while his work is tedious, sometimes and confining, is isn't at all hard.

REPORTER GIVES CHRISTMAS HINTS

appropriate for a young man to give his lady friend.

Stationery is always appropriate for everybody and it can be purchased in very attractive boxes. A box of part white and part tinted stationery is very fashionable.

A wardrobe trunk is pernaps the nicest gift father could give daughter who is going away to school.

In the realm of clothing there is no end to the gifts that may be selected. Among the expensive ones furs are always popular.

The reporter who went through the stores looking for Christmas gift ideas did not visit the toy shops, for she thought that Santa Claus was fully competent to select the toys.

When the gifts have been selected it is very important that they all be wrapped attractively. This applies especially to the smaller articles. The packages should be wrapped neatly in white tissue or holly paper or be placed in Christmas boxes and tied and sealed. A glance through the stores will show that Christmas wrappings as well as the gifts have their stylees. Metal seals give distinction to a package, and among the newer ribbons used is a flat metal ribbon. Place on the outside of the packe a "Do Not Open Until Xmas" stamp and mail early.

FLOWER STUDY ON SCIENTIFIC BASIS

into the new work, and he has used it many times. A plant growing in the same soil as others grew spindling and frail, while the others would be of sturdy, strong build. To find out the trouble, Dr. Eiche took the leaves into his laboratory. There he tested them for chlorophyll, the green coloring matter, examined their cellular structure, their shape and their strength. When plants are growing old nearing the time when they will be sent to the happy hunting ground, Dr. Eiche gives them a physical examination in practically the same way, deciding from the result whether or not they may stay a bit longer.

Dr. Eiche is spending a good share of his laboratory hours in experimentation upon fungoid growth, the first thing to do is to get rid of it before it affects any number of plants. To correct the black spots which come upon the rose leaves Dr. Eiche experimented for some time with drugs used in his previous profession. Finally, he made a compound with the basic ingredient potassium permanganate, a powerful oxidizing agent of a dark purple in color.

Delicate Treatment.

To overcome the growths, Dr. Eiche sprinkles the plants with the compounds from a hose, which is forced through by a compressed air plant. The liquid has been found helpful, but it is not recommended for the amateur flower enthusiast as it is rather delicately compounded. The permanganate is used by physicians in cases of severe illness where any irrigating of the system becomes necessary.

Balanced rations is the cry of the home expert, and she direfully predicts ruin for the family who ignores the charts of so much carbohydrate and so much protein. Dr. Eiche does not claim that he is a domestic science specialist, but he does insist that his family of flowers shall have perfect rations. The food does not come often, rather is it given in weekly lots, but it has special preparation before it arrives.

Dr. Eiche does not believe that dry manure is good for the flowers, so he has prepared an apparatus by which it can be solubilized. A quantity is put in a large vat and treated with steam until it becomes liquid. After this process it automatically is screened, and the solution runs into another vat beneath the floor, where it is stored until needed. From this vat it is forced through the hose by which it is spread over all the benches. Dr. Eiches mixes a very small quantity of the dry article in the soil, which he has also found is bettered by old blue grass sod. After he has sprinkled the soil, he spreads on a very thin layer to keep it moist until the next meal time rolls around.

Dr. Eiche designed his own compressed air system, modeling it upon an instrument he had used many times before. De Vilbis atomizer. The apparatus consists of two tanks with a number of handles operating valves. By a simple twist of the wrist he can send the water through the hose, or by a backward turn of the same wrist, shutting off those valves, and opening others the pressure sends the fumigator where he desires.

Enjoys Experiments.

Not only does he enjoy experimentation for improvement but he enjoys it for itself. In a small dark closet-like aperture, which is heated to the pleasant temperature of ninety, and which seems as though it were a hot, humid summer day, Dr. Eiche has placed a number of pots of hyacinth and tulip bulbs. Until the present time the idea has been current that those flowers would not bloom until spring. Even the Hollanders have not tried to display them any earlier, the Hollanders who are reputed to know just a little more than is known about bulbs. From the dark cavity Dr. Eiche expects to bring forth about Christmas time tulips and hyacinths in full bloom even as though it were Easter by the simple processes of heat, darkness and moisture.

From Minnesota, Dr. Eiche has brought a lady's slipper which is very beautiful and none too plentiful even in that state. The flower grows where its feet can be wet, in a marshy spot or in a damp peat bog. It has never been grown in this state, either wild or under glass and as far as Dr. Eiche knows the attempt has never been made to tame the flower. At present it is sleeping underneath a bench in a rather dark corner, waiting for the spring and new life to come to it. Eiche feels, that given moisture and the approximate surroundings of its native state that his experiment will be successful.

These experiments are but a few and of the simpler kind of his investigations, less complex than he hopes to achieve when he has a fully equipped laboratory, with complete facilities for work. He feels that more of his medical knowledge can be used to advantage on his flowers, and even as it is he has used that profession's foundations to discover things that were not known about the eccentricities of growing things.

Women's Union Christian Colleges in the Orient

DOLLAR WEEK.
Make it a Million Dollars.

Here is an opportunity to invest in oriental fabrics. The girls of India, China and Japan are waiting eagerly to hear what American women will do about completing the colleges and medical schools which are to aid in the making of a new world for women. There are seven colleges, one in Tokyo, Japan, three in China, three in India, and they are to meet the needs of 400,000,000 oriental women.

Two years ago the mission boards of ten great denominations in America united to secure land and buildings for these colleges. The estimate for the seven was three millions, not a large sum as two were to be medical schools. The Laura Spelman-Rockefeller Memorial Fund granted one million if the joint committee would secure two millions. With no indefatigable alumnae with the strong appeals for burdened boards which prevented direct appeal to churches, it has been a difficult task to secure one million. We now need the second million before January 1st in order to receive the conditional gift from the Rockefeller fund. In every town December 10-17 will be the week when women's organizations, missionary societies, clubs, collegiate alumnae and other groups will unite in a community campaign for dollar gifts from every one. Twenty of the 21 graduates of Peking medical last year are busy as internes in mission hospitals in 15 Chinese cities.

Everywhere the graduates are leaders in the great social and educational movements of their own countries.

Help Lincoln raise her quota of 10 thousand dollars. Lincoln treasurer, Miss Harriet Bardwell, 1917 Euclid, or Phil R. Easterday, First National bank.

Each gift will be credited to the church or club of your choice.—Adv.

CARL BEUTEL.

The Schmoller and Mueller Piano Co.,
Lincoln, Nebraska:

Gentlemen—

Replying to your recent inquiry as to the satisfaction the Steinway grand is giving which I purchased from you eighteen months ago, will say that it is most satisfactory in every respect. Steinway and stability are synonymous in the opinion of the leading concert artists who subject an instrument to rigid endurance tests, and therefore the layman who is contemplating the purchase of a piano, and wishes to make a life long—long time investment, will do well to consider the Steinway. I am, Most sincerely yours,

CHENEY cabinet craftsmanship does more than suggest the work of the old masters of furniture artistry.

It equals their finest achievements.

Cheney cabinets possess the distinction and artistic charm of the original period productions which inspired them.

The CHENEY PHONOGRAPH

You will prize the Cheney for its cabinet beauty and quality as well as its transcendant beauty of tone.

The tonal system employs new principles of acoustic science which place the Cheney in a class alone.

The THEATERS

"ROBIN HOOD" THE GREAT AMERICAN COMIC OPERA.

The short life of the average play, the passing fame of the average star, has always been the rub of the theatrical business. Each year brings its endless crop of "successes of the century," "hits of the age," "biggest sensation in twenty years," and where are they all today. Echo gives no answer, neither does the billboard the ouija board or the daily newspaper! Like Shakespeare's poor player, they have "strutted and fretted their hour or two" and then vanished into the great limbo of the forgotten.

When, therefore, a play goes on year after year, showing to bigger and bigger audiences; when its scores and songs continue to outsell a dozen times over all the ragtime and jazz, "hits of the age," it is a matter worth special note. We refer to "Robin Hood," written some thirty years ago by Reginald DeKoven and Harry B. Smith, and which Manager May Valentine will present at the Orpheum theatre tomorrow night for one performance.

Originally produced by the famous Bostonians, it has been continually before the American public. And today it is still breaking box office records, still selling out on the first day of its seat sale, still bringing laughter and romance and happiness to thousands. "O Promise Me" is biggest seller of any single musical composition, just as it was the first year of the opera's production.

AT THE ORPHEUM.

The Orpheum's perennial favorites, Will M. Cressy and Blanche Dayne, are to appear here shortly in Cressy's latest skit, "Without a Will There's a Way." These standard sketch delinators, it is said, have a new play let that surpasses their tried and true, "Town Hall Tonight," "A Village Lawyer," and "Wyoming Whoop." Based on a new idea, it is said to have established a new cast for Mr. Cressy's "up state" depictions.

The coming of Cressy and Dayne always has been a signal for a somewhat different type of theater goer to frequent the Orpheum. While the duo invariably pleases the average vaudeville devotee, at the same time the convincing situations and accurately illustrated characters draw forth the former New Englanders, who declare they welcome an opportunity to again view a page from the book of New Hampshire in this distant city.

Supporting the actor-author and Miss Dayne will be Mr. Cressy's niece, Marion Hodges, who appeared with them on two other trips here. Miss Hodges will portray the unsophisticated New England miss, while Miss Dayne is to appear as the "up state" city dweller. Cressy will be the typical inhabitant of the back woods village.

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—We are three movie fans. We would be very much please if you could send us each a picture of Mary Miles Minter. If you do not have three of her you may send one of her and two others of some other actresses.

Is Thomas Meighan married? If so, is Leatrice Joy his wife? How old is he?

We would like to know Richard Barthelmess' age, height, color of eyes and hair, address whether or not he is married whether he lives with his mother and something of his life's history.

Is Wallace Reid married? Where does he live? Which do you think is the best looking actor?

Thanking you ever so much, we are THREE MOVIE FANS.

I also, would be very much pleased if I could send you each a picture of Miss Minter, but I can't because I haven't a single one. I am sending substitutes, however, and hope they please.

Mr. Meighan is married—to Frances Ring. Leatrice Joy has a perfect nice husband of her own. Mr. Meighan was born in 1880.

Richard Barthelmess is twenty-seven, and has dark hair and eyes. He is five feet seven inches tall and is married to Mary Hay. He lives with his wife, and you may write to him at the Lambs' Club, N. Y. Mary won't care at all. Richard was born in New York and was educated at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn. He made his motion picture debut with Nazimova in "War Brides," and then became a Famous Players actor. Griffith is responsible for his further rise in fame, and he is now a star with his own producing company—and is making good.

Wallace Reid is married to Dorothy Davenport, and they live in Hollywood, Cal.

I don't think there is any "best-looking" actor. They all look good to me. I never miss a George Arliss picture, but I'm not in love with his beauty. I'm a "Movie Fan" and fat or thin, tall or slender, if they have good pictures I like them.

Dear Movie Editor—What has become of our old friends, Alice Joyce, Francis Ford, Grace Cunard, Pearl White, Dorothy Kelly, and Mary MacDermott?

Was "The Yellow Ticket," completed that Harold Lockwood was playing in when he died. I see some of the old stars are coming back, but they are not like they used to be. There are so many new ones in their place, but don't you think some of the old ones are better players than the new ones? I really like Francis Ford for a hero better than anyone I know of.

Will you give me the cast for "Whom the Gods Destroy," "Love's Flame," and "Souls United."

Can you give me the names of all of Pearl Whites plays? Ruth Rolands? Grace Cunard's? Dorothy Kelly's? Lillian and Dorothy Gish's?

Who played in "The Romance of Billy Goat Hill?" Can you give me the cast, and is she playing now? Who were the Moore brothers' first wives? How many Moore brothers are there? Four is what I thought.

Who plays in "The White Sister?"

What play did Charles Richmond play with Pearl White? Was he the hero? Do you think we will ever see Pearl White here again?

I could write all day on this, but will close for today as I may want to write more next Sunday MOVIES OF OLD RENEWED.

Today seems to be a "Bring Back the Old Stars' Sunday. I'm almost tempted to say that I'm glad you didn't "write all day" since you made me "work all day" to find the casts for your pictures, and then I didn't find them, because they dated clear back to 1915 and 1916 and I don't keep them that long. Thomas Carrigan starred in "Love's Flame," but it was a rather "weak" picture, and the rest of the cast was not given. Harry Morey and Alice Joyce were the featured players in "Whom the Gods Destroy," and Yolande Duquette in "Souls United," according to what records I can find on them.

Alice Joyce married a hotel millionaire named Regan, and now there's another member of the family, so that's the reason we haven't see Alice for some time. She lets us hear from her occasionally, and informs us she may coe back some time. Francis Ford has never been so popular since he formed his own company. That often happens to stars who strike out for themselves. Francis is still playing, however. His next will be in support of Charles Jones in "Boss of Camp 4." Grace's nanie appears in the cast of a picture occasionally, although not frequently. Dorothy Kelly has not been heard from for sometime. Dorothy married Herbert Havernor and evidently gave up her public career for one of domesticity, Marie MacDermott has not absented himself from the screen for any great length of time. He is now playing in "The Lights of New York, a Fox picture.

Pearl White after having spent some time as a Fox star in feature productions has gone back to her first love, the Pathe serial, and we should see her soon in "Plunder."

The last picture made by the late Harold Lockwood to be released was "A Man of Honor."

The stars of the screen seem to have a sort of meteoric existence. They appear and sparkle for a while, and then drop out of existence so far as the motion picture public is concerned. Of course there are a few of the old stars who are still shining, but there are many that shone ten years ago, or seven years ago, that the present generation have never heard of.

I could perhaps tell you the names of all of Pearl White's plays, and all of the plays of the rest you mentioned, but if I did my head would swim for a month, so I'll just name part of them. Pearls most popular ones were "Perils of Pauline," Elaine" series, "The Iron Claw," "The Fatal Ring," "Pearl of the Army" "Hazel Kirke," "The House of Hate" "The Lightning Raider," "The Black Secret," "The White Moll," "The Mountain Woman," "The Thief" "Tiger's Club" and "Beyond Price."

Grace Cunard has played in "Broken Coin," "Peg O' the Ring," "After the War," "Campbells are Coming," "Daughter of the Law" "Her Western Adventure" "The Man Hater."

Some of Dorothy Gish's pictures are "The Little Yank," "Hearts of the World," "Battling Jane," "The Hope Chest," "I'll Get Him Yet," "Ghost in the Garret" "Little Miss Rebellion," "Remodeling her Husband," "Birth of a Nation," "Hearts of the World," "The Greatest Thing in Life" "Broken Blossoms," "True Heart Susie" and "Romance of Happy Valley."

Ruth Roland has rivalled Pearl White as serial queen. Among her many thrillers are "Hands Up," "Tiger's Trail," "Neglected Wife," "Price of Folly," "Fringe of Society," "Adventures of Ruth," "Ruth of the Rockies" and "The Avenging Arrow."

Dorothy Kelly turned out "The Flirt," "The Line-up," "The Snare of Fate," "The Law Decides," "The Secret Kingdom" "The Money Mill" "The Maelstrom," "Mary Jane's Pa," and "The Supreme Temptation."

Myrtle Gonzales played in "The Romance of Billy Goat Hill." I can't give you the complete cast for the picture. Myrtle has also sunk into oblivion. She isn't even mentioned in the "Blue Book" of players anymore.

You are right. There are four Moore boys. Joe Moore's first and only wife seems to be Grace Cunard, I can't recall that he had been married before he married Grace, and I have heard of no second for him. Tom used to be the husband of Alice Joyce, and Owen once let Mary Pickford sign his name on her checks. Matt ise the other borther.

Lillian Gish is to star in "The White Sister," Charles Richman played with Dorothy Kelly in "The Secret Kingdom," but unless I am very much mistaken, he never played with Pearl White.

Dear Movie Editor—This is the second time I have written to you, but I read your interesting page every Sunday.

Where is Viola Dana? I haven't seen her for a long time. Why don't we see more of her? What is her next picture? Will you please tell me who took the part of "Frederick' in "The Secret of the Storm Country." Also of the lawyer?

I think Norma Talmadge and Beatrice Joy are the most beautiful brunettes in the movies, and Mae Murray the prettiest blonde.

How did Wanda Hawley get into the movies? Why does she always eake such snobbish parts? I suppose she is fitted for that part. I would like to see her in something different.

What is Thomas Meighan's next picture? I like him better than Valentino. Will Leatrice Joy play opposite him again? I sure like to see them together. Have Thomas Meighan, Milton Sills and Leatrice Joy any children?

What is Milton's next picture, and who will play opposite him? I like him with Gloria Swanson in "The Great Moment." Will they ever play together again?

Please give me the cast of "The Man Who Saw Tomorrow."

Of what nationality are Jane and Eva Novak, Nita Naldi, Pola Negri, Jacqueline Logan, Mabel Van Buren and the Talmarge girls?

When will "The Bitterness of Sweets" be here?

Can you tell me the name of the drummer at the Rialto?

Thank you for the answers and space. EMILY.

Viola Dana is still making pictures every day, except holidays, at the Metro studio. Her next production will be "A Noise In Newboro." It is true that we don't see her as often as we do some of the other stars, but I believe we see most of her really worth while pictures. She doesn't make pictures on as large a scal as some of the other stars do, nor does she dress as beautifully, so therefore she isn't quite as popular with the majority as some of the others are.

I don't have a cast of "The Secret of the Storm Country."

Wanla Hawley started out to be a musician. She was educated at the Master School of Music, Boston, but a chronic irritaton of the throat forced her to gve up her career. She receved an offer to play a small part n a Fox pcture, and lked the work so well she has been in it ever since, and even changed her name for the sake of her art. She started out as Selma Pirtack, but married a man named Hawley, so she became Selma Hawley. However, when she became leading lady for Douglas Fairbanks in "Mr. Fixit," he didn't like "Selma" so he christened her "Wanda." She is not always a "snob." Wasn't she "Beauty" in "Everywoman."

Mr. Meighan is just completing his work on "Back Home and Broke,' with Lila Lee, and not Leatrice Joy opposite him. Lila will also play opposite Mr. Meighan in his next picture, which will be "The Ne'er Do Well."

Leatrice Joy's next feature is "Java Head." Milton Sills is featured with Anna Q. Nilsson, Elliott Dexter, Pauline Garon and Theodore Kosloff, in an original story by Jeanie MacPherson, which Cecil B. DeMille is making. Sice I do not possess the power to look into the future, I can not tell you whether he will ever play with Gloria Swanson again or not, but it is certain he will not in either of her next pictures. Conrad Nagel and Antonio Moreno have that honor in "The Impossible Mrs. Bellows," and "My American Wife,' respectively. Mrs. Sills has a daughter, eleven years old. Neither of the others have any children.

The cast for "The Man Who Saw ToMorrow" is: "Burke Hammond," Thomas Meighan; "Capt. Morgan Pring," Theodore Roberts; "Rita Pring," Leatrice Joy; "Jim McLeod," Albert Roscoe; "Sir William De Vry," Also Francis; "Lady Helen Deene," June Elvidge; "Venio," Eva Novak; "Larry Camden," Laurence Wheat; "Prof. Jansen," John Miltern; "Bishop," Robert Brower; "Botsu," Edward Patrick; "Maya," Jacqueline Byrls.

Pola Negri was born in Poland. She is therefore Polish, but the others you asked about are Americans, having been born in the "Land of the Free."

"The Bitterness of Sweets" has not been booked for any definite date yet. Watch the Star "ads" for its appearance in Lincoln.

Dick Mustaine is the drummer at the Rialto.

If your letter does not appear today, look for it next Sunday. There happens to have been a deluge this week.

"THE GHOST BREAKER"
Warren Jarvis, Wallace Reid.
Maria Theresa, Lila Lee
Rusty Snow, Walter Hiers
Duke O'Alva, Arthur Carewe.
Sam Marcum, J. F. MacDonald.
Aunt Mary Jarvis, Frances Raymond.
Maurice, Snitz Edwards.

Warren Jarvis goes to visit his aunt in Kentucky, and while there is assailed by Sam Marcum, leader of the Marcum clan, because of the shooting of a Marcum by a Jarvis and the revival of an ancient family feud. Followed to New York by Marcum, Jarvis shoots him in an encounter, and then seeks refuge in the nearest hotel room which happens to be occupied by Marchesa Maria Theresa, a young Spanish heiress who has come to New York to find the plans of her ancient Spanish castle which has become haunted by ghosts who have made away with her younger brother, Carlos.

They form a pact to help each other. Maria hides Warren in her trunk, and ships him to the boat and Warren's colored servant, Rusty, watches the trunk carefully. The Duke D'Alva, Spanish neighbor and suitor, and the real villain behind the ghost scare, has followed Maria to New York to get the plans for himself. He meets Maria and hastens to the boat. Maria has stolen the plans when the owner was absent, and is caught when he returns. When he learns, however, that she needs them for a purpose he lets her take them.

Meanime, the duke has smashed in the trunk revealing Warren, and Maria comes aboard just in time to stop Warren from beating up the duke.

Arriving at the castle of Aragon, Warren and Maria prepare for an evening of ghosts and adventure. Warren, on the castle grounds, has his pockets rifled. Rushing to the castle he tells Maria his exploration will involve great danger, but that he is going through with it because he loves her, and then he departs. Maria realizes she loves him, but—the story isn't ended by any means.

"HURRICANE'S GAL"
Lola, Dorothy Phillips.
Steele O'Connor, Robert Ellis.
Chris Borg, Wallace Beery.
Cap'n Danny, James O. Barrows.
Phyllis Fairfield, Gertrude Astor.
Sing, William Fong.
Lieut. Grant, Jack Donovan.
Mrs. Fairfield, Frances Raymond.

Lola is the daughter of a Pacific smuggler and sailing pirate inherits with the S. S. Tahiti Belle, her father's love for roaming and independence. She knows neither fear, love, restraint or master. No man has ever won her love and no laws have ever curbed her whims.

A stowaway is found—Steele O'Connor, and with Steele's coming, Lola discovers that she really has a heart after all. Steele O'Connor is so different to the men she has known that he interests her in the beginning. He is refined, polished, and aesthetic in tastes.

Her worst premonitions are justified, however, as the ship enters the San Francisco harbor, for a number of revenue officers board the vessel, and, at a signal from Steele, take command, accusing the crew of smuggling. A hand to hand fight follows, and the ship is blown up.

Unknown to anyone except her first mate, Lola seeks refuge in a secret hang-out, a gambling den, also left her by her father.

Torn between love for him, and hatred for his apparent treachery, Lola finally decides on vengeance. Steele, torn between love for the girl h believes to have gone down with the ship and duty, is amazed one night to find her standing before him, denouncing him. His protestations and his exposition of a creed of duty is so sincere that Lola goes away, confused by a new doctrine of life.

The next thing she does is to kidnap Phyllis Fairfield, whom she considers a rival for Steele, and she takes her out on another vessel. She does not mean to harm Phyllis, but her idea is to study her and learn from her as the type of girl that Steele would most admire.

And then—

"EAST IS WEST"
Ming Toy, Constance Talmadge.
Billy Benson, Edward Burns.
Lo Sang Kee, E. A. Warren.
Charley Yong, Warner Oland.
Hop Toy, Frank Lanning.
Chan- Lee, Nick De Ruiz.
Jimmy Potter, Nigel Barrie.
Mr. Benson, Winter Hall.
Mrs. Benson, Lillian Lawrence.
Proprietor of Love Boat, Jim Wang.

One of Hop Toy's sixteen daughters is almost white, that is she looks almost white, and not only that, but she is almost white in her disposition, and in her prayers to a Christian God, and learns the Christian games at the mission.

The night that her father intends to sell her to the Love Boat for money with which to purchase another pig, she runs away in the clothes of the Sing Song girls they have dressed her in, and begs the missionary to save her from bondage. He is unable to help her but she meets Bill- Benson and falls in love with him. Later when her father finds and takes her off to the Love Boat. Billy follows and gets his friend, Lo Sang Kee, to bid against the Mandarin. When he sees that the Mandarin has outwitted him, Billy helps Ming Toy to escape to America under the protection of Lo Sang Kee, a merchant of San Francisco.

In America, Ming Toy learns some astounding things by watching the boys and girls dance in Kelly's saloon across from Lo San's shop.

That isn't all that she learns before she is through, she has some very exciting and thrilling experiences. But, the climax is the most thrilling of all, for Ming Toy makes a wonderful discovery that ensures her happiness for the rest of her life.

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—I have not written to you for several months, so may I ask some questions:

Where is Sidney Mason? I have not seen him since he played with Violet Mersereau in the Bluebird Photo plays. Has Ella Hall forsaken the screen? She was always a favorite of mine.

I saw Kenneth Harlan in "I Am The Law" the other night. I thought he was very good. I had not seen him for quite a while. What are some of his late pictures?

Have you any records of "Green Stockings" and "How the Stars Are Made." I saw these two pictures several years ago. Who played in he pictures? I believe these pictures were being shown about the time as "The Perils of Pauline" and other Pearl White Serials, perhaps before.

What happened to the old Mutual, Biograph, Vitagraph and Bluebird companies. Would it be possible for you to tell me who some of the players in the Mutual company were. There were several child stars who were very good. I know this last is a great deal to ask of you, as the Mutual shows I saw were shown here about ten years ago.

Looking back over the years that I have seen movies, I certainly think they are improving in quality, don't you?

Where is William Farnum?

Thanking you for past and future favors, I am INTERESTED, Crete, Neb. e

Sidney Mason sort of divides his time between the stage and the screen, but he apparently prefers the state. He has made several pictures since the Bluebird plays. Among his later ones are "The Trap," "A Meodern Salome," and "The Good Bad Wife." It has been some time since I have noticed his name in a picture cast.

Ella Hall retired from the screen for some time after her marriage to Emory Johnson, but there was a little family difficulty, and Ella came back. We don't see her often, but she occassionally makes a picture.

Kenneth Harlan has a leading role in Warner's "Little Church Around the Corner." "The World's a Stage' is another of his late releases.

I don't have the cast for either "Green Stockings" or "How the Stars Are Made." The first picture was a Vitagraph release in January, 1916. The latter production must have been even older. I very seldom keep casts for that length of time, because I have very few calls for any that old, and they accumulate rapidly.

Vitagraph is still making pictures, on a larger scale than in prevousl years. Mutual, Biograph and Bluebird have all merged with larger companies. Some of the stars of the mutual company were Anne Little, Gail Kane, Zena Keefe, Helen Holmes, Nance O'Neill, Billie Rhodes, Olive Tell, Florence Turner, Charlotte Walker, Mary Charleson, Mack Hayward, Duncan McRae, Richard Neill, Jules Raucourt, Jack Sherrill, Henry Walthall, Richard Bennett, and Robert Eleson. I have no record of the children who played for that company. They had no doubt developed into ingenues before my records begin. Ten years ago the motion picture industry was in its infancy, and now it is one of the best known in the United States. The first motion picture to be made in Los Angeles, now the center of the motion picture industry of the world, was in 1908 when Col. William N. Selig of Chicago sent a company there to film water scenes of "The Count of Monte Cristo. There are now forty-nine studios in and around Los Angeles, and about 175 producing units at work there. The pay rolls of the picture people in that city alone, amount to about $40,000,000. When we think of all that has been accomplished in motion pictures during the past ten years, it is hard to tell what will happen in the next ten.

Take Your Troubles to Minerva

Women of Yesterday Too Busy With Their Varied Duties to Think of Divorce Welcomed Children as They Came—An Orphan of the Divorce Court Testifies to Harm Caused By Division in the Home—Discussion of Home Problems Welecomed.

His Wonderful Mother.

Dear Minerva: I am very much interested in your discussion of the problems of married life and the decadence of happy home life of today. As a doctor in a small town and country community I see my share of the inside of family troubles. I believe selfishness and fear of work is the cause of a great deal of the divorce evil. Men and women marry. But they want to retain the freedom of single life. They don't want to be burdened with children, one with the responsibility of building up homes. All they think of is excitement and keeping up the social whirl. This is true even in the small town. And a lot of the country people are getting the fever too. Though we still find a lot of the old-fashioned big families out here and they haven't time for domestic troubles, I'll tell you.

Now my mother is a remarkable woman. She has raised ten children, all of which grew to the self-supporting age though two died during the war and flu epidemic. We were all given thorough educations and taught to help ourselves get our schooling too. We're a pretty decent lot, all successful in a worldly way. Mother at seventy is an erect, alert, keen woman. She can out-talk and out-argue anyone. She keeps up to date and well informed on all subjects. She is popular with the young and old, and at Christmas time she receives more gifts and attentions than the gayest debutante.

Now mother was of German parentage and birth. She was given a solid education. And she has kept up through all her years of hard work. She married father when he was a young, green country doctor. They lived on a farm where she tended things while he built up a practice. She worked hard as all women did in those days, tending her big family and doing her own work. I don't pretend to know how she did it. But she always queened it over everyone. And believe me father never had any desire to go philandring and mother never thought of worrying about him. They had their friends and their good times. But these were occasions. Not habit.

Mother did a lot of school teaching at home. Always had. Even during the war mother had classes in French. And even yet she teaches a class of young women in fine needlework, a Sunday school class of which she is very proud. She does the finest needlework of anyone for miles around and her embroidery and chocheting are famed. She has made layettes for many a baby out here that would otherwise have had none. And she still paints an occasional picture and writes an occasional poem.

When some of these modern women come to my office with their over-coddled nerves and over-indulged bodies, many of them convalescing from their latest divorce I'd just like to tell them to go to my mother and learn how to live. She had no theories of how to keep a husband, or how to make the home happy. But she kept busy and her mind and body active and alive. And she wasn't afraid to receive the children and care for them as God sent them.—AA COUNTRY DOCTOR.

The Children Suffer.

Dear Minerva: I believe when there are children that a divorce is wicked and wrong, no matter how unpleasant marriage relations have become. It is the children who suffer.

My parents were divorced when I was eight years old. I had a brother six. Young though I was I can remember the anguished of giving up our house with its playroom and its big apple trees to climb and going to live in two rooms in the city, and of having our gay, jolly father go out of our lives. We were given into the custody of our mother. She had to work hard to make ends meet and hired a miscellaneous crew of women to help with our care while she worked. She put up a valiant struggle. I was sixteen years of age before she gave it up and remarried. I am convinced she married again for our sakes, as we were growing older she realized how great our needs would be and how unable she was to provide them. The man she married had means. But I couldn't stand him. My own father paid us ocasional visits and it was him I loved. I could not play the part I was supposed to play, of gratitude and affection for the new father. So he disliked me from the first even as I disliked him. I stood it for two years, then I left home and went to work and to support myself. My younger brother also left home. Mother had other children, and we two were cast adrift. Mother was not to blame. She did the best she could. Not long ago she confessed to me that if she could live her life over she would not have separated from our father. She said at that time she though she could not stand to live with him; they disagreed on so many issues. But later she saw how they could have patched things up for the good of both, and have saved us from the years of unhappiness.

We children were outcasts, homeless waifs. And I cannot see but what all children whose parents are divorced suffered likewise.—ORPHANED BY DIVORCE.

Too Much Talk.

Dear Minerva: I am coming to you with my troubles as it seems there is no one else to help me. I am almost an orphan as my mother died when I was but ten years old and my father travels and I see very little of him. So if you can help me dear Minerva, I shall be forever grateful to you.

Four years ago when I came here to attend university I meet a man five years my senior whom I learned to love as only a heart so hungry for love and sympathy as mine was can love. Oh Minerva, he was my very life and I felt at last there was something to live for and I should never again feel sad and lonely. But my happiness was too bright to last. He graduated and went away. We corresponded and everything went well until a few weeks ago.

For some reason he never spent money on me like the friends of the other girls at the sorority house where I lived although he is very wealthy and he always bought the best of everything for himself. When he graduated, at great sacrifice to myself I gave him a nice present and he seemed much pleased with it. Recently I had a birthday and I expected him to return my kindness by remembering me with something he had heard me express a strong wish for. It would cost less than what I had given him and I had no thought but that he would wish to please me. But instead of the thing he knew I wanted so he sent me an inexpensive trinket that I have absolutely no use for and I am sure he could not be induced to wear anything so cheap himself.

Now do you think Minerva if he loved me so as he has often said (we were engaged) that he could be so selfish and stingy with me? The presents I have given him at Christmas and on his birthday were always the best that I could possibly get and he knew of the sacrifice that I had to make to get them as my father is not liberal with me and when I gave to my fiance I always had to do without something I needed myself. But I was always happy when I could please him and somehow I feel that if he loved me as I love him he would have the same feeling in regard to making me happy. Don't you?

I have often tried to talk to him about this and when he saw how it hurt me he always said that he was going to do different. But it just seems he cannot part with money to buy things for anyone but himself, with whom is he most generous.

Our house mother, to whom I first went with my troubles, advised me to write him plainly in regard to how I felt and I did so. I am afraid I said more than I should but not more than is true. I have since apologized and have done all I feel that I can do and retain my self respect. But our engagement is broken as is also the heart of a poor little orphan girl for I feel that I just can't go on without him. He says he still loves me and longs for me but feels that I have such extravagant tastes that he would not be able to please me. I feel that he accuses me unjustly for during the three years that we have been engaged I am sure ten dollars would convert what he has spent on presents for me. He has never bought me flowers and has given me just two boxes of candy.

The girls tease me about his being stingy, and Minerva it hurts because it is true, I know. They say if we were married I would be wretched. Do you think so? Don't you think he might change? Or do you think it wisest to try to get over it if I can and do more to a reconciliation? This is too long I know, but oh Minerva, please try to help me for you cannot know how my heart is breaking.—AN ORPHAN.

A. I thing perhaps the criticisms and ridicule of the girls in the house with you have played too great a share in causing your unhappiness. The boy who is a good spender is the one who meets with universal approval from a group of girls. But such a boy is not necessarily the one who makes the best husband. The boy who is known as a penny-pincher is sometimes more frugal and thrifty and takes the responsibilities of building a substantial home and future than the open-handed, more popular boy. Stinginess and selfishness in a man are not admirable and comfortable traits. They can cause a wife unhappiness. But they do not always do so. The modern wife contrives to be independent by having her own share of the husband's salary to handle and need not be subject to the whimsies of the husband. There are men to whom the expenditure of money on feminine foibles causes an actual ache. If the wife has to ask her husband for every penny she spends, explaining its expenditure, etc., it causes unhappiness. But if she has her personal and household money to handle independently she need not be made miserable by this trait in her husband.

Now this is your problem, to decide alone and regardless of the criticism of your friends. Do you love this young man enough to overlook his stinginess? Is he fair-minded and broad-minded and willing to give you a square deal as his future partner? Do his other good traits overbalance this one annoying characteristic?

Miss Etty Quette: The crackers are always to be eaten with the fingers and not dropped in the soup. A woman need not rise when a man is presented, but when a woman is introduced it is better form to rise. For the guests to kiss the bride is somewhat provincial.

Wants Poem.

Dear Minerva: I have noticed several other readers receiving poetry through your Mail. I wish you or some kind reader would send me the words to a poem whose lines are:

"We are lost, the captain shouted, as he staggered down the stairs. But his little daughter whispered as she took this icy hand. Isn't God upon the ocean just the same as on the land?"—B. C.

Will Give Magazines.

Dear Minerva: How far from the floor are the dresses supposed to be made now? I do not have reference to an evening gown or a fancy dress but just a plain black silk dress.

Is there any organization in Lincoln which would be glad to receive back date magazines to be distributed to homes in the state? We have two years back number of the "American" and "Ladies Home Journal."—INTERESTED.

A. The afternoon silk dress is supposed to be eight or eight and a half inches from the floor.

If some reader is connected with an organization which would like to have these magazines for distribution, please send me request and name and address.

An Old Poem Wanted.

Dear Minerva: Someone asked for the poem "Baby" recently. Can you or any of the readers tell me where I can find that old piece "Peter and Trisbe?—THANK YOU.

Whole Wheat Bread.

Dear Minerva: I wonder if you would please tell me how to make good whole wheat bread. I have made good white bread for many years but so far every time I make whole wheat bread my family prefers crackers. Every magazine one picks up these day tells of the evils of white bread and the wholesomeness of the whole-wheat bread and of course I want to give my family what is best or them. So please, Minerva won't you help me?—MRS. WM. C.

A. Two whole wheat bread cecipes which are recommended to me are the following:

Whole Wheat or Health Biscuits: 2 cups whole wheat flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 2 teaspoons shortening, 1 cup milk and 4 tablespoons cut raisins. Mix well flour, salt and baking powder, or sift through coarse strainer; add shortening and rub it very lightly; add milk; mix to soft dough, add raisins. Drop with tablespoon quite far apart on greased baking tin. Bake in moderate oven about 25 minutes.

Whole Wheat Bread: 2 cups scalded milk, 1-4 cup sugar or 1-3 cup molasses, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 yeast cake dissolved in 1-4 cup lukewarm water, 4 2-3 cups coarse entire wheat flour. Add sweetening and salt to milk; cook, and when lukewarm add dissolved yeast cake and flour; beat well, cover and let rise to double its bulk. Again beat, and turn into greased bread pans, having pans one-half full; let rise, and bake. This bread should not be quite double its bulk during last rising.

Poor Parental Judgment.

Dear Minerva: When children quarrel or get peeved at each other on the road home from school and go home and tell their folks about it, you thing it right for these parents to call the other parents up and give a regular scolding for something they know nothing about? Would you talk back to them over the phone or tell them to come face to face if they want to talk?—ANNIE B.

A. It is poor taste for a parent to interfere with quarrels between children, when they have only the children's say-so for the causes of the disagreement. If a parent is so foolish as to telephone to you in a quarrelsome manner about such a thing, talk politely to her but refuse to be drawn into any discussion of the affair. Tell her you feel you can know so little about the children's quarrels that you refuse to take any part in them.

Questions Answered Briefly.

Thank You: Pass the plates to the left. Wait until the girls have finished the first course and the plates are removed before serving the second course. The girls are right in passing to you first. It is unnecessary to wait until all the girls at the table have been served with bread before starting to eat. The waiter removes the dishes from the right. Cut only one piece of meat at a time. The rule you quote regarding the fork is incorrect; of course the fork has to cross the plate. Keep the arms off the table at all times.

Deer Peepul:
Foane B6575

Immeejeeately, soas we can spruce up yure clothes fer Krismas. Cause after tomorrow we're goin to throw da hole cleening bizness into da feelings of Krismas.

De ole man invited us to go wit him in his ole tin go-cart to toyland and fairyland to see what kin find fer da kids of da poor, who he sez mus not be fergotten at dis time. If nothin more it shows de ole sneezer's gettin a tenderloin heart. Moreover, it shows dat da spirits of Krismas kin soffen da tuphest hide dat ever growed on a irishman. Now, while we nail up de holly-bush over de ole man's door let us sing—

"O holly bush, O holly bush
Yure jus as green as irish;
We're goin to hang our stockins up
Yuh see de ole man fills em up
O holly bush, O holly bush
Da ole man is da berries."
